By ARTHUR BRISBANE

IT IS SAID—let us hope it is true—that President Roosevelt, with all the other things on his hands, finds time to worry about the fact that Germany sails the seas in lighter-than-air ships, running a regular ferry service, Germany to Brazil, with side trips to the Chicago exposition and back across the Atlantic to Germany.

The United States looks on, sends an occasional trans-Atlantic air mail letter on a Zeppelin.

It would take a small fraction of one of the billions that the United States is spending, to put this country ahead of every other nation in trans-Atlantic flight.

MR. LITCHFIELD, who built the Akron, a ship sacrificed by a stupid Navy rule that when a man learns how to run a dirigible he must quit and go back to sea service, declares that a regular air service could be established around the world in sixteen days with "three hops by dirigible, and part way by heavier-than-air plane."

The dirigible would fly from New York to Southern Spain, whence passengers to Europe would be dispersed by heavier-than-air planes.

The next Zeppelin stop would be from Southern Spain to the Dutch East Indies, from the East Indies to Manila by plane, from the Philippines across the Pacific to Oakland or some other Pacific Coast port by Zeppelin, and from the Pacific Coast to New York ' one of the airplane lines.

IF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT really plans putting this country ahead of the whole world, in regular air transportation, around the world or from New York across the Pacific and the Atlantic oceans only, he will do a great deal to inspire respect for this country everywhere.

And the thing could be done in a really big way for less than the cost of one single battleship, that if war came would have to be hidden away because, otherwise, some air pilot would surely sink it.

"BEST MINDS" worry about inflation, not realizing that inflation is already here. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation demands another thousand million dollars. "A thousand millions" is the financial unit now.

Whether government keeps its head buried in the sand in ostrich fashion and insists on printing interest-bearing bonds, instead of paying out new money and saving the interest, makes no difference.

Inflation with yellow paper promises to pay, bearing interest, or inflation with green promises to pay without interest, is still inflation. The difference is that you inflate wisely if you don't insist on putting an extra burden on taxpayers by paying interest when it isn't necessary.

A LITTLE BOY who said "I must make money," took his sister's new story books and sold them to little boys for one cent each.

And as each little boy paid his penny, the Buffalo business boy insisted on giving change because he knew that in stores they always gave change to his mother. At the end of the day, when the books were gone, he had not made much money.

Uncle Sam, insisting on paying interest when it isn't necessary, is like that little boy who insisted on giving change, in nickels or dimes, for each one-cent piece.

THE POWERFUL Dalai Lama, religious and earthly ruler of millions in Thibet, died in his retreat at Lhasa and Buddhist priests have been looking for his "reincarnation" in some newborn baby.

Now the joyful announcement is made that God had directed the new-born miraculous infant to the outskirts of the city of Lhasa. You are not surprised to learn that "extraordinary astronomical phenomena," such as strange stars in the sky, announced the birth of the new lama, who will rule, the same old lama in a brand new body.

THE BABY was born at exactly the hour of the old lama's death, so that passage from the old dead body into the new baby body was instantaneous.

This belief in reincarnation interests all, for while the majority here believe that we leave the earth as soon as we die, and go to heaven, to stay there always, we cannot be absolutely sure that the other religion is wrong, since each religion is supposed to be divinely revealed and inspired.

IF, BY any chance, we SHOULD come back to live in earthly bodies again, that would help comfort us for the innumerable massacres of so-called "inferior races."

If such races, like the Bushmen, clay-eating Indians, backward tribes in the hills of Ceylon, and some others that were killed off should come back, their spirits would necessarily come back into superior bodies, possibly even in lovely white-skinned, golden-haired Nordic bodies.

After a while there wouldn't be any other kind of bodies to come back to.

WHEN THE courageous Cardinal Faulhaber reminds Chancellor Hitler that the world was not saved by "Aryan" blood, but "by the blood of the Saviour," the Jewish people in Germany are especially interested.

They can add to Cardinal Faulhaber's statement that insofar as earthly matters are concerned, while the spirit of the Saviour was entirely divine, his bodily blood was strictly

COUNCIL POWER HIT BY M'NAIR

Mayor William Nissley McNair today widened the breach between Democratic members of Council and himself in a statement reminding Council it cannot give orders to department heads responsible only to the Mayor.

McNair referred to councilmanic resolutions—not yet passed—containing, in their original forms, instructions to City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully, City Treasurer James P. Kirk, and Dr. Ray P. Moyer, Director of Health.

Councilman William A. Magee reminded his colleagues in Council yesterday that the resolutions should be addressed to the Mayor. They were to be changed. All were introduced by Democrats.

M'NAIR'S REPRIMAND

The Mayor sharply reminded Council that he might block its wishes unless the niceties were strictly observed. He said, in part:

"If Council instructs the City Solicitor to institute proceedings before the Public Service Commission to reduce bus and

The apple vendor at the City-County Building was praised by everybody.

SHANTYTOWN INVADED

Father Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's Catholic Church, bawled out the Mayor for the show His Honor put on yesterday at the priest's home for homeless — Shantytown.

The priest said that McNair invaded Shantytown, selected "a nondescript foreingner" and appointed him mayor of Shantytown. The priest rebuked:

"He came without asking any questions and he named a mayor. Why, I was elected mayor of Shantytown myself for a second time six months ago. The Mayor didn't come to see me. He was very discourteous."

Father Cox was aroused also because the Mayor today described Shantytown as "a disgrace to the city" and repeated his plans to have Harrison McCready, the playboy, give the occupants their own lots throughout the city.

But Father Cox praised McNair for the appointment of McCready. The playboy had never harmed

Fifteen county detectives returned to Pittsburgh from Stowe Township early today after an exhaustive search for a "wide-open" gambling establishment reported on Ohio street. The information had been furnished by an anonymous tipster. The detectives searched both sides of the street without result.

U.S. Planes Set to Hop Pacific

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Six huge Navy seaplanes poised here today for a hop across 2,150 nautical miles of the open Pacific to Honolulu—the longest and most hazardous overwater formation flight ever attempted.

The takeoff was definitely set for this afternoon by Lieut. Com. Kneffler McGinnis, squadron leader, so that his command might take the earliest possible advantage of existing favorable weather conditions.

Beyond Hawaii a storm was blowing up, but between Honolulu and the mainland the sea was "smooth as glass."

A delay beyond the noon hour, McGinnis said, "might mean the loss of this most favorable circumstance."

Each plane was loaded during the night with between 700 and 1,000 gallons of gasoline, and after a late inspection each was pronounced ready.

NEW CWA OFFICE RIOT QUELLED

Disorder attributed by police to members of the Unemployed Council marked the opening of the new CWA employment office at 338 Third avenue today. Mounted officers dispersed a crowd that staged a mild demonstration.

Several hundred men were in line to apply for jobs. Sixteen clerks were employed to register the applicants.

After the police had dispersed the demonstrators, two men who said they represented the Unemployed Council sought Ralph W. Gibbs, director of the employment agency, to lodge a protest.

Harding's Brother Seriously Ill

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Suffering from an aggravation of a heart condition of long standing, Dr. George T. Harding II, 55-year-old brother of the late President Warren G. Harding, was seriously ill today at his sanatorium in Worthington, a suburb of Columbus.

Although he spent a "fairly good night," Dr. Harding is in a very serious condition, his son, Dr. George T. Harding III, who is attending him, reported.

Peggy Joyce Sued For Lingerie Bill

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Peggy Joyce's lingerie — minus Peggy—was in court today, in a fashion, and Mme. Frances, fashionable couturier, hoped Peggy would also show up there in the immediate future. Miss Joyce, she charged, still owes her $485 on a $2,370 bill.

Peggy, the couturier claimed, bought dresses, hats and much filmy attire, including black velvet pajamas and chemises and failed to pay for the latter apparel.

REICHSTAG INCENDIARY BEHEADED

International News Service.

LEIPZIG, Germany, Jan. 10.—Moving so suddenly as to take even high government officials by surprise, the Hitler government today executed Marinus Van der Lubbe, young Dutch radical convicted of setting fire to the Reichstag Building.

Van der Lubbe was beheaded on the guillotine in the yard of the Leipzig Superior Court at 7:30 a. m.

GUILLOTINE EMPLOYED

The guillotine was employed instead of the oft-threatened hanging, or the orthodox Nazi axman, because it is the legal method of execution in the province of Saxony, in which Leipzig lies.

No small part of the surprise occasioned by the swift move was due to the fact that Queen Wilhelmina, of Holland, had hinted through the Dutch minister to Berlin that clemency for her young national would be welcome.

Except for the suggestion to the Dutch minister that a pardon or commutation of sentence would be impossible, the Dutch government was not known to have received any formal reply.

In a brief official communique announcing that Van der Lubbe had been beheaded, it was simply stated:

"President von Hindenburg did not make use of his right of pardon."

SLAYER BEHEADED

HAMBURG, Germany, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Rudolf Lindau, who shot and killed Police Inspector Perske from ambush August 27, 1931, was beheaded today.

Indignation Flares Throughout Holland

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Popular indignation flared in various sections of the population today at the news of the execution of Marinus Van der Lubbe, young Dutch brick-mason, in Leipzig, for the burning of the German Reichstag Building.

The citizenry appeared surprised, since it had been thought that President von Hindenburg would commute the Dutchman's death sentence because of the representations of the Dutch government.

Observers said, however, that they thought the official attitude would be that the German government was within its legal rights in exacting the supreme penalty and that the Dutch government would not take further action.

Connaught Princess Goes Under Knife

Powerful Navy Our Cheapest Insurance for Safety, Child Says of President's Proposal

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

Noted Author, and Ambassador to Italy Under Two Administrations.

CONGRESS MAY WELL cheer this week over the President's demand for fifty-three million dollars for new naval strength in addition to two hundred and thirty-eight million appropriated through the public works program.

There is no string of the new revolution tied to this. This appropriation controls neither finance, industry, nor individual liberty, by purchase or mortgage.

A proper defense is a government function. And we need defense so badly!

There may be danger in a large standing professional army. That danger is always recognized in all countries where disturbed economic or social conditions make a standing army a pawn in the seizure of power.

But a navy is a small factor in such a grab for control. Domestically, it is a wonderful training school for good, young citizenship.

FROM THE point of view of defense, an adequate navy is such cheap insurance of safety, that in a disturbed world it is the cheapest of all insurance—it can be paid for solely by taxes on cigarets and cosmetics.

Today, this Congress is fully aware of the fact that disarmament is no guarantee of peace. Strip every nation of armament and they may fight with bricks, fists, clubs and pitchforks. There never was a more ridiculous piece of nonsense than the foolish idea that war and disarmament have anything to do with each other.

Disarmament saves money and that is the only reason why the dogs all agree to wear muzzles, unless some one or two reluctant dogs say:

"We hope you all will wear muzzles while we go around with bare teeth."

The stark truth is that the powers, as they are called, cannot, will not, and do not disarm.

THE UNITED STATES has gone on scrapping battleships, failing to build up to treaty strength, failing to keep equipment and personnel able to defend this nation.

However, the cheapest investment we can make now is defense. The creation of adequate defense will give jobs, and pay the cheapest premiums on our national life insurance.

If we are wise enough to know that in a new era, speed, concealment and hitting power are to be found in the air, under the sea , and over the waters, we can provide an assurance that we and our children can go to bed at night—safe!

The United States is not safe today, as Congress well knows.

Welching nations fail to pay their debts.

We engage in reprisals and they do also. We say to France and Great Britain:

"No more imports of wine and whisky, no more of this or that unless you do this and that."

This nationalistic, economic reprisal does not make peace.

AFTER A PERIOD of great hope for what is called internationalism, we come to the most nationalistic era that memory can record. And at the same moment, a world-wide depression makes it easy, from the point of view of political leaders who are desirous of holding power, to go to war.

Were it not for the georgraphical isolation of the United States, hated by many because it still stands on promises of honor, our present helplessness would be a scandal.

That scandal Roosevelt would have at an end.

To repeat, money spent on the Navy has no strings tied to it.

DEFENSE IS the first obligatory function of government. No one can say that appropriations or administration of defense is unconstitutional.

No one can say that defense, in the case of naval, air, under water, and speed, hit-and-run power is anything but cheap insurance—the cheapest of all—provided we also have the Navy well manned.

A naval strength almost good enough, as we have said so many times, is like an egg almost fresh enough. There can be no greater waste in the world than a naval strength which loses and can't win.

CONGRESS, WE MUST HAVE A NAVY THAT CAN WIN!

HOOVER SON CONSULTED ON BIDS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The disclosure that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh received a "gift" of $250,000 worth of Transcontinental Air Transport stock, in addition to the $10,000 yearly salary he received for "services," was made today before the Senate committee investigating air mail contracts by D. M. Sheaffer, chairman of the executive committee of the company.

In addition, it was revealed that Col. Lindbergh was advised not to keep much of the stock in his name because it "would excite a lot of attention which is quite unnecessary."

The name of Herbert Hoover, Jr., son of the former President, was again injected into the hearing.

MEETS WITH HOOVER

Sheaffer told the committee he met the rPesident's son in a Washington office a week or two before TAT merged with Western Air Express.

Sheaffer also admitted that among the Republicans who were active in organization of the Transcontinental and Western Air Transport, Inc., a merger of T. A. T. and Western Air Express and the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Company were Harry Chandler, Los Angeles publisher; Henry Robison, Los Angeles banker, friend of ex-President Hoover; Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and Andrew W. Mellon and the late Richard B. Mellon, of Pittsburgh.

Andrew W. Mellon at the time was Secretary of the Treasury. Senator Black (Dem.), of Alabama, brought out the Mellons controlled the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Company, which was "let in" on the merger of T. A. T. and Western Air Express "for services rendered in the state of Pennsylvania."

TAX EVASION HINTED

In order to make the "gift" seem all right "for income tax purposes," the company sent Lindbergh a check for $250,000 with which he could pay for the shares, it was revealed.

The whole Lindbergh transaction was revealed when Senator Black, chairman of the commit-

Fired as Policeman, Nabs Two in Theft

A few minutes after Arnold Council had notified him of his dismissal, Patrolman George Frickanisce arested two youths in connection with the theft of the purse of Mrs. Anna Butko, an invalid of Arnold, it was reported today.

An additional charge of violation of their parole from Morganza was lodged against the youths, Frank and Michael Skufko. Later their father, John Skufko, was arrested for attacking Ralph Gregg, whom he accuses of giving police information concerning his sons.

Bingo Faces Wrath of Police Here As Rackets Prepare to Resume

'Civic Leader' Waxes Hot on Pitfalls Of Social Game

That overwhelming gambling fever which takes hold of the true bingo player was at a low temperature today, for Police Supt. Ben Marshall declared war on bingo.

While bingo players shuddered in their boots, the racket guys were still wondering how things are going to turn out under the new administration. Closed since the new Mayor went in, they are trying to summon courage to reopen, emboldened by the light fines being handed out in police courts.

But as yet they're still closed.

The superintendent said that bingo was getting to be worse than the numbers racket. He promised:

"I will be no part of causing youngsters to become gamblers or start on the downward path by such games."

Bingo is usually played at church socials and the like for pennies. The prizes are hams and chickens and such.

Marshall said he had received "a red-hot letter" from a prominent man complaining about bingo. So yesterday, when he granted a bingo permit to a committee of North Side women he wrote across the permit that it would be revoked "at the first sign of gambling."

To a group of World War Veterans at the weekly luncheon of the City Post, American Legion, Marshall declared:

"Bingo is more vicious than the numbers and you're not going to have it with Ben Marshall as police superintendent."

Asked about private poker games, the Superintendent grinned and admitted:

"You know—I like a good poker game with friends myself. And as long as your games are private, it's your own business and no affair of the police."

The Superintendent revealed he had been approached by an agent for the numbers writers. Surprised, he declared, he sent him away with these words ringing in his ears:

"There never was a racketeer that was an asset to a politician and politics have no control over the police department."

So Marshall Opens War to Safeguard Morals of Young

FARO VICTIM IN LOVE SUIT

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, a former internal revenue collector for Chicago and noted for the Springfield faro game in which she lost $50,000 borrowed from a fellow politician, was called to trial in Superior Court today to defend a $100,000 suit for the alleged theft of a policeman's love.

The plaintiff is Mrs. Susanne Nottingham, 35, who hopes to introduce in evidence a parcel of letters signed "Myrtle" and alleged to unburden the writer of her love for Norman E. Nottingham, patrol wagon driver.

She charges that Mrs. Blacklidge wilfully and maliciously destroyed and alienated her husband's love.

NEW BORN BABY KIDNAP PREY

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Federal agents were called today to help hunt for baby Patricia Luciano, called the youngest kidnaping victim on record here.

The child, only 23 days old, was taken from her home yesterday by a mysterious, well-dressed woman who told her mother, Mrs. Mary Luciano, that she would take the infant to the Home Relief Bureau to be outfitted with new clothes.

Detectives believe it was not abduction for ransom, but that the woman had a "mother complex" and perhaps had lost a child of her own recently.

Measure Continues Government Pay Cut

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—A debate-laden independent offices supply bill, its total slashed to $569,000,000, of which approximately $546,000,000 would go to the Veterans Bureau, was reported today to the House by its Appropriations Committee.

The first appropriations bill reported this session, the measure carried the smallest request for ex-service men in many years. Also it provided for extending the Economy Act and a 10 per cent pay cut for government workers for another fiscal year.

Both Democratic and Republican leaders agreed that it would cause stormy sessions when the measure is called up tomorrow for first debate.

Republicans plan, en masse, to work against the pay cut and they will have some support from the Democratic side.

VETERANS' BUREAU

The Veterans' Bureau appropriation request was cut to $7,000,000 less than the budget estimates of $553,210,000, which were $49,627,909 less than appropriations for this fiscal year.

The reduction was effected through cuts in allotments for Civil War and private bill pensions, which probably will be made up in a deficiency bill at the next Congress.

Appropriations for the bureau in the current year amounted to $602,838,000, compared with $948,800,418 in 1933, indicating a saving of $335,962,418, largely through the economy act.

At hearings before a subcommittee headed by Representative Woodrum (Dem.), of Virginia, it was developed from Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, Veterans Administrator, that 100,000 veterans had been dropped from the presumptive rolls under the economy act.

Of veterans remaining, Hines said, 42.76 per cent were permitted to stay on the rolls by the review boards. The others are appealing their cases before the appeals tribunals set up by the President. Hines said:

"They (the 128 review boards) handled 51,397 cases made up of tuberculosis, neuro-psychiatric and general medical and surgical cases."

'LIBERAL POLICY'

He added the veterans' administration had been criticized for "our liberal policy" but said that generally speaking the work of the boards "has been excellent." The administration's policy, he said, was one "of resolving the doubt in favor of the veteran."

In discussions of the forthcoming attack on the federal pay cut section, it was disclosed that Chairman Buchanan, of the Appropriations Committee, was holding in reserve a letter to him from the President reporting that just-completed survey of living costs would make unjustifiable full restoration of the 15 per cent. pay cut ordered a year ago.

Democratic leaders said they would back the President. Mr. Roosevelt yesterday issued an executive order continuing a 15 per cent reduction for the present fiscal year ending with June.

SECOND VICTORY WON BY FORD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The automobile interests of Henry Ford were in possession of a second victory today in an effort to gain government contracts despite the refusal of the Detroit manufacturer to join the NRA.

A move by the Interior Department to turn down the low bid of a Ford company on the ground that Ford "is not a member of the NRA "was overruled late yesterday by J. R. McCarl, the Comptroller General.

He wrote Secretary Ickes that "appropriated monies" were not available to pay for other trucks already delivered to Interior Department agents at Casper, Wyo., and Salt Lake City, Utah, on the ground that the units were offered by other than the low bidder for the contract.

ALIEN ACCUSED OF BEING 'RED'

Benjamin Gerjoy, a native of Russia, described as a member of the National Miners' Union and as a former associate editor of the Mine Worker, is required in a Federal Court order to answer a bill of complaint against him, seeking cancellation of his certificate of naturalization, obtained in 1929. His last address according to the complaint, was 611 Penn avenue.

The complaint, filed by United States Attorney H. S. Dumbauld, is based on allegations made in an affidavit made by Leith L. Nettleton, senior attorney in the United States Bureau of Naturalization, Department of Labor.

The bill avers that Gerjoy in his petition for naturalization said he was attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States, but, instead at that time, was attached to the principles of the Red International of Labor Unions and the Trade Union Unity League.

It further alleges that Gerjoy has been a member of the National Miners' Union since its organization on September 9, 1928, which the bill avers, is affiliated to program principles and statutes of the Red International of Labor Unions.

WEIRTON SUIT WAITS RULING

By JOHN P. COWAN
Sun-Telegraph Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The question how to proceed against the National Steel Corporation for its alleged violation of NRA labor agreements still is before Attorney General Homer S. Cummings for his decision, following a conference of several hours last night between Judge Harold M. Stephens, of the Department of Justice; Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA Administrator, and Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor.

Several proposals were made as to possible court action. J. Lawrence Fly, special assistant to the Attorney General, who personally investigated conditions at Weirton and the other plants of the National Steel Corporation, explained details of the report he had submitted in the case.

At the conclusion of the conference it was announced that no decision had been reached. Certain recommendations would be made to the Attorney General, it was said, but the plan for court action was not disclosed.

Did Chancellor Hitler ever think of that? Will he be sorry, on the Judgment Day, that he did not think of it?

Why, in his opinion, did divine wisdom select a Jewish girl to be the mother of Christ? There were plenty of "Aryan" or "Nordic" girls on earth.

"An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth" is inadequate in Afghanistan, when an eye or a tooth of the shah is concerned.

A young student killed the shah and yesterday fourteen were put to death, including the father and two uncles of Abdul Khaliq, the young student-murderer.

IT WAS once the custom when anybody committed a crime to kill all his family or at least confiscate all their property. That seems still to hold good in Afghanistan.

The murdered shah had aroused some hostility by putting to death a number of rebellious persons by "boiling them in vegetable oil." Why "vegetable oil" was not made clear.

MOTHER WINS CHILDREN

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Supreme Court Justice William T. Collins yesterday awarded custody of John and Michael De Ruyter to their mother, Mrs. Lois Spreckels.

The mother's suit for custody of the children started last Wednesday. Justice Collins, in announcing his decision, said that the children evidently wanted their mother and were in need of a mother. They boys are 4 and 2 years old.

Mrs. Spreckels now is the wife of Adolph Spreckels, San Francisco sugar magnate, the children have been under the care of their father, Jack De Ruyter, Jr., since he and the present Mrs. Spreckels were divorced.

During the course of the hearing Spreckels, in a talk with Justice Collins in chambers, told the court that he wanted the children and felt that he was capable of caring for them with his annual income of $60,000.

ROOSEVELT FOR GUARANTEE ON FARM BONDS

First Special Message Asks Action by Congress

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt in his first special message to Congress today proposed that the government guarantee the principal of the $2,000,000,000 in bonds for refinancing of farm mortgages.

Also, in a conference with Chairman Fahey, of the Home Loan Board, he agreed that the $2,000,000,000 in Home Loan bonds should be treated on a basis of substantial equality as the farm mortgage bonds. A recommendation on methods of providing some form of government guarantee is now being prepared, but today's message did not deal with this.

The Senate and House were acquainted in the brief message with the President's conviction that the government has the moral responsibility to guarantee these issues.

MORAL OBLIGATION

He pointed out that the action recommended would put the bonds on a par with treasury securities. He said:

"It is true that technically the responsibilities of the government will be increased by the amount of $2,000,000,000, but it seems in every way right that we thus publicly acknowledge what amounts already to a moral obligation.

"In any event, the securities to be offered are backed, not only by the credit of the government, but also by physical property of very definite value."

LEADERS CONFIDENT

The Democratic leadership of Senate and House expressed no doubt that they would be able to get the legislation wanted. Bills to the end sought already were prepared, and action was to be asked without delay.

The administration farm credit measures set up a corporation with $200,000,000 capital to administer the farm credit bonds.

HOUSE COINAGE HEARING SET

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The House Coinage Committee decided today to begin hearings soon on a general program to stabilize the dollar, during which consideration will be given to silver.

Chairman Somers began preparing a list of prominent monetary experts who will be invited to testify. Among those whom committee members said they would like to hear were Bernard Baruch and Irving Fisher.

So far, committeemen said, they had been unable to determine whether President Roosevelt would agree to an expansion of his present silver program.

Some expressed hope that the hearings would convince the administration that expansion is necessary.

NAME MELLONS IN AIR MAIL PROBE

Gift of $250,000 to Lindy Revealed By Senator

tee, found a letter written on June 6, 1928, to Col. Lindbergh by C. M. Keys, president of the company, in a batch of correspondence which had been presented to him by Sheaffer.

The letter was addressed to Col. Lindbergh in care of the Guggenheim Aviation Foundation, New York. It read:

"Carrying out the memorandum of agreement, I have tied up for your account 25,000 shares of stock of Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., at $10 per share and will deliver to you a check of the Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., for $250,000 at your request.

$250,000 CHECK

"In order that all records shall be clear for income tax purposes please consult Col. Breckenridge (Lindbergh's legal adviser) and see if he agrees with the following procedure:

"1—I will deliver to you the check for $250,000 cash, together with a brief memo showing exactly what it is for, which memorandum Mr. Cuthell and Col. Breckenridge should prepare.

"2—I will deliver to you certificates for 25,000 shares of stock and receive back either the Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., check indorsed, or your personal check, according as Mr. Cuthell and Mr. Breckenridge advise.

"3—This will complete the first part of our trade and leave you with the stock in your possession.

"I suggest that you do not put very much of this stock in your possession, because when you sell it—I hope that you will sell part of it on the first favorable opportunity—either the delivery of the stock in your own name or the transfer of it on the books would excite a lot of attention which is quite unnecessary.

"Col. Breckenridge will no doubt agree with this advice."

QUIZZED ON GIFT

Senator Black examined Sheaffer closely about Lindbergh's status and the nature of the gift.

Sheaffer stated that Lindbergh then was chief of the newly formed "technical committee" of the TAT.

Senator Black asked:

"What was the gift for?"

"Well, he was doing a lot for us, surveying the country for proposed routes, etc.," replied Sheaffer.

"But he was getting a salary, a yearly salary, was he not?"

"Yes, he was getting $10,000 a year, as a retainer."

"Well, that $10,000 was for services, was it not?"

"Yes, it was for services."

"What was the nature of the gift—why was the gift given? If it was not given for services, was it given for special services?"

"I am sorry, Senator, but I know none of the details about the gift, or how it was arranged between Col. Lindbergh and Mr. Keys, nor for what services, if any, it was made."

VOTING TRUST TOLD

Black asked Sheaffer if he knew whether Lindbergh took the advice of Keys and hid his ownership of the TAT "gift" stock by putting it in a voting trust. Shaeffer replied:

"There was a voting trust, but I cannot say if Col. Lindbergh put his stock in or not."

They also were searching for "option rights" granted on stock of the company. Sheaffer testified he knew of only two such grants. One of these, he said, was to Blair & Co., the Wall street banking firm which floated stock of the firm, and , L. Maddux, president of the Maddux Air Lines, which was absorbed by the TAT.

Sheaffer was then excused from the stand.

SCORED BY RIVAL

Reading of the letter into the records recalled testimony given yesterday by Erle Halliburton, independent passenger airline operator, of Oklahoma.

Halliburton refused to merge with the Transcontinental Air Transport to save his company from being "frozen out" of an alleged air mail contract deal being arranged by Postmaster General Brown, because "TAT had been prostituting the names of Col. Lindbergh and Amelia Earhart" in order to get advantages from the Postoffice Department which would cost the taxpayers "plenty of money."

Before the committee recessed for lunch, H. Frankhouser, veteran clerk in the Postmaster General's office, testified "a huge amount" of official correspondence, written and received during the administration of Postmaster General Brown, was in the files of the office until it was burned shortly before Brown left office last March 4.

Frankhouser said he was thoroughly familiar with the correspondence and had consulted it frequently in his duties. He said he discussed the burning of the correspondence with James Maher, another clerk, who testified yesterday that he had burned the correspondence at the order of Kenneth McPherson, secretary to Postmaster General Brown.

Brown has since denied that he ordered destruction of the correspondence and has declared he did not know McPherson had ordered it burned.

Senator Black said he planned to summon Brown, Assistant Postmaster General Glover and McPherson to explain disappearance of the correspondence, most of which dealt with formulation of the McNary-Watres act. Under that measure, air mail contracts and extension of air lines were accomplished to the dertiment of all independent passenger air line operators except the Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., and an independent company hastily formed by the Mellons.

Young Hoover's presence in the capital at the time of the merger and contract negotiations had brought criticism by independent air line operators who were frozen out of the "new aviation picture" being drawn by the larger operators, with Brown.

Senator Black asked Sheaffer:

"Did you meet young Mr. Hoover in the office of Postmaster General Brown?"

He replied:

"No. I met him either in Mr. MacCracken's office or the office of somebody else interested in aviation."

The MacCracken to whom he referred was William P. MacCracken, former Assistant Secretary of Commerce in charge of aviation at that time, and executive chairman of what has been described as a "mysterious committee" appointed by Brown to revise the air transportation map of the country.

Pittsburgh Airmen Called in Mail Quiz

Called to Washington to testify to what they know about their failure to get the air mail contract, although their bid was low, James Condon, president, and Ted Taney, vice president of the defunct Pittsburgh Airways, Inc., left Pittsburgh today. They expected to testify before the Senate committee investigating air mail contracts tomorrow.

The contract was awarded to Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., a consolidated group, of which Pittsburgh Aviation Industries was a member.

The 5 per cent interest in Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., given Pittsburgh Aviation Industries in the consolidation was recalled as having been the controlling factor for the present administration of TWA.

Richard W. Robbins, formerly president of Pittsburgh Aviation Industries, is now chairman of the board of TWA. The airport, which was a consideration in the deal, is the Pittsburgh-Butler Airport, used almost exclusively for repair shop activities and as a training base for Pittsburgh School of Aviation, a subsidiary of Pittsburgh Aviation Industries. The airport is not on the East-West airways, nor has it been used for any of the TWA activities, which, in Pittsburgh, are centered on the Allegheny County municipal airport.

Senators Wouldn't Walk a Mile for 5-Cent Beer

WWASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Where can a Senator get a 5-cent glass of beer?

This question was injected into Senate debate today when Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, a dry, asked whether brewers had kept their promise to furnish beer at 5 cents a glass. Senator Pat Harrison (Dem.), of Mississippi, replied:

"I have no personal experience on the subject, but I have heard there is no such thing as 5-cent beer."

Senator Clark (Dem.), of Missouri, interposed:

"Oh, Mr. President, I am informed that beer is being sold at 5 cents a glass all over the city of Baltimore, just a few miles from here."

Harrison retorted:

RUM TAX BILL TAKEN UP IN SENATE

Harrison Estimates $627,000,000 in Revenue

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—A debate on the war debts broke out in the Senate today when Senator Clark (Dem.), of Missouri, offered an amendment to the House liquor tax bill to place excise taxes over and above the tariffs on liquors from nations behind in their war debts to this country.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Urging the Senate today to speed action on the new liquor tax bill, Chairman Harrison, of the Finance Committee, estimated it would bring revenues of $627,000,000.

Democratic leaders pressed for a vote before nightfall on the measure, which would place a $2-a-gallon federal tax on spirits.

When Harrison, after explaining the bill's provisions, said the committee rejected an amendment to lower the beer tax from $5 to $3, Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, prohibitionist, called attention to arguments last session that a $5 levy would permit the sale of a 5-cent glass of beer.

He asked:

"Has that happened?

Harrison replied:

"I haven't had the actual experience but information I have received shows they haven't lived up to that."

Senator Clark (Dem.), of Missouri, observed 5-cent beer was available "all over Baltimore" but Harrison said amid laughter that was "too far to go for a glass of beer." Harrison said:

"The situation in this country is improving daily. We are on the road to recovery and such legislation as this will give the movement impetus."

The Senate adopted an amendment to the bill to permit newspapers and periodicals carrying liquor advertisements to circulate in dry states.

Liberalized by the House through amendments, a bill to legalize liquor in the District of Columbia—passed by the House without a record vote—was sent to the Senate today.

ROOSEVELT FOR RAIL DEBT CUT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt strongly favors the establishment by railroads of sinking funds to pay off their mortgage indebtedness.

The President feels that if the carriers had been reducing their bonded indebtedness they would have avoided the serious threat of bankruptcy which faced some major lines last spring.

At the same time, he thinks the Interstate Commerce Commission and other regulatory agencies should take into account the attempt of the roads to pay off their mortgage debts by allowing them sufficient earnings to meet their requirements.

It was disclosed today at the White House that one of the largest roads in the country was faced with receivership last March.

RFC EXTENSION URGED IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Jesse H. Jones, Reconstruction Corporation chairman, told the House banking committee today that President Roosevelt was willing to accept the Senate banking committee's plan to extend the RFC for one year and increase its capitalization by $800,000,000.

Jones said the question of making RFC securities eligible for rediscount at Federal Reserve banks was one for the committee to decide since "it doesn't make a particle of difference to the RFC."

He expressed doubt as to the advisability of permitting the RFC to make direct loans to industry, holding that small industries could obtain loans from banks and mortgage companies under already established procedure.

Mrs. Kemp Testifies In Louisiana Fight

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Defending her election to the House of Representatives from the Sixth Louisiana District, Mrs. Bolivar E. Kemp told a House elections committee today that Senator Huey P. Long "supported me because of my strength."

Testifying on the contest with J. R. Sanders, Jr., over the House seat, Mrs. Kemp asserted she had no knowledge Long was supporting her until she read it in a newspaper.

Sheet & Tube Plans Expansion of Plants

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Operation of two new railroad spike machines with a capacity of 1,000 tons a month and expansion of an electric weld pipe mill to cost $500,000, were announced today by Frank Purnell, president of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company.

The spike machines have been installed in the Struthers (O.) plant. The pipe mill is in a Youngstown plant.

Cancel Order to Deport Mine Union Secretary

The order of the Department of Labor for deportation of Frank Borich, 34, of Pittsburgh, an alien, national secretary of the National Miners' Union, has been cancelled, according to word received last night from Washington by Attorney Jacob Seligsohn, of Pittsburgh, who has represented Borich in a long legal contest through the various government courts. The case was recently taken before the Supreme Court for review.

Attorney Seligsohn said he received the information from W. W. Browne, assistant to general counsel of the Bureau of Immigration. Borich on March 31, 1932, was arrested in the headquarters of the National Miners' Union, Fourth avenue, by immigration authorities and subsequently ordered deported for alleged radical activities.

Later the deportation order was upheld by both the Federal District Court and the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, and Borich, through council carried the fight to the Supreme Court, which consented to review the case. The cancellation of the deportation order, together with the warrant of arrest, as reported to Seligsohn, came as a surprise to government authorities here.

Borich came to this country in 1931 from Jugoslavia. He has an American wife and twins, born in the North Side 16 months ago. The Department of Labor charges Borich had declared adherence to the principles of the Red International of Labor Unions and that he had been active for the Communist party in America. Borich denied the government's allegations.

WOMAN FOUND GIBBERING IN STABLE CELL

Husband Was Grilled After Discovery of Fliers' Dead Baby

RIDGEFIELD PARK, N. J., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Detectives strove today to piece together the strange story surrounding the imprisonment of a naked madwoman in a dirty, unheated, closet-like room over a stable on the old Barnes estate.

The woman, Mrs. Sophie Cerardi, 42, pronounced insane by a county physician, meanwhile was receiving medical attention at the county hospital, Bergen Pines.

The two other characters of the strange tale—the two alleged jailers—Joseph Cerardi, 34, the woman's husband, and his housekeeper, Miss Mary Griffin, 35, were held under arrest in county jail on charges of false imprisonment, and authorities said there was a possibility of a second charge of abusing an insane person.

LINDY CASE SUSPECT

Much police interest centered on the husband, a former middleweight pugilist, who they said was questioned in the Lindbergh kidnaping case after the body of the murdered Lindbergh baby was found near a shack where Cerardi stayed occasionally at Hopewell.

Cerardi, also known as Geradi, rented the four-room apartment above the stable almost two years ago. Neighbors told police they saw his wife arrive with him and she was then apparently in good health. When police found her last night she had wasted away to 60 pounds.

When Cerardi was arrested last night police said he acknowledged keeping his wife locked up, but denied mistreating her. He said he had taken her from a state institution where she had been committed as mentally unbalanced and was keeping her with him "for her own benefit."

DEATH THREAT CHARGED

Police entered the case late yesterday at the request of Mrs. Cerardi's sister, Mrs. Loretta Regenstruf, of the Bronx, who complained that Cerardi had repeatedly refused to allow her to see her sister, and allegedly threatened "to bump her off" if she told anyone he kept her sister locked up.

Prosecutor Lieut. Nathan Allyn said Mrs. Regenstruf had also informed him that Cerardi had insured his wife's life for $10,000. Allyn said this information would be investigated today to determine if it had any bearing on the case.

When police went to the barn, which is at the end of a winding lane behind a tall hedgerow, the housekeeper first refused them admission—relenting when they threatened to break down the door. They then prevailed upon her to surrender the key to the 6 feet by 8 feet room in which Mrs. Cerardi was locked.

NAKED 'WILD WOMAN'

The door was opened, officers later reported, and they found Mrs. Cerardi huddled naked on the bed, gibbering wildly. Both windows in the cubicle had been boarded up, and the bed was the only article of furniture in the room. A soiled blanket was thrown across the bare, dirty mattress.

The woman was taken to a hospital and police waited several hours before Cerardi entered the apartment and was arrested, together with the housekeeper. They were questioned and committed to county jail. There Cerardi, who is known generally as Joseph, said his real first name was Carmelli, and gave his occupation as a bootblack. The housekeeper told police she did not know her employer's occupation and said as far as she knew he had no way of earning a living.

EX-WIFE OF LAWYER

Cerardi was Mrs. Cerardi's second husband, police said. She was divorced from a New York lawyer named Joseph Maran, by whom she had one son, Charles, now 22. Charles lived with Cerardi in the flat over the stable, police learned, but they were not able to locate him for questioning. The Cerardis married about eight years ago.

Police said they had learned Mrs. Cerardi had been mentally unbalanced before she came to the old stable and had received hospital treatment. One detective expressed the opinion that her mental condition might be traceable to the squalid conditions under which she had been living.

Mrs. Cerardi was described as a woman of intellectual attainments who could speak seven languages. When officers opened the door of her prison, she used four languages in her incoherent replies to their questioning.

WYNEKOOP CASE NEAR TRIAL, SON HIDES

Earle Barricades Self In House of Death To Balk Inquiry

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Behind dust-colored shades in a gloomy stone house on West Monroe street, Earle Wynekoop, whose mother, Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, is about to be tried for the murder of Rheta Gardner Wynekoop, his wife, is in hiding today.

They have waited for more than a week to ask him a question. One question they forgot to ask during the weeks he was in prison under suspicion. A question of utmost importance on the eve of the gaunt woman physician's trial for the most startling murder Chicago has seen since the Loeb-Leopold case.

Earle Wynekoop will not come out.

This situation was uncovered today when this correspondent rang the doorbell of the house in which the red-haired Rheta met her death last November on her mother-in-law's operating table. The bell sounded behind windows' closed lids like a shout in a

Then someone beckoned from a blue limousine half way down the block. A man who flashed a star-shaped shield said:

"Looking for Earle Wynekoop? So are we!"

He explained, under inquiry. He and his companion (they gave morgue. their names) were one of two shifts who have been on guard at the Wynekoop house since a week ago Tuesday. That was when it was discovered Earle had not been asked the important something which the state wants to know before the trial begins tomorrow. The investigator said:

"He knows we are here. He knows we have no warrant to enter the house. He won't answer the bell."

The men would not reveal the nature of the question they wish to put to Earle.

Barricaded in his solitude, Earle Wynekoop has not even ventured forth this week to see his mother in the hospital ward of Cook County Jail.

Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, Earle's sister, and Walker Wynekoop, the brother, have been there frequently. But no friends have called. The warden said:

"Dr. Wynekoop is calm, but she gives me the impression it would not take much to make her sick. When our doctor asked her how she felt, she said, 'I'm going into court Thursday.' That was that."

BRIDE ELOPED WITH BOARDER, SAYS MATE

'See You in Graveyard With Bones,' Note Wins Divorce

The elopement of a young Bellevue bride with another man had its aftermath in divorce court today when Chester O. Wheeler, 26, of 113 Washington avenue, Bellevue, was granted a divorce by Judge Harry H. Rowand.

The Wheelers were married September 11, 1911. On July 2, 1932, Wheeler asked county detectives to search for his wife after he reported discovery of a "farewell" note she had pinned to a pillow. He said she had eloped with a boarded in their home.

Wheeler testified his wife, Elizabeth Wheeler, 19, would not cook or do housework. One day he came home from work, he said, and found this note:

"My Dear Hubby:

"I don't like to do this, but I believe it is best, and that it is the only way out of the whole thing, the only way any of us can be happy. I can see now that you and I made a great mistake in getting married. I did not know it until last week. I have stood all I can up to now, so I guess it is boodbye. God bless you. Maybe you will find the right one some day.

"Betty.

She came back to him four days later, he said, and was forgiven, but later, he testified, he had to put her out of the house because of an association with another man.

SOCIETY WOMAN SAVED IN SEA

GEORGETOWN, S. C., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Carried out towards the open ocean by strong currents while swimming, Mrs. Van Wyck Ferris, Wilmington (Del.) social registerite, was found clinging to the south jetty of Mannyas Bay yesterday after 24 hours of exposure.

A party headed by Winthrop Ford, superintendent of the Cat Island estate of her mother, Mrs. Caroline J. Ramsay, found Mrs. Ferris. Believing her drowned, Ford had gone to the jetty in expectation that the tides would cast up the body there.

She was taken to a cottage owned by Mrs. Ramsay on South Island and put to bed, but Dr. F. A. Bell, of Georgetown, who was called to examine her, said she apparently had suffered no ill effects from her 24 hours exposure without food.

U. S. TO ADMIT 'RED EMMA'

When the Labor Department pointed out that Mrs. Colton was Emma Goldman, the famous "Red Emma" deported to Russia in 1919 as an anarchist, it set the news wires to humming.

After obtaining a promise that she would behave, politically speaking, while in the United States, the Bureau of Immigration said the former Miss Goldman would be permitted to re-enter for 90 days for the announced purpose of visiting relatives.

Now 64 years old and the wife of a Welsh coal miner, Miss Goldman was known around the world when she toured this country with Alexander Berkman, preaching anarchism.

After Berkman was sentenced to prison for an attempt to kill Henry Clay Frick, Pittsburgh steel man, she worked alone, but later teamed again until convicted of attempting to obstruct the World War draft.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

The Republican National Committee came out strongly against Roosevelt's economic policy. The deficit of the Republican national committee has been published. It is the biggest on record.

California's Supreme Court has ruled that if male students of a state university took all the advantages of free education, that a little military training would not be asking too much of them.

If you are going to let out conscientious objectors nobody would take anything but football, swimming, theatricals, and saxaphone playing, (all of which the state provide).

NAGLE DAMAGE CLAIM FOUGHT

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The defense in the suit of Miss Theodora M. Nagle, who asks damages because of statements in the late Theodore M. Nagle's will, opened its case today with testimony Miss Nagle is not the daughter of the manufacturer, who died in 1925.

Witnesses testified that Nagle and his estranged wife, Mrs. Agnes Nagle, had not lived together for three years prior to Miss Nagle's birth.

The suit is based on a statement in the will that Nagle had two children only, Elizabeth and Bailey, and claims from other persons claiming to be his children would be fraudulent.

The defense was expected to rest shortly and the case reach the jury late today or tomorrow.

LIBBY CROONING AT SON'S PARTY

By KATHERINE GRANTHAM
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The stage is set for Libby Holman, former $1,500-a-week torch singer, to do some real lyrics today.

No. She is not yet returning to Broadway, her manager, Walter Batchelor, said. Her songs will be strictly home numbers, but with special gayety, for today her blue-eyed son, Smith Reynolds, will be just a year old.

Clifton Webb, former dance partner and now starring in "As Thousands Cheer," said Libby had reminded all her friends of the anniversary, recalling the time when she first saw her tiny son and heir to tobacco millions. But the celebration is not in New York. Webb said:

"I wouldn't say where it is. They are not in the city now."

VALLEE TO DENY ALL CHARGES

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—In an answer to be filed this week, Rudy Vallee, radio crooner, will deny every charge made by his estranged wife, Fay Webb Vallee, in a separate maintenance suit she filed here, Vallee's attorney, Samuel S. Zagon, announced today.

A definite plan of action will be prepared when Vallee's New York attorney, Hyman Bushel, arrives this week.

Mrs. Vallee, whose complaint charged that Vallee associated with Alice Faye, film actress, and two other women, unnamed, remained secluded today at the home of her father, Police Chief C. E. Webb, of Santa Monica, who said that she was ill and exhausted from the ordeal of starting the Los Angeles action.

Vallee reiterated that he would fight the case in California and that he has no definite plans for divorce.

MRS. ROOSEVELT TOURS SCHOOLS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—That familiar pair, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mrs. Henry W. Morgenthau, Jr., toured Washington public schools yesterday, traveling in the blue sports car of the President's wife.

Almost shyly, the comely, dark-haired, brown-eyed Mrs. Morgenthau followed in the swift footsteps of tall, blue-eyed Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, inspecting the free lunch systems for this city's poorer school children.

They saw a student council in operation. They inspected a vocational school where girls were learning how to marcelle hair and manicure fingernails along with bookish subjects.

Mrs. Roosevelt, in her talks with school authorities, asked what provision was being made to prevent the children receiving the free lunches from feeling the "stigma" of charity upon them.

'KIDNAP' GIRL'S FRIEND SOUGHT

Search for the youth with whom Frances Weibley, 16-year-old Schenley High School student told police she spent the four days she was missing had been without result today, according to Center avenue police.

Miss Weibley returned to her home Monday night and said she had been kidnaped and kept a prisoner in Turtle Creek. When police questioned her yesterday she denied the kidnaping story and said she had been with her "boy friend." Police said the address of the youth given to them by the girl was wrong.

Pup Stops Traffic By Taking Seat Under Trolley

Declining to be coaxed from his post under a street car at Forbes street and Craft avenue, a small Boston terrier tied up rush hour traffic more than 20 minutes late yesterday.

Maybe it was vengeance. Anyway, he'd been treated most discourteously when he'd tried earlier to board a street car, and when the next one came along he settled between the front trucks and stayed there.

Railways company employes were forced to jack up the car before the pup, unresponsive to coaxing and prodding, took to his heels.

Weather Conditions.

While the pressure is high over most of the country, there is considerable cloudiness, especially east of the Mississippi River, and light snow is falling at scattered places in the Ohio Valley states and the lake region. West of the Mississippi the skies are mostly clear. Temperature changes since yesterday were slight, towards colder over the Atlantic Coast states and warmer over the Mississippi Valley and the Northwest. There is no cold weather on the map and no cold weather is indicated for the next several days.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling. Stage at Franklin is 5.4 feet; Lock No. 7 (Mon.) 17.3; Pittsburgh 17.5; Dam No. 4, 16.0; No. 6, 18.1; No. 10, 20.4, and No. 12, 22.7. The dams are down. The rivers will continue to fall. Stage indicated at Pittsburgh Thursday morning about 16.5 feet.

anybody but himself, the priest said.

M'NAIR-M'CREADY BOUT

Now as to the McNair-McCready bawling out:

The Mayor said that when McCready appeared for work today—his first day as director of the Mayor's new home-making department—the playboy seemed to have been playboying last night. So the Mayor said he told him:

"You come back in a week and if you can tell me you haven't had a drop to drink you can go to work on this thing."

Now the Councilman Demmler:

"The idea that I would vote for such a rediculous appointment (McCready's) is utterly silly."

As to Mr. Evans, the councilmanic nominee who retired in favor of William A. Magee; Mr. Evans strode into the Mayor's office, criticized the McCready appointment and charged that His Honor or His Honor's secretary—Theodore L. Moritz—had been misquoted by the newspaper.

The Mayor called in reporters to hear the attack, then defended the published reports.

TYSON IN WIND-UP

But let us get on to the next balwing-out.

Scholarly Dr. Tyson, economics professor at Pitt, told the Mayor His Honor's objectives on this housing problem were all right but that his methods were wrong.

The apple vendor strolled into the Mayor's office. The Mayor invited newspapermen to have an apple; they all did. Not one complaint was heard. The Mayor himself not only had an apple; he had, too, a pretzel.

LINK LIBRARIES, M'NAIR URGES

Mayor McNair today suggested to Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute, that North Side Carnegie Library be made a branch of the main library system instead of a separate unit.

The Mayor's idea, he said, was to save expenes. He added:

"If the librarian there is a purely political appointment, it wouldn't do any harm to do away with his job altogether."

Church said that, while the board of trustees never had considered the move, they would be glad to take under advisement any suggestion of the Mayor.

The Mayor said he would refer the matter to his budget advisers, and if they approved he would make a recommendation to Council.

U. S. TO PRESS RUM POLICY

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Indications that the United States may continue the principle of insisting on concessions for American goods abroad in return for foreign liquor shipments to this country were forthcoming from the White House today.

Although no decision has been taken as to whether the policy of allotting specific quotas to each foreign nation shall be continued after March 31, it was intimated President Roosevelt favors the principle of using the liquor import trade as a means of obtaining trade concessions.

Whether it will prove more advantageous to abandon the liquor quota system in favor of the revenues that might be collected on an unrestricted flow of foreign trade has not yet been determined.

LINK SLOT BOX 'HIGHER-UPS'

County detectives made two arrests and seized slot machines during raids on a Wilkinsburg confectionery and a Penn Township barbecue this afternoon. William Topper, of 814 Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, and Paul Roberts, of Sandy Creek, were arrested.

Topper, after a hearing before Justice of the Peace George H. Shields, of Wilkinsburg, was held for court on a charge of maintaining gambling devices and released on $2,500 bail. Roberts is in jail awaiting a hearing before Alderman Andrew Maloney. Both men have implicated "higher-ups," including a Sam Rost and a John McCauley, as the real owners of the machines, according to detectives.

Eight Here Refused Liquor Licenses

Eight applicants in Pittsburgh and vinicity were refused liquor licenses by the State Liquor Control Board today, according to an Associated Press dispatch. They are:

Theodore B. Razickis, 226-28 Beaver avenue; Joseph Moogerman, 2442 Wylie avenue; Andrew Elias, 932 Spring Garden avenue; and Elmer A. Geisel, 820 Warrington avenue, all in Pittsburgh; Louis Sharon, Springdale; Lutz and Ira Weichel, Sharpsburg; Sylvester G. Ackerman, Whitaker, and Domenic Battaglia, Clairton.

Jobless Demand Council Cut Own Pay to Aid Poor

The Unemployed Council of Pittsburgh today asked City Council to appropriate $1,500,000 for relief needs.

Philip Frankfeld, representing the unemployed, told members of Council that present relief measures were inadequate. He added:

"Perhaps Council should have accepted the Mayor's idea of cutting his salary $5,000. Councilmen might cut their own salaries."

A large delegation of unemployed applauded.

Council was to meet with directors of several departments in the McNair administration to urge them to cut their 1934 budget with a view to slicing $2,000,000 from the hold-over budget of the old regime.

POLICE GUARD OWN BALLOTS

The police were watching each other today.

They were holding the annual election of directors to the Police Pension Fund Association.

And there were two tickets in the field—one composed of the present officers, the other an opposition slate.

CITY PAYROLLS HELD UP

City police and fire bureau payrolls are being held up for the last two weeks of December until Council can authorize the payment of more money than was set up for the bureaus in the 1933 budget.

The payroll thus held up amounts to approximately $150,000. The excess of the expenditure over the appropriation amounts to about $90,000, according to records in the City Controller's office.

Cash for the city's current expenses is now being paid into the city treasury. In addition to the payments of large corporations, long lines of taxpayers are appearing at the City Treasurer's office to settle their tax bills.

M'NAIR INVITES HENRY CONFAB

Mayor McNair today sent word to John M. Henry, whom he defeated for the mayoralty nomination, to drop around to His Honor's office.

It is understood McNair wants to see whether Henry would accept the troublesome public safety director's post.

Henry said:

"I found a note on my desk that the Mayor would like to see me. I don't know anything about it. I am busy practicing law."

M'NAIR SCORES 'MEDDLING' BY COUNCIL

taxicab rates, I shall tell him to do so if he has the time. There is a heavy press of work in the law department, and only a small force.

"I might, for instance, not think the time appropriate to attack utility rates.

"If Council should instruct the Director of Health to make a survey of garbage conditions, I would instruct him to do so only if he had nothing more important.

"Department heads are responsible to the Mayor.

REVIEWS DISPUTES

McNair then harked back to the last episode in the series of clashes between himself and Councilmen John J. Kane, Thomas J. Gallagher, Walter R. Demmler and John M. Houston. He asked:

"Why should a group of councilmen inform the Safety Director and the Superintendent of Police that there will be no politics in the police department? What business is that of Council?

"Suppose I wanted the police in politics; who would they obey?"

It has been insisted repeatedly that when the councilmen visited the office of Director of Public Safety Harmar D. Denny, Jr., several days ago they did so for social reasons. Patronage and other business were not discussed, according to Denny, Supt. Ben Marshall and the councilmen.

But a few hours later McNair issued a ringing statement, telling Council to mind its own business.

The biggest clash of all, of course, came when the Democratic bloc lined itself up against the naming of James F. Malone as McNair's safety director.

3—A resolution ordering Moyer to inspect sites and plans for garbage disposal plants, also introduced by Huston.

Magee in Council Finance Committee meeting yesterday reminded the Councilmen that they had no right to order directors to take action on anything but the budget and that such resolutions should be directed to the Mayor.

Fake Cash Flood Held Sign of Prosperity

HARRISBURG, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Add signs of returning prosperity:

Counterfeit $100 bills are back again.

Hunting down traffickers in bogus money throughout Eastern Pennsylvania, government agents say several of them have appeared in the anthracite region for the first time in months.

COST OF FARE SUIT SOUGHT BY CITY

The fare-cut program of the Democratic party, as expressed in resolutions now before Council, had moved forward another step today.

A resolution notifying President Frank R. Phillips, of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, to report within 30 days his plans—if any—to reduce fixed charges of his company, raise the efficiency of its operations, improve service and lower fares, awaited only for the formal approval of Council.

SCULLY SEEKS COSTS

Having been approved by Council's Public Service and Surveys Committee yesterday, its approval by Council next Monday is regarded as certain.

If Phillips has no constructive ideas, a Public Service Commission rate case may follow, with the city of Pittsburgh the complainant.

Council, meanwhile, is to seek the opinion of City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully on the probable cost and success of rate cases against the Parmelee Transportation Company and the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company.

MAGEE'S ATTITUDE

Councilman W. A. Magee, discussing the cost of fighting rate cases before the Public Service Commission, said:

'I think there's a way the thing can be done pretty cheaply. The last Council was informed a rate case would cost half a million dollars and take three to four years. I don't believe that."

Why M'Nair Dodged Schnitz Fete

Two Varied Reasons Offered, Both by Mayor Himself

There were two different explanations today of why Mayor William N. McNair didn't show up last night at his schnitz and knepp banquet. Both were the Mayor's. The first:

"I was in the kitchen and noticed a slice of ham on the plate. That's not schnitz and knepp. The ham should be cooked in it. So I left."

The second was that the Mayor heard of the illness of Police Magistrate Charles F. Papale's father, John Papale, 78, and went at once to see the magistrate, who also is ill. Both Papales were recovering today.

Eighty-nine guests partook of schnitz and knepp, prepared particularly for McNair. It was, said Council President Robert Garland:

David L. Lawrence, Democratic county chairman, was toastmaster? He guessed:

"The Mayor must have gone out to eat."

Schnitz and knepp was praised roundly here and there among the guests. Out at Mayview the inmates are interested in the dish. Southard Hay, director of welfare, announced. He said:

Must Have Gone Out To Eat, Lawrence View on Mayor

"I think we'll get the proper mixture and submit it to the dietician. I think it can cure lots of ills down there."

Mrs. Albert C. Storch, of 339 Birmingham avenue, and Mrs. Sarah Rohrbacker, of 324 Cedarhurst street, who cooked the now-famous Mennonite dish, said the Mayor told them he had to leave for "an important engagement" in East Liberty.

MEET TO STUDY SLUM RIDDANCE

A conference which may prove highly important in Pittsburgh's efforts toward slum elimination has been arranged by Council and other city officials for Friday afternoon, when they are to meet with Robert D. Kohn, head of the Federal Housing Corporation of the Public Works Administration.

Joseph P. Tufts, director of the Pittsburgh Housing Association, and Frederick Bigger, well-known city planner, will attend. Friday night a dinner meeting will be held at the Hotel Schenley for citizens interested in better housing. Kohn and Sir Raymond Unwin, British housing authority, will speak.

Mt. Pleasant Man Refused Appeal

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The Supreme Court today refused to allow the appeal of Donald MacDonald, 42, accountant of Mt. Pleasant, adjudged guilty of contempt of court in Westmoreland County last April.

MacDonald was sentenced to one year in Westmoreland County Prison on the contempt charge which resulted from a remark he was alleged to have made after a trial argument in a case in which he was involved.

Brown to Testify To 'Facts' If Asked

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Walter F. Brown, former Postmaster General, whose air mail contract awards are under scrutiny by a Senate committee, said today he would appear before the committee, if asked, to testify "to the facts."

RACKETEER LINK OUSTS SLEUTH

The McNair administration today gave warning that it will tolerate no member of the police bureau suspected of any connection with racketeers.

City Detective Edward Bailey, Negro, was discharged by Public Safety Director Harmar D. Denny, Jr., on charges of neglect of duty and fraternizing with numbers writers and other racketeers of the Hill district.

Bailey became a member of the detective bureau in 1930 through the influence of Gus Greenlee, Negro political leader of the Hill, and served through the Kline and Herron administrations.

10 G.E. DISHWASHERS

in a new easy Climalene letter contest

"Why is Climalene, the quick cleanser, water softener and soap saver, the fastest selling preparation of its kind in America today?"

★ ★ ★

Offer made solely to induce you to more quickly try CLIMALENE, the quick cleanser, water softener and soap saver that makes clothes whiter, that makes dishes gleam and sparkle . . . just like new

WOULD you like to win a General Electric Dishwasher, valued at $197.00, absolutely free? If you would, you can do it in the new, easy, Climalene Letter Contest. We are giving away 10 of them, in a simple Contest that everyone has a chance to win.

Here's what you do. Write us a letter of 100 words or less, answering this simple question: "Why is Climalene, the quick cleanser, water softener and soap saver, the fastest-selling preparation of its kind in America today?" Good grammar, spelling and writing do not count. It's the answer to that question that we want to hear about. That's easy, isn't it?

10 General Electric Dishwashers free for the 10 best answers to this question. "Why is Climalene, the quick cleanser, water softener and soap saver, the fastest selling preparation of its kind in America today?"

CONTEST RULES

1—Write us a letter of 100 words or less in your own words answering this question — Why is Climalene, the quick cleanser, water softener and soap saver, the fastest-selling preparation of its kind in America today?" Send your answer with four fronts of the Climalene package, giving your name and address, to The Climalene Company, Canton, Ohio.

2—If any two people tie for one of the 10 G-E Dishwashers, additional prizes will be awarded. Entries will be judged for advertising value and truthfulness. Judges are — Miss Florence Le Ganke, Home Economics Editor, Cleveland Press; Mrs. Ida Migliario, Editor, Household Magazine; Mary Meade, Cooking Editor, Chicago Tribune. The judges' decisions will be final. No contest entry will be returned.

3—The entries must be postmarked by midnight Wednesday, January 31, 1934.

4—Prize winners will be notified by special delivery mail as soon as possible after the contest closes, and their names will be announced over the radio.

5—If you are unable to get Climalene from your grocer, four facsimiles will be accepted with the letter.

When your letter is written, mail it to The Climalene Company, spelled C-L-I-M-A-L-E-N-E, Canton, Ohio, together with four fronts of the Climalene package, or reasonably exact copies of the fronts will do. Mark your name and address plainly.

If you send in one of the ten best letters, best in the opinion of the judges, whose decisions will be final, you will receive a beautiful General Electric Dishwasher with the sink finished in stainless steel, monel-metal, or porcelain enamel, valued at $197.00, installed in your home, at no cost. In case any two people tie for one of the 10 prizes, duplicate awards will be given. The contest closes at midnight, Wednesday, January 31st.

How Climalene Works

This offer is made solely to induce you to more quickly try Climalene. It is not a soap — but a water softening cleanser which changes hard water to soft, gentle, rain water. Sprinkle it into your dishwater or washing water, a teaspoon or two. Climalene softens water — instantly dissolves food stains, grease, dirt and grime from clothes and dishes. You use just ½ the soap . . . your working time is cut ½ or more. White clothes come out shades whiter. Colored clothes emerge from the washing far cleaner, softer and fresher-looking than ever before. Climalene also makes dishes wink and twinkle just like gay displays in the finest shops, and your hands stay soft and smooth. For new ease, new economy wherever you use water for cleaning, try Climalene.

Easy To Win

Here's an example of how a woman in Grand Rapids won a similar contest. It shows how easy you can win — "Climalene being a water softener, keeps my hands in perfect condition; being a soap saver, it is economical to use; being a quick cleansing agent, gives one more leisure time, whiter clothes and sparkling dishes. I like Climalene best because it saves time and reduces the number of packages of washing powder, etc., in my home."

So go to your nearest General Electric Dealer and see the amazing Dishwasher that gives you more playtime hours. Get Climalene from your grocer. Try it at once. Don't delay. Enter the Contest now. You may win the very Dishwasher you've always wanted.

Listen in . . . The Climalene Carnival . . . Radio's biggest morning show. Tuesday and Thursday, 11:30 A. M., E. S. T. — NBC-WEAF network.

ELY TAKES LEAD IN BRIDGE TILT

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The favorites remained firmly entrenched as the second round of the United States Bridge Association contract pair championships passed into history early today.

Reversing somewhat the order of previous listings when his wife had topped the lists, Ely Culbertson and his partner, Theodore A. Lightner, led the field at the halfway mark with a point total of 498.5.

Mrs. Culbertson and her partner, Albert H. Morehead, had receded to fifth position with 483.5 points, with the following intervening: Michael Gottlieb and Howard Schenken, New York, second with 497; A. M. Barnes and Edward Hymes, third with 494; A. P. Stockvis and Leroy Thurtell, of Albuquerque, N. M., fourth with 488.5.

Last night's scores were cumulative towards the finals tonight in which the champion pair will be selected. The major team of four event—with represetnatives from every section of the nation competing—begins tomorrow.

Edgeworth Bridge Club Leads League

Winning five matches and losing one, the Edgeworth Bridge Club was in undisputed leadership of the Inter-Club Duplicate Contract Bridge League, the standing revealed today. The Harvard-Yale-Princeton and Keystone clubs, with four victories and two losses, were tied for second place. The rating of the others is: University Club, Pittsburgh Golf Club, Duquesne Club, Pittsburgh Athletic Association and the Engineers Society.

FLOOD ATTENDS TRADE PARLEY

A. Patrick Flood, East Liberty Chamber of Commerce manager, is to leave for Washington tomorrow to attend a conference of national directors of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. Mr. Flood, who is a director, is also editor-in-chief of "Nacos News," official publication of the national association.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss plans for closer co-operation of local chambers of commerce with the national chamber in bringing about a more speedy recovery.

Workers' Chief Here For Anniversary

The thirtieth anniversary of the Pittsburgh branch of the Workmen's Circle, an organization composed of Jewish workers, will be celebrated Sunday at 6 p. m. with a banquet in the Y. M. & W. H. A. Building.

Mr. Weinberg

The principal speaker will be J. Weinberg, of New York, president of the circle. The committee in charge includes Morris Tobias, J. Fingerett, Benjamin Siegel, Joseph Torn, Max Weisman, Isaac Chriss, Sam Richman, Abe Solomon, Jacob Cohen, Sam Leiss, Julius Weisberg, Samuel Oshry, Nathan Malyn, Sam Schechter, Max Gelbert, Jacob Herman and Selig Gelbman.

Judge, Newspapers Recover Lost Kitten

"Mike" is back home again.

"Mike" is the kitten Helen Gould, 14, of 922 Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg, told Judge M. A. Musmanno, had wandered away from home. Helen thought she was talking to county detectives but the call had been connected with Judge Musmanno's telephone.

After listening to her story, Judge Musmanno assured the girl he would see that county detectives did something about it. The county detectives told the newspapers. The newspapers did the rest.

So "Mike" is back home again after an absence of six days.

C. W. A. CENSUS STARTS JAN. 17

A definite date for the opening of the Civil Works property inventory and unemployment census has been announced by T. A. Veenstra and E. N. Montague, of the Business Research Bureau, University of Pittsburgh, directing the survey in conjunction with N. D. Moeller.

The project is to start January 17.

Knoxville Autoist Cleared in Death

W. W. Witz, 40, of 214 Bausman street, Knoxville, was acquitted of involuntary manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. Hilda Cooper, 40, of Beck's Run road, as the result of automobile injuries sustained January 11, 1933. The woman was struck by a hit-and-run driver. Witz proved an alibi, the jury bringing in its verdict in 20 minutes.

LAWYERS BACK BALLOT ACT

Approval of the permanent registration act, awaiting the action of Gov. Pinchot, was given by a group of Allegheny County attorneys in a letter to Attorney General William A. Schnader today.

Disagreeing with assertions that the act as passed by the Legislature does not prohibit non-registered persons from voting, the letter pointed out sections of the bill which the attorneys said required voters to register.

The letter was signed by Alex P. Lindsay, chairman of the Pennsylvania Election Law Conference; Edward O. Tabor, chairman of the state affairs committee, Civic Club of Allegheny County; Edward C. Boyle, William B. McFall, John M. Henry and Ralph H. Frank. It concluded:

"The act seems to us to constitute a workable system of registration, and in our opinion, while not perfect, is a distinct step forward. The veto of this legislation, which is the product of many years of determined effort by large groups of our citizens, would be a serious blow to clean elections."

2 Months in Jail For Theft of Pass

Simon Castoreno, [illegible], Mexican, yesterday in Federal Court was sentenced to two months in jail for using a Pennsylvania Railroad pass issued to Corenlio Duarte, a trackman.

Castoreno, who has one leg, a long criminal record and a large family in Chicago, was a visitor at Duarte's home in Gilmore way, before Christmas, and disapeared the eve of the holiday with Durate's pass.

MYSTERY DELAY HITS PLAN FOR EXPO HALL

Indefinite postponement faced the new proposal for disposition of the old Exposition property whereby the city would recondition the old arts building and operate the structure as a huge exposition hall for conventions and other events.

Leaders of the new move were to have placed the plan before City Council today. Chief Engineer Charles M. Reppert, of the Department of public works, yesterday prepared an estimate on the cost for conditioning the structure. His action followed instructions from Mayor William N. McNair who indorsed the plan proposed by convention interests here.

DELAY UNEXPECTED

No explanation for the delay was announced. It had been proposed to McNair by F. L. Andrews, president of the Pittsburgh Hotel Association; J. A. Morgan, manager of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce convention bureau, and Samuel K. Smith, convention department manager of the William Penn hotel. They were to have appeared before Council. Andrews was out of the city today.

Opposition to the move was expected to arise from interests promoting the new Greater Pittsburgh Exposition Society. It has been seeking a 52-year grant from the city to build a $2,000,000 town hall and exhibition project. The Chamber of Commerce already has indorsed the new society's plans.

The city's chances for retaining the annual American Mining Congress meeting was expected to be lost by the delay. Exhibition space is reported demanded for this year's congress that cannot be met under existing conditions. Assurance of a definite exhibition hall was reported necessary this week or the convention would have to seek another city. More than 25 additional conventions would become prospects for Pittsburgh if an exhibition hall were available, leaders said.

BUILDING HELD IDEAL

The arts building was declared ideal for the purpose suggested. Besides exhibition space for more than 300 displays, an auditorium with a seating capacity of 700 to 1,000 is possible. The main exhibition hall is convertible for boxing shows and similar events and with circus seats can seat 10 to 11 thousand spectators, it is pointed out.

J. W. Bamford, of the Building Owners and Managers Association, who opposed the city leasing the property to the Exposition Society unless paid a fair income on the value of the land as well as taxes, approved the new project. He contended it was a civic need and, operated by the city, will bring returns on the property.

FLIVVER PLANE GETS BACKING

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The $700 flivver airplane—long a dream of the aviation world—zoomed close to the realm of actuality today.

Twenty-two leading manufacturers of planes, after a long discussion at the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, announced they had decided to support a proposal of Eugene L. Vidal, director of aeronautics of the Department of Commerce, to develop such a low-priced plane, to be turned out on a mass production basis.

Vidal has been working for some time on the idea of a small, safe plane to sell for about $700. He has envisaged a production of 10,000 of these within a few months. The plane would have a low landing speed of 20 miles, considered a safety factor.

COURT OPENS INSULL QUIZ

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley today instituted a broad investigation to determine whether his court had been a victim of fraud in the Insull receivership proceedings.

Charges that Samuel Insull and his creditors had been guilty of collusion in forming the receivership of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., recently were upheld by Federal Judge Evan A. Evans.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Foreign Minister Dimitri Maximos, of Greece, declared in an exclusive interview granted the Associated Press today that his government's decision that Samuel Insull must leave Greece by the end of January is final and irrevocable.

Greek courts twice have held against United States attempts to obtain Insull's extradition.

ATHENS, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Samuel Insull today refused to make known his plans for the future, pending a decision by the Council of State on his appeal from the government's decision that he must leave Greece by January 31.

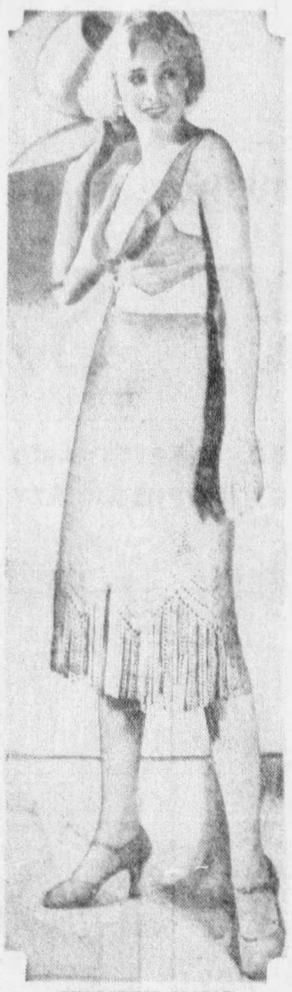
PARLEY CALLED ON BOUNDARIES

The Allegheny County Commissioners are scheduled to meet Friday with the Commissioners of Beaver, Butler, Washington and Westmoreland counties to consider a boundary survey.

The work, to be undertaken by the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey under CWA funds, contemplates a defining of the boundaries of Allegheny County and the adjoining counties and the placing of boundary monuments.

A motion to meet with neighboring Commissioners to decide if the survey should be requested was made yesterday by Commissioner C. M. Barr. The adjoining lines have never been definitely and properly defined, Barr stated.

Feet on Car Seat Cost Actress Slap and Fine



CHRISTINE MAPLE

Christine Maple Back From Swiss Misadventures

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Christine Maple, American actress, who was arrested and fined last month in Zurich, Switzerland, for placing her feet on a railway coach seat, arrived on the liner Ile de France yesterday with her version of the affair.

Miss Maple was released upon payment of 50 Swiss francs fine with assistance of American authorities.

She gave out a statement to newspaper reporters, purporting to be her account of the affair to the American consul, in which she said she was struck by a train official and then arrested after she had thrown a book at him.

Her statement related how she was placed in a cramped cell, "searched by five men," and then slapped so hard when she lit a cigaret that she required medical attention.

She was appearing at Monte Carlo at the time of the incident. Her arrest, cabled reports said, was for violating laws forbidding passengers to put their feet up.

Ex-Follies Beauty Sues Film Composer

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—A suit for divorce from Harry Rubenstein has been filed in Superior Court by Chloe Carter Ruby, former Follies beauty, who charged the film music composer with cruelty.

She charged Rubenstein struck her on the jaw last December 18, the day before they separated and that once during the month of January, 1933, he came home intoxicated, entered her bedroom where she was asleep and brandished a pair of scissors, causing her to flee in terror.

INDICT WOMAN AS HOARDER

DENVER, Jan. 1.—(AP.)—A federal grand jury indictment on a charge of gold hoarding—the first of its kind ever returned here—was on file today against Miss Edith M. Thomas, 45, daughter of former United States Senator Charles S. Thomas, of Colorado, who last May defied the federal government to seize gold held by him.

Miss Thomas was indicted on two counts. One charged she had $3,000 in gold in her possession last September 18, in violation of President Roosevelt's executive order, and the other charged she failed to report her gold holdings to the internal revenue collector in Denver.

Informed of the indictment, Miss Thomas said:

"I expected it. I feel that the gold is my property and the government has no right to take it away from me. As a law-abiding citizen, I reported having the gold to the Federal Reserve Board, as President Roosevelt directed."

Pitt to Honor Stephen C. Foster

A general assembly of the University of Pittsburgh, called by Chancellor John G. Bowman, in Memorial Hall, Friday at 10:30 a. m., will honor Stephen Collins Foster, famous Pittsburgh composer. John Tasker Howard, of New York, music critic and Foster's biographer, will be the speaker. Presenting a program of Foster songs, the Foster Quartet, Negro singers from Indianapolis, will sing.

Three Boys Hold Up Man On North Side

George E. Morton, of 1206 Reddour street, North Side, reported to police last night that he had been robbed of a watch and $2.40 by three boys, each about 16 years old. The robbery occurred in Chestnut street, near East Ohio street.

TWO PA. SISTERS HELD 'SLAVES' BY WOMAN

International News Service.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 10.—The story of how Allene Saxton, 15, Pennsylvania girl, was forced to work 18 hours a day in a 15-room East Side rooming house for six months without pay, was told tdday by Chief Police Prosecutor Michael Picciano.

The girl, a former resident of DuBois, Pa., was to appear before Picciano to repeat her charges today so that the prosecutor could determine whether the girl's former employer would be charged with violation of the state's child labor laws.

According to Allene, she and her sister, Margaret, 18, were "slaves" in the rooming house and also were forced to do all the cooking and serving for 150 men in an adjoining restaurant owned by the rooming house proprietress. Margaret left the rooming house a month ago to accept a job at a Reynoldsville (Pa.) hotel, where the Saxton girls' mother works.

Allene declared that she was afraid to leave the rooming house because she was without funds and had nowhere to go. She also declared that the woman had threatened to prosecute her for being a wayward girl and cause her imprisonment if she ran away.

JUDGE ACQUITS FILM WRITER

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—Declaring his faith in the truthfulness of John Villiers Farrow, Federal Judge Harry Hollzer yesterday acquitted the Australian film scenarist of charges of making false statements in his application for registry as an alien.

Farrow was congratulated by his fiancee, Miss Maureen O'Sullivan, film actress; his attorney, Joseph Scott; the British consul, W. M. Gurnez, and Assistant United States Attorney E. R. Utley.

In his remarks, Judge Hollzer, who in earlier proceedings had criticized Murray W. Garsson and other former officers of the Immigration Department for their conduct in the Farrow case, said that he was "led to ponder why a case with such evidence was ever brought before the grand jury."

Wilmerding's New Council Sworn in

Wilmerding has two new policemen, Eugene Skinner and James H. Richards, as the result of a reorganization meeting of council last night. Two new councilmen, Robert Sullivan and Joseph Latch, took the oath of administration at the meeting. Council re-elected K. J. Boyle president of council; Earl M. Morrison borough secretary, and F. M. Holden chief of police.

All Rutgers Joins Hunt, Finds Blind Student's Dog

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Carl Weiss, a senior, and much of Rutgers University were upset for five hours.

His highly-trained police dog, "Zenta," got lost and Weiss is totally blind. For three years he has depended on Zenta to guide him to and from classes, to and from the college dining room and all over the campus.

Students, police and residents joined in the search. Finally, Mrs. Edward V. McCormick noticed a dog in the back yard of her home.

RIGHT TO CHECK VOTE UPHELD

Threatened by a shortage of men in the Prothonotary's office, the right of attorneys for the opposing parties in the Sheriff election contest to consult election records has been upheld by the County Commissioners.

They made available four men from the elections department yesterday to act as supervisors, when C. A. Jones, counsel for John Heinz, told them the court had barred inspection of the records on the ground no supervisors were available.

Heinz is contesting in a number of districts the election of Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar, who won by a narrow margin. Gollmar has also filed several contests.

The Commissioners acted after County Solicitor Ralph H. Frank had told them prevention of access to the records was illegal, Frank said:

"If the plain legal right to consult the records can be prevented by the Prothonotary's saying no, or if a special set-up by the Commissioners is necessary—then there is no right."

Jones, however, explained that full co-operation had been offered by Prothonotary John Vogt until, on representation of attorneys for Gollmar, the court made mandatory the presence of supervisors. The Prothonotary then declared he had no men available, Jones said.

WIFE WALLOPS GIRL WALKING WITH HUBBY

A free-for-all squabble between a wife, her estranged husband and a young woman acquaintance of the latter at Sixth avenue and Wood street wound up in Morals Court today with all three discharged.

Mrs. Marie Bukes, 28, of 309 Peebles street, Wilkinsburg, told Magistrate Ralph E. Smith that when she went to the Courthouse to collect her alimony yesterday, she saw her husband and followed him down Sixth avenue.

The husband, Steros Bukes, 30, of 203 East Eighth avenue, Homestead, encountered Miss Virginia Lang, 20, of 314 Main street, Homestead Park, as Miss Lang came out of a millinery shop. They walked together to Wood street, where, the wife said, she accosted them and slapped Miss Lang. The quarrel followed and police intervened.

Bukes and Miss Lang said they had been long time acquaintances and met by chance.

FETE ENGINEER, EDUCATOR

Industrial and utility leaders of Western Pennsylvania last night honored Dr. J. B. Whitehead, president of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and dean of the School of Engineering, Johns Hopkins University, at a dinner in the Chamber of Commerce.

The dinner was held in connection with the annual President's Night meeting of the Pittsburgh section, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and the electrical section, Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania, at which Dr. Whitehead was the principal speaker.

BANDITS KIDNAP WOMAN SHIELD

MONROE CITY, Mo., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Four quick-shooting desperadoes, who yesterday abducted a 40-year-old woman to shield them from police bullets, were hunted throughout Northern Missouri today.

Mrs. Roy Carpenter, wife of a local school teacher, hostage of the gunmen for more than six hours, was left last night at the farm home of Julius Jackson, four miles north of here, after she and members of the Jackson family had been warned not to notify officers before midnight. In their flight from Hannibal, where they stole an automobile, the four men twice engaged officers in gun battles.

Chevalier Opposed To Long Contract

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Maurice Chevalier, arriving from Europe yesterday, said he preferred "picture to picture" instead of making a long term contract. Under long contracts, he said, he was forced to appear in several pictures in which he was "not quite happy."

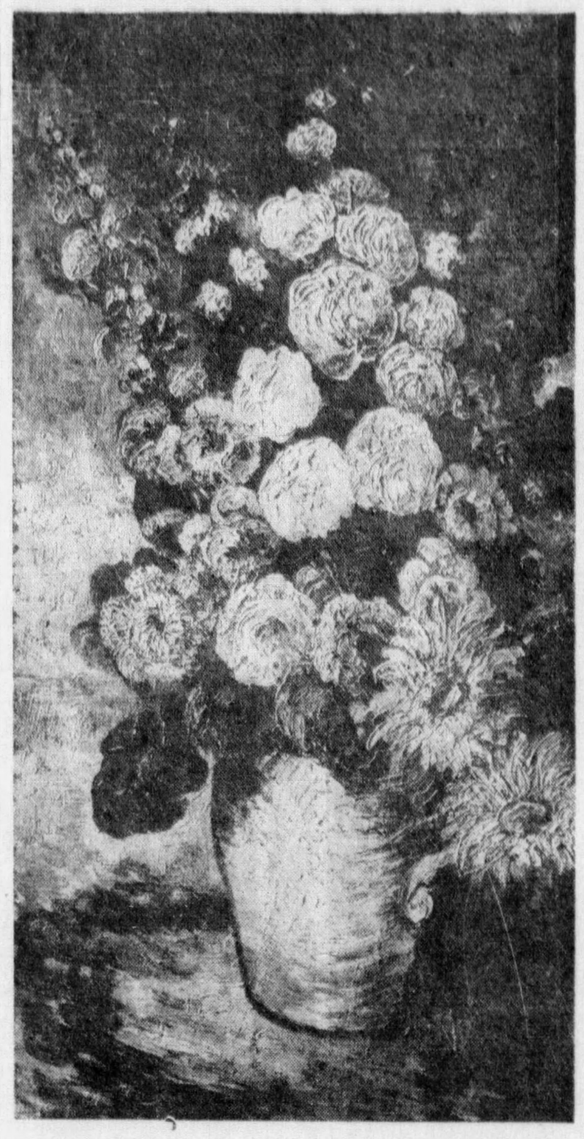
West View Council Cuts Pay of Police

West View's police received a cut in pay at a meeting of Council last night. Council reduced the chief's pay from $180 to $140 a month; the desk sargeant's from $160 to $120, and four patrolmen from $160 to $130. The position of street foreman was eliminated.

Junior League Holds 'Flowers in Art' Show



"FLOWERS" BY VINCENT VAN GOGH...AT JUNIOR LEAGUE

19th Century Work Feature of Exhibit

By PENELOPE REDD

The Junior League of Pittsburgh presents an exhibition of "Flowers in Art" from the tenth century to the twentieth at their gallery in the Clark Building, to continue through February 3. This collection is developed around the flower as an inspiration for the painter to exercise his art.

We find the Chinese painter Huang Chuan in perfection attained before the year one thousand of our era. We find mediaevalism lingering on the eve of the Renaissance in the superb millefleur tapestry woven in Northern France in the late fifteenth century.

During the Renaissance flowers were usually but symbolic clues in paintings and did not suggest themselves as themes until the twilight of the period. Consequently, the Dutch are chosen to pick up the trail of the flower in art.

Jan van Huysum, Dutch, represents this subject which became popular in the eighteenth century. Handsome on the side of obvious opulence, his paintings appeal as contributions to a decorative ensemble. The same may be said of the work of Mary Moser, English painter.

The glory of the exhibition, however, is concentrated in the brilliant nineteenth century French painters, Manet, Fantin-Latour, Monet, Redon, Renoir, Henri Rousseau, Van Gogh, and Bonnard. Liberated from routine conventions of expression, these men sought flowers as motifs in which they might find refuge of beauty-in-itself.

The exhibition is open daily to the public. Artists are admitted free and others for a small fee which is contributed to the charities sponsored by the Junior League.

POLICE SEIZE TWO STILLS

The other still, said to have been in operation, was taken at 2306 Sidney street. It was of 25-gallon capacity. Earl Thatcher, 53, and three visitors were arrested.

Five five-gallon jugs of whisky were found by a squad of police led by Capt. John N. Schnurr in a raid upon a shed at the rear of 1019 Bedford avenue.

How Long Should a Daughter And Mother Be 'Pals'?

Or is it the bunk?

Josie's Mamma feels that it is Just Wonderful. And does Josie agree with her?

If you're another mother, you'd better listen in. It may be good for what ails you.

Dear Elsie Robinson:

I am wondering whether I am an ungrateful daughter, or what. Maybe there is something terribly wrong with me. I don't know; that's why I am asking your help. I am simply wretched.

You see, it is my mother. She is very young looking for her age, and she takes great care of herself, so that great care look as old as she is. In fact, a great many people take us for sisters, and mother thinks that is just wonderful. She always beams at them when they remark on how much alike we look, and say, "Yes, and Josie and I go everywhere together. We're such pals!"

And, believe it or not, that is just what seems to be cramping my life. Do I sound terrible? I can't help it; it's true! Mother may think that she is just the same as a girl chum would be, but she isn't.

I can't forget, however "pally" we are, that she is just my mother. I can't be natural. She always takes the lead in everything, and I'll admit that she outshines me, every way there is! She knows so much more than I do; she is so much more experienced and apt at meeting people than I am, that it simply paralyzes me.

LIKE A PRISONER

Don't mistake me. I love my mother. I admire her. But I do wish she would stop trying to be one of the Younger Crowd! I can't help feeling, when she flirts—as she does—with one of my Boy Friends, that she is being undignified. And I can't help feeling jealous when I see him look flattered, and leave me out in the cold. It just isn't fair.

I want her to like my friends, and to be nice to them, but I do wish she would be nice to them as my mother, and not as my "pal."

I know that she would be mortally hurt, if she suspected how I feel. She would be hurt if I went to a party with some of the girls, and went without her. I don't want to hurt her, but I feel as if I were in prison. And it seems to me that she should see, for herself, how she is crowding me to the wall—how dumb I feel, compared to her charm, her wit! I just can't stand it!

I am 22, but when she is around I feel as awkward as 14; I don't know what on earth to do. She has always been with me, even at college. Dad died when I was 17, and that drew us together in this way. Please help me. I want pals my own age. I want to be free to be myself! JOSEPHINE.

MAKE NEW FRIENDS

Of course you do, Jo—and you have a right to your freedom. But, like everyone else, you'll have to win your rights, for no one will ever hand them to you on a silver platter.

So then, what? So then, if you want to be treated as a separate, independent person, begin to act like one. Mother is mooching on your social life because you're mooching on her private life. She's treating you like a flat tire because you're treating yourself as one.

If you want a life apart from mother's—shove off and get going. Get yourself a job, no matter how small. If you can't get a job, create some interest which will take you out of her life into a life of your own.

You're of age; act it. Make some new friends whom she doesn't know. Go out with them without asking her permission.

"But her feelings will be hurt?"

Then, with all due regard for mother (and I'm a mother myself, my dear), that will be her own bad luck and she will have brought it on herself. If human beings insist on doing unhealthy and unfair things, they're bound to have their feelings hurt—and mothers are no exception to the rule.

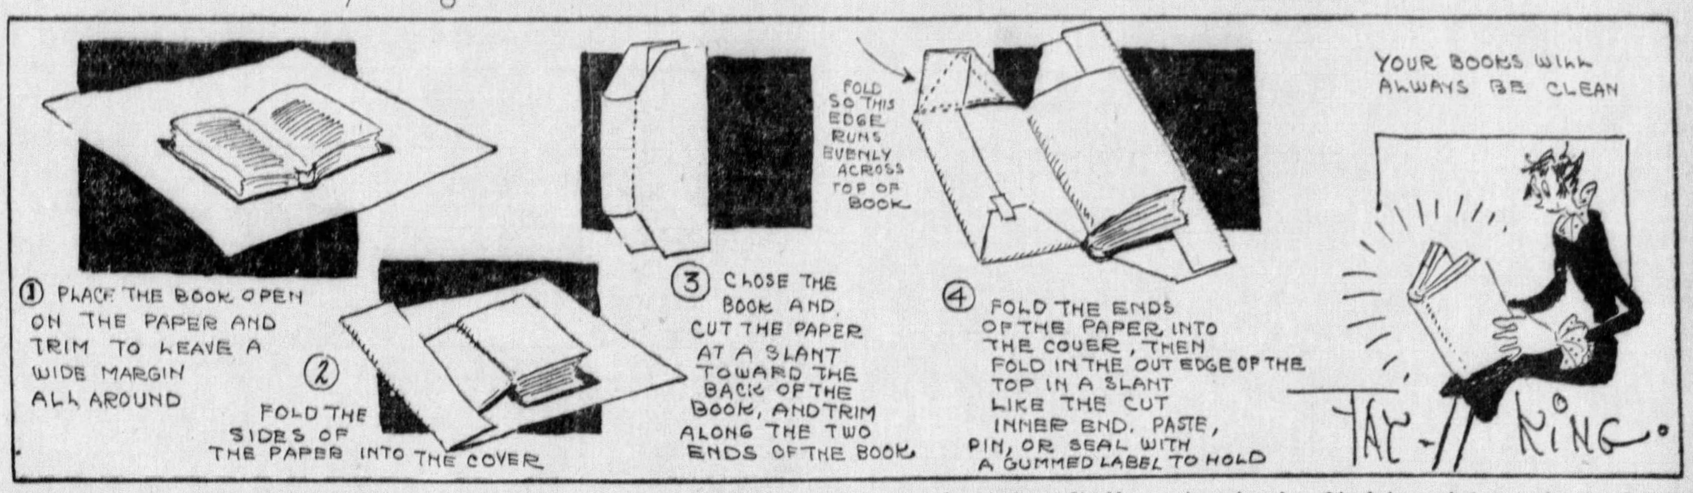
Fay King Remembers School Lesson of How to Cover Books



1 PLACE THE BOOK OPEN ON THE PAPER AND TRIM TO LEAVE A WIDE MARGIN ALL AROUND
2 FOLD THE SIDES OF THE PAPER INTO THE COVER
3 CHOSE THE BOOK AND, CUT THE PAPER AT A SLANT TOWARD THE BACK OF THE BOOK, AND TRIM ALONG THE TWO ENDS OF THE BOOK
FOLD SO THIS EDGE RUNS EVENLY ACROSS TOP OF BOOK
4 FOLD THE ENDS OF THE PAPER INTO THE COVER, THEN FOLD IN THE OUT EDGE OF THE TOP IN A SLANT LIKE THE CUT INNER END. PASTE, PIN, OR SEAL WITH A GUMMED LABEL TO HOLD YOUR BOOKS WILL ALWAYS BE CLEAN
FAY KING

By FAY KING

In my early school days our teacher taught us how to cover our school books to keep them clean. That useful little lesson has remained with me throughout the years.

One can buy nice book covers, but they do not always fit odd-sized books. The wrapping paper one gets on parcels makes a fine temporary cover and takes but a moment to put on.

To cover a book from the public library while you read it will save it that much of the wear and soil it gets, while in your hands.

A number of my friends have asked me to show how I cover my books, and, thinking a reader may like to know also, I have shown in my cartoon.

Given in Marriage

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Avis Goes Through Rehearsals Without Mishap

The rehearsal of the marriage processional was repeated nearly a half dozen times before Lillian, exacting mistress of ceremonies, declared herself satisfied with every detail. I wondered if there was not a slight trace of malice in Lillian's dictum that Avis Arlen's manner of proceeding down the room did not conform to those of the bride, the maid of honor and the other bridesmaid, and her insistence that Philip Veritzen's protege must rehearse the steps alone and with the others until the whole thing was in harmony.

"Dear Mrs. Underwood," Avis said plaintively at one point, "I really cannot see where I am walking in the wrong manner. I always have been taught that I must poise my body in—"

"Oh, we're perfectly aware, Avis," Lillian retorted, "that 'everybody's out of step but you,' but nevertheless you'll have to change your manner of proceeding to this altar. It's easier to change you over than it would be to get all the others twisted around, especially as the way they're doing things happens to appeal to my alleged artistic instincts. So, unless you want to stay out of the parade altogether, which would be a calamity, you'd better apply your brain to the problem of your feet."

She smiled in the friendliest fashion at the girl as she delivered her little diatribe, but there was something in her voice that hinted of steel. And I noticed that Avis made no more protests, and that in the next procession down the room her steps synchronized perfectly with the others.

BOB KEEPS PROMISE

But it was not until that perfection had been repeated three times that Lillian finally pronounced herself satisfied, and I came forward and took the center of the stage.

"I'm going to take Noel and Mary away with me for a seance," I announced. "The rest of you may dance or do anything you like for an hour only. Then I'm going to chase you all to bed, for we have to get up early tomorrow."

"Put a fox-trot on, somebody," Bob directed. "I'm going to show Avis just how a real honest-to-goodness he-man dances."

He slipped an arm around her waist and pulled her up to him audaciously.

"Here's where I make all the rest of the men bite their finger nails," he said, and as I walked with Mary and Noel to the door, I had hard work to keep from laughing at the efficient manner in which Bob was keeping his promise to "ride herd" upon Avis.

Still unanswered was my question as to the girl's real feeling toward Noel. Apparently Lillian's drilling had taken all of her attention; but as I went out of the door I shot an apparently careless but really intent look at her, and saw that over Bob's shoulder she was gazing after us with an expression in her eyes of something more than thwarted vanity.

MADGE DETERMINED

"She really cares," I said to myself, with a distinct throb of pity, for there are few things in the world so sad as "the pangs of unrequited love." But my compassion did not extend to any letting up of my determination to prevent her from gaining her point of seeing Noel alone.

Not that I feared any real harm as the result of such an interview. There was no question of any possible shaking of Noel's allegiance to Mary. But there was the distinct possibility of giving a revengeful and egotistical girl the opportunity of uttering falsehoods concerning that interview—falsehoods, which would be irritating even if nobody believed them—and I was resolved that she "should not pass" beyond the barriers I had set for her.

"How long do you want for your 'good nights?'" I asked Mary and Noel, as we reached the hall.

"Five minutes," Mary said promptly. "We decided that some time ago. We know what a strenuous day tomorrow is going to be for everybody, and so we made up our minds to be good children and set a good example to everybody."

"That suits me to the proverbial T," I told them, smiling. "And now, Mary, I'm going to take a leaf from Avis' book. I want to see Noel alone a minute. May I?"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Diet an Aid in Clearing the Skin

Recently I have received several letters requesting information about what the writers described as "crusted" and "scaly" inflammation of the skin. This annoying affliction is known medically as "pityriasis." It is a disorder of the fat-producing glands and is most frequently encountered at the age of puberty.

Dr. Copeland

There is an increased or decreased secretion of the skin glands. This leads to an oily, crusty or scaly condition of the skin. As a rule the forehead, cheeks and nose are involved. The skin is oily and it appears dirty because particles of dust stick to the surface.

Occasionally there may be an accumulation of yellow or grayish scales. These appear upon the scalp or perhaps the nonhairy regions of the body. Sometimes the roots of the hairs in eyebrows, mustache and beard are covered with these scales.

Many have the mistaken idea that dandruff is a disorder of the hair. In reality it is a disease of the scalp and is a form of pityriasis. When confined to the scalp it produces what is commonly called dandruff. Medically, it is given a big name, "seborrheic dermatitis." It usually accompanies increasing baldness and constantly falling hair.

As is true of many other disturbances of the skin, the actual cause of pityriasis has never been discovered. It is probable that the affliction is the result of some glandular disturbance. It is of interest to learn that pityriasis is more common in women than in men, and is more apt to be found in dark-complexioned persons than in blondes.

Many cases of pityriasis have been traced to lack of cleanliness of the skin, as well as faulty health habits. For example, it is a common skin affliction among persons who lead sedentary lives, indulge in little exercise, and avoid fresh air and sunlight. Such cases are quickly cured when the health habits are corrected.

Diet in the treatment of pityriasis is an important factor that must not be overlooked. Since the disease is occasionally seen in persons afflicted with tuberculosis, anemia, and other constitutional disorders, it is imperative that the diet of the sufferer be carefully planned. The food should be simple, nutritious, and contain the necessary vitamins so essential to good health. In every possible way the general welfare of the body should be promoted.

When the proper measures are taken and a suitable lotion applied to the skin, cure can be expected. This lotion should be prescribed by the physician. Bear in mind that what is beneficial for one skin may be irritative and harmful to another skin. The crusts and scales should first be removed and a stimulating and astringent ointment then applied.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Placing the Silver

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—At a luncheon where a crabmeat salad, crackers and cake are served, where is the salad fork placed? A thinks that the salad fork should be placed next to the plate and the cake fork on the outside. B thinks the fork for the cake should be next to the plate because the cake is eaten last, and the salad fork on the outside.

2—At a dinner is the salad fork placed next to the plate? B.

1—B is right. We place our silverpieces in the order in which they are used, so that the person eating can begin with the silverpieces farthest from the plate and proceed toward the plate. To place the cake fork farthest from the plate would be very confusing to the guest, especially in this case when the two forks would be either of the same size or of about the same size.

2—Yes, usually.

Who Pays?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Some friends and I have had a wordy argument concerning who should pay for the prom-ticket . . . the girl graduating or her boy friend. We agree that it is the girl's job to purchase the bid, but we are in doubt as to whether exceptions should be made of the rule.

One of the boys in our crowd is going to a local high school prom, with a girl who is graduating. They have been going together for over two years. Both are in a position to pay for the bid as the boy is fortunate in having a job.

Please advise if any exceptions should be made to the rule. ED.

The girl who is inviting the boy to go to the prom should buy the tickets for both. And since you say that "both are in a position to pay for the bid," there seems to be no reasons why any exception should be made in this case.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Distributional Slam

When a player undertakes a Small Slam contract with a losing trick in trumps and only four honor-tricks in the combined hands, it certainly requires the element of favorable distribution plus accurate play to insure the success of the contract. The rocks of distribution have wrecked many a hand in a Bridge game. The player who can find his way safely through these uncharted seas and still keep afloat certainly has reached the point where he can claim some definite title as a master Bridge player.

To all of us who play, Bridge hands where great honor strength is brought to naught through distributional values prove extremely interesting. I suppose it is that feeling so generally held of sympathizing with those who apparently are getting the worst of it that makes us recount hands of this type. In any event, the play of the hand below, for which I am indebted to a friend in Europe, is extremely interesting. The bidding, I think, was possibly slightly optimistic.

South, Dealer.

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	2 ◇	5 ♡	Pass
6 ♡	Double	Redouble	Pass
Pass	Pass

North's Raise of South's Opening bid of one heart to five hearts was too strong, and although South held no honors (except the three Aces and one Knave) he was at the very least a cheerful optimist when he bid six. However, "All's well that ends well," and this hand certainly ended in that way.

West's Opening lead was the diamond King, which was ruffed in the Dummy and the Ace of spades laid down. Upon the spade Ace the Declarer discarded the diamond 8. He next led a small spade and ruffed with the deuce in his own hand. He then laid down the Ace of clubs and followed with the Ace of diamonds, upon which Dummy's last club was discarded. The Declarer now led the diamond 9, which was ruffed in Dummy with a small trump, and returned another spade, which he ruffed with the six. Now the deuce of clubs was led and ruffed with Dummy's 8 of hearts and another spade led from Dummy, which was ruffed in the closed hand with the heart Knave. West lacked a good lead at this point, so, instead of over-ruffing, he discarded a diamond, whereupon the Declarer led another low club and ruffed with Dummy's nine. Next the 8 of spades was led from Dummy and Declarer ruffed with the Ace. There remained but two tricks, and of these the Declarer was sure to win one. To the twelfth trick he led a small club, and West was trapped. If he played the Ten of hearts, the Dummy would over-ruff with the Queen, whereas, if he played the heart King, Dummy would discard the last spade and retain the heart Queen for the last trick. The contract could be fulfilled against any defense.

Today's Question

North	South

You, South, hold:

♠ K Q 4 2 ♡ 8 7 ◇ K 10 5 3 ♣ Q J 2

What do you bid?

Answer: Five clubs. South must naturally take some definite action over North's very strong bid. The South hand is considerably better than a minimum two-spade response and, as a matter of fact, is very close to a three-spade response. South therefore cannot refuse North's Slam invitation and merely sign off with four spades. Five clubs is a slightly better bid than jumping from four clubs to five spades. The bid gives specific information in that it shows North the club fit and, of course, shows desire or willingness to play the hand at a Slam in that it brings the contracting up to the level of five. Although five spades is a possible alternative bid it does not give any specific information, but merely tells partner that he should dive blindly into six.

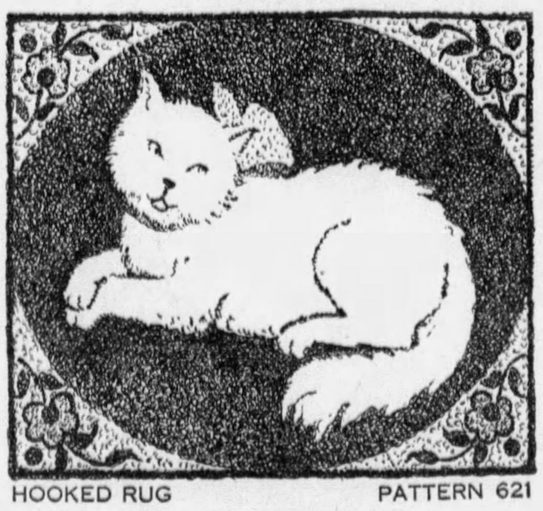
LAURA WHEELER DESIGNS



HOOKED RUG PATTERN 621

Make a Quaint Hooked Rug

A cat is many people's favorite household pet. It suggests coziness and contentment. Here is someone's pet tabby, reproduced on a hooded rug, a lovely companion to the pert Scottie rug shown some weeks ago. This cat is done very simply, being to the greatest part in one shade of a light colored material, with just touches of a darker shade here and there, to show up pussy to best advantage. The background could be all in one color, or mottled in many colors. The rug is effective made in soft-colored scraps of material, or in rug yarn. An oval, oblong or square rug can be made of this pattern as the cat and the floral corners are given separately, permitting any desired arrangement.

Pattern 621 contains a transfer pattern of the design, consisting of the cat 24 inches long and four corners, and complete directions for making a hooded rug.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Lazy girls who go wan and limp at the word exercise can take calesthenics in bed every morning. Not as good as more vigorous efforts, but they help. Begin by taking ten deep inhalations, drawing in the air slowly, expelling it slowly. Slip down in the bed, lift the hands, lift the upper part of the body, touch the toes with the fingers; back again. Clasp the hands back of the neck, stretch the body, extend the legs, breathe deeply.

Because a woman is a heavyweight is no reason why she cannot wear clothes with distinction and individuality. She should avoid fabrics that are stiff and harsh. Taffetas are coming back; they are not for her. Soft, thin materials are her sartorial dish. Her best colors are bleck, navy, powder blue and orchid, which give an appearance of less bulk. Strong colors are out of the question, especially green, red or purple. The belt should be low, the neckline a V, draperies long and graceful.

HOUSEWIFE BASES COMBINATION RECIPE ON LEFT-OVER FOOD

Successful housewives, Prudence Penny will tell you, have learned to utilize ingredients left over from one dish to help make another. Nor do they, she adds, prepare something unnecessary merely to make use of the left-overs.

There is Mrs. G. F. Packard, for one, who has evolved a combination recipe to take care of the egg yolks she has on hand after baking her favorite angel food cake. In sending her recipe for cake and ice cream she wrote:

"With spring coming on, when eggs will be cheap, this is a splendid recipe either for dessert or to serve to a few people in for the evening."

Send in the recipes which have kept your family healthy and happy to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, for entrance in the contest that daily awards a $5 prize and 10 $1 prizes to the best recipes received. No recipes will be returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

Mrs. C. R. DALLY,
528 Washington avenue, Carnegie.
BROCCOLI WITH DUTCH SAUCE

Broccoli for six servings.
Two tablespoons butter.
One tablespoon flour.
One cup hot water (not boiling).
Two egg yolks well beaten.
Seasoning.

Method—Wash broccoli thoroughly and leave in salt water for 10 minutes. Divide into sections, boil until tender in salt water. Drain well and dress with the following sauce: Cream together the flour and butter and add the water and cook in a double boiler until thick. Remove from the fire and whip in the well beaten egg yolks. Simmer again for a few minutes, and then add the lemon juice and salt, pepper and paprika to taste. Do not cook after the lemon juice has been added.

Ten $1 Prize Winners

Mrs. J. F. BARNES,
Box 764, E. Pittsburgh.
BAKED RED SNAPPER

One tomato or small can.
One clove garlic.

Place fish in roasting pan. Sprinkle with pepper and salt inside and out. Cut two slits in top side of fish. Place in the fish one slice of bacon, the onion and pepper and garlic that have been chopped fine. If can of tomatoes is used pour over top after sprinkling a little flour over top of fish. If fresh tomato is used, put half in fish and half sliced on top with the other strip of bacon. Pour over one cup of water. Cook in moderate oven one hour, basting every 15 minutes. Serve this fish with rice.

MRS. MARCELLE CONNORS,
Apt. 4, 314 McKee place,
WATER LILY SALAD

Six hard cooked eggs.
One teaspoon chopped parsley.
Six stuffed olives.

Boil eggs, hard, pour cold water over them; roll, crumble, and remove shell. About one-half inch from either end cut through the white, six slanting lines one-half inch long at equal distances. Cut six more one-half inch lines from same point slanting other way, forming two lilies each with six points or leaves. Lift points carefully. Separate white from yolk and lay whites in center of crisp lettuce leaves on glass serving dish. Rub yolk smooth with little vinegar, add salt and form in cone shaped balls. Place one in center of each lily. Sprinkle with parsley. Place olives and few radishes on small leaves to represent buds. Serve with French dressing or mayonnaise.

MRS. MABEL ELLINGER,
Masontown,
BUTTERSCOTCH APPLES

Five apples.
Two-thirds cup brown sugar.
One-half cup water.
Three-fourths cup milk.
One-half tablespoon cornstarch.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.

Wash the apples and cut them into quarters, pare and core them. Into a saucepan put the sugar and water and heat. When the syrup boils, add the apples. Cover and boil gently until the apples are tender. Remove the apples from the syrup and put into dishes. In another pan mix the milk and cornstarch thoroughly. Stir and cook until the mixture reaches the boiling point, then add it to the syrup in which the apples were cooked. Boil for a few minutes. Add the salt, butter and vanilla. Stir these into the mixture and pour over the apples.

MRS. G. F. PACKARD,
ANGEL FOOD CAKE

One cup egg whites (usually eight).
One and one-quarter cups sugar.
One cup cake flour.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
One teaspoon cream of tartar.
Two teaspoons lemon extract.

Sift flour four times, add sugar and salt and sift again. Beat egg whites until foamy, add cream of tartar, and continue beating until eggs hold peaks but are not dry; add flavoring; then fold in dry ingredients and place in ungreased tubular pan; bake about one hour at 320 degrees.

CUSTARD ICE CREAM

One cup sugar.
Two cups water.
Eighth egg yolks.
Two tablespoons jello.

Dissolve jello in two tablespoons boiling water for 10 minutes. Boil two cups water and sugar 15 minutes; then pour slowly into well beaten egg yolks. Cook in double boiler 10 minutes. Add jello and chill until it begins to congeal. Fold in whipped cream and vanilla; place in electric refrigerator, stirring occasionally. Good results are also obtained when made in an ice cream freezer.

BARBARA ANN YAGUSC,
177 High street, Etna,
CORN FONDUE

Two tablespoons butter.
One cup fresh cooked corn cut from cob (or one can canned whole kernel corn).
One cup soft white bread crumbs.
One-quarter teaspoon pepper.
One cup milk.
Three eggs, separated.

Melt the butter and mix together with all other ingredients except the eggs. Separate the eggs. Beat whites stiff, then beat yolks until thick and lemon colored. Fold yolks into corn mixture and lastly fold in the beaten egg whites. Pour into well greased individual baking dishes or custard cups. Bake in moderate oven (325 degrees) for 30 minutes. If baked in one large baking dish a slightly longer time should be allowed for baking.

MRS. ALICE BORDONE,
236 Jasper street, Mt. Washington,
ITALIAN WINE CAKE

One cup butter.
One cup sugar.
Four eggs.
Two cups flour (or little more).
Four teaspoons baking powder.
One-half cup chopped almonds.

Cream butter, add sugar gradually and beat in the yolks. Sift flour, baking powder and add gradually to first mixture, beating vigorously. Add flavoring, nuts and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn in a deep buttered pan (angel food cake pan) and bake in oven 350 degrees for about 45 minutes. Serve next day without icing, like pound cake. To be served with wine.

MRS. HARRY LEVY,
AN UNDERCOVER SECRET

One shredded pimiento.
Three-fourth cup canned or fresh mushrooms.
Two and one-half cups white sauce.
One cup sliced cooked carrots.
White sauce—Blend 5 tablespoons of flour with two and one-half tablespoons melted butter and add 2 teaspoons salt, dash of pepper. When well blended add two and one-half cups of milk and cook until thick.

Method—Grease a shallow baking dish and put in a layer of chicken, a layer of mushrooms, and a layer of carrots and pimentos mixed. Repeat layers until dish is filled. Cover with the white sauce, and top with meat pie pastry.

Meat Pie Pastry—Sift together two cups flour, three-quarters teaspoon salt and three teaspoons of baking powder. Cut in one-fourth cup shortening. Whep well mixed add three-fourth cup of cold water and mix again. Toss onto a floured board and roll one-fourth inch thick. Spread with two tablespoons of shortening within an inch of the edge. Fold over, press edges together and reroll to one-fourth inch thickness. Top pie and bake in a 450 F. for 20-25 minutes.

305 Barnes street, Wilkinsburg.
HOLIDAY CAKE
White Part.

One cup sugar.
One-half cup butter.
One-half cup sweet milk.
One cup cornstarch.
One cup flour.

Method—Cream butter and add sugar gradually. Sift flour and measure. Add cornstarch to the measured flour and sift again. Add soda and cream of tartar to the flour and cornstarch mixture and sift again three times. To the creamed mixture add alternately the milk and flour. The vanilla should be added to the milk. Fold in well-beaten egg whites.

Red Part.

One cup red sugar.
One-half cup butter.
Yolks of four eggs.
Two cups flour.
Raspberry or strawberry flavoring.
One teaspoon of soda.

Method—Mix the same as white part. Add the well-beaten egg yolks to the creamed butter and sugar before the flour and milk are added.

Bake each in two layers, put together with icing, alternating the two different colors. Decorate with holiday date written in the icing.

MRS. PEARL RUBENSTEIN
2936 Webster avenue,
BUCKWHEAT LATKES

Ingredients:

One cake yeast.
Two tablespoons lukewarm water.
One teaspoon sugar.
One teaspoon salt.
Two tablespoons shortening.
One-half cup lukewarm water or milk.
One cup white flour.
Two raw potatoes (ground fine).
Two cups buckwheat flour.
Three-fourths cup lukewarm water or milk.

Method:

Dissolve the yeast in the two tablespoons lukewarm water. Add to the sugar, salt, and shortening which have been mixed with the one-half cup of lukewarm water or milk. Stir in the one cup white flour and allow to rise for one-half hour in a warm place. Then add the finely grated potatoes and the three-fourths cup of water or milk and stir in the buckwheat flour. Set in a warm place and allow to rise for two hours. Place a heaping tablespoon of this mixture on a well greased pan over a direct flame and after turning once, bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) for 20-25 minutes. Makes 24.

MRS. C. W. McFARLAND,
CARROTS WITH ORANGE SAUCE

Two cups cubed carrots.
Three tablespoons butter.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
Two egg yolks.
One-quarter cup shredded toasted almonds.

Cook cubed carrots in boiling salted water. Make a sauce of the butter, flour, orange juice and salt. Add beaten egg yolks and drained carrots. (Do not cook sauce after adding egg yolks). Sprinkle almonds over carrots, after they are in dish, just before serving. This is particularly good with roast duck or pork.

The Center Leaves have the finest Tobacco Quality

The first thing people see and like about Luckies is how round and firm they are. The tobacco doesn't spill out and there are no loose ends to cling to lips. That's because we pack each and every Lucky full to the brim with long, even strands of the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos—only the center leaves. Not the top leaves—because those are under-developed. Not the bottom leaves—because those are inferior in quality. We use only the center leaves—because they are the mildest and fully ripe for perfect smoking. That's why Luckies always draw easily, burn evenly—and are always mild and smooth. So smoke a Lucky, a fully packed cigarette. And remember, "It's toasted"—for throat protection—for finer taste.

JAPS ORGANIZE ARMY CORPS IN SECRET

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service.

TOKIO, Jan. 10.—Apparently in preparation for hostilities with Soviet Russia, Japan is secretly organizing a new, independent army corps of infantry, it was learned today.

The new army corps will consist of several regular-strength divisions. This presumedly would increase Japan's man-power on active duty by at least 50,0000.

The new troops would be conscripts who would serve two years.

Simultaneously, the army is painstakingly concentrating on improving anti-gas masks and cold-resistance uniforms, and in adopting a new style of machine gun.

Military observers report that a steady improvement is being made in the equipment of the Japanese troops on service in North Manchuria, which would make it less difficult to conduct a campaign in a climate such as Siberia's.

Defense, Not Pacts, U. S. Policy in Pacific

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(Universal)—Adequate national defense instead of "defense pacts" with Soviet Russia will be the key to American policy in the Pacific, officials emphasize.

The administration's shipbuilding program and the move to strengthen the air forces are looked on as sufficient guaranty of security against possible aggressive action by Japan. Already the Roosevelt policy has had a sobering effect upon the Japanese military party.

The Japanese are beginning to realize that this country is determined to defend its rights in the Orient and that the United States would easily come out on top in a naval building race.

Naturally, Washington and Moscow are in close sympathy in viewing with concern the jingoistic policy pursued by Japan in its Manchurian operations, threatening the rights of both countries. This was disclosed in the conversations between President Roosevelt and Commissar Litvinoff.

But the United States is determined to maintain a free hand, to meet conditions as they arise and to avoid entangling alliances in the Pacific or anywhere else.

France, Soviet to Sign Important Pact Tomorrow

PARIS, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—The Franco-Soviet commercial treaty, treated here as of great political significance because of unsettled conditions in the Far East, will be signed tomorrow, it was announced this afternoon.

The economic features are of considerable importance—France, for instance, will in the future export to Russia half of what she imports from Russia instead of the present 10 per cent.

"The treaty is much more important politically than commercially, following, as it does, conclusion of the Franco-Soviet non-aggression pact.

"Russia fears two dangers—first, that the Japanese military party will seize the eastern coast of Siberia for economic and security reasons, and, second, that the German combination, into which the Reich is trying to lure Poland, will endanger her position on the Black Sea."

Envoy to Arrive As Fleet Returns

TOKIO, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—The new Japanese Ambassador to Washington will arrive at his post in June, simultaneously with the return of the American Atlantic fleet to its home base from the Pacific, it was announced here today.

Tokio Balks Story Of U. S. Relations

Kill that COLD!

Don't Merely Coddle It with Half-Way Measures!

A cold is nothing to trifle with! It may end seriously. A cold, being an internal infection, calls for an internal treatment. It also calls for a COLD remedy and not something good for a number of other things as well.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is direct and internal—and it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is taking chances with a cold. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is sold by all druggists, 30c and 50c. Accept no substitute.

RADIO HIGHLIGHTS

Fred Allen, Jack Pearl On Air

A brisk half-hour revue with Fred Allen & Co. furnishing the comedy, and Mary McCoy, Scrappy Lambert, the Songsmiths and Ferde Grofe's Orchestra providing the musical interludes is presented over NBC-WCAE tonight at 9:30.

* * *

* * *

Albert Spalding offers Mendelssohn's masterly violin concert in E major as the highlight of his performance with Conrad Thibault and Don Voorhees' Orchestra on the CBS-WJAS chain at 8:30.

* * *

Stoopnagle and Budd continue their dramas, inventions and other stuff over CBS-WJAS at 9:15.

* * *

John McCormack sings his NBC-KDKA audience three old Irish songs at 9:30: "The Sally Gardens," "Oft in the Stilly Night" and "Ballynure Ballad."

* * *

"Legal Possession," a true drama that shows that the crime urge is as strong in the country as in the city, is Warden Lawes' Sing Sing story for tonight, on KDKA at 9.

* * *

"Just a Love Nest," a favorite of 1921, is featured during the Corn Cob Pipe program, heard over NBC-WCAE at 10.

* * *

* * *

Harold Sanford's orchestra, with John Herrick as baritone soloist, presents a selection of songs reminiscent of the Old South—"Lindy Lou," "Down South" and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny"—over NBC-KDKA at 7:15.

* * *

HEAD HUNTERS

"Head Hunters of the Philippines," a narrative scheduled last week, but canceled, is heard over WWSW tonight at 9. Lieut. Corley McDarment, commandant of Rogers Flying Field, spins the yarn.

* * *

* * *

Gibson Girl

Josephine Gibson, local food expert, famous from Portland to Portland (Maine and Oregon) for her hints to housewives, will begin a new series of broadcasts over NBC-KDKA next Monday morning at 10.

Radio Scouts Seeking Talent

By AIRCASTER

The cry for new radio talent, emanating from both the studio headquarters and the listening public, is echoing with more volume daily through the halls of the radio temples, though the competing networks are utilizing different methods of questing.

At WEAF and WJZ, the time-honored audition system is still in force, and, strange to report, an astonishing situation has developed there.

Perhaps it is the result of the New Years resolutions; possibly it is a question of endurance, and then again, it is possible that the economic outlook has caused it, for when times are hard, the radio audition studios are invariably crowded.

Ernest Cutting, who has charge of the new talent auditions for WEAF and WJZ, happened to note the assertion here the other day that, even with fair talent, an aspirant for radio fame has about one chance in 4,000.

BETTER TALENT

"For some reason," says Cutting, which may be any one of those just mentioned, "there has, since the first of the year, been a marked improvement in the quality of talent applying for NBC jobs.

"If it continues to run in this form, the next few months should develop some extraordinary radio shows. The improvement applies to amateurs as well as professionals.

"It may be," hazards Cutting, "that singers, actors and musicians seeking radio work have come to the realization that it takes as polished a performer for the radio as for the stage or movies, or even the concert field.

"Teachers who formerly tried to shove pupils to the studio also may have seen the light."

I am told by the audition expert that interest among would-be radio stars continues unabated. But Cutting points out that fewer than 1 per cent of the applicants ever go on the air.

IN AGAIN—OUT AGAIN

Although Roxy (S. L. Rothafel) has resigned as director of the Radio City theaters, the two NBC weekly programs, which have been conducted under his guidance, will continue, if the present intention is carried out.

However, they will be presented without Roxy's assistance. At present he is on a vacation, which extends to February 16, the effective date of his resignation.

These two programs, both on the WJZ hookup, consist of a Sunday concert and a Monday night variety show, the latter being the recent revival of the Roxy Gang programs, which first went on the air nearly 12 years ago.

BEAMISH URGES BAR CLEANUP

BRADFORD, Pa., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—A nation-wide cleanup of the legal profession is urged by Richard J. Beamish, Secretary of the Commonwealth.

At a dinner in honor of Judge Joseph W. Bouton, retiring after 30 years on the bench, Beamish last night said he thinks the most honorable members of the bar are found in sections remote from the larger centers of finance. He asserted:

"The time has come for a general housecleaning in the legal profession.

"We lawyers know that the richest rewards and highest honors in our profession are given not to men who zealously strive to defend the law and to safeguard the public, but to those who are adept in steering bankers and industrialists through loopholes in the law.

"Every newspaper reader knows that behind every thwarting of justice by a rich man there has been a miscarriage of justice."

Ruth Clifford Will Sue for Divorce

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Ruth Clifford, for many years a motion picture star, announced yesterday she will seek a divorce soon from her husband, J. A. Cornelius.

Pittsburgh Fliers Grounded by Fog

Forced down in a cornfield near Pineville, Ky., Dr. Ellis Glasgow, Pittsburgh manufacturer, planned to resume his flight to Miami, Fla., today, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

Dr. Glasgow was accompanied by J. B. Franklin, pilot; Miss Jean Picard, co-pilot, and Al Hamburger, all of Pittsburgh. The ship, owned by Dr. Glasgow, was forced down by fog.

OFFICER KILLS MAN IN FIGHT

An unexplained street brawl sent an Aliquippa man to his death and another to the hospital with a bullet wound in his arm shortly before last midnight.

James Chambers, 26, of 406 Sixth avenue, Aliquippa, was shot and killed by Patrolman John Shea after he is alleged to have fired upon the officer when Shea attempted to arrest him for the shooting of Willie Emmons, 25, of 300 Sixth avenue, according to police.

Police said that Chambers and Emmons, both Negroes, became involved in an altercation at Sixth avenue and Adams street. Chambers is alleged to have shot Emmons, and fired several shots at Shea when the latter ordered him to drop his gun. Shea fired twice, one shot penetrating Chambers' leg and the other his chest.

KILLED DOCTOR TO 'HELP HIM'

READING, Pa., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Accused of slaying the socially prominent Dr. Paul R. Hess, 33, Miss Frances Sepasi, 28, early today signed a statement in which she was quoted as saying:

"I felt I would be very glad to help him, and the only thing I could do was to shoot him. As long as he remained alive he would always be able to harm himself."

Miss Sepasi refused to explain the last sentence.

She was formally charged with murder today.

Dr. Hess was shot to death as he left his automobile, outside his office, Monday evening.

Counsel for the doctor's widow said that the physician had treated Miss Sepasi while an interne in a Reading hospital and later for a nervous condition.

DOOMED BARBER GETS DELAY

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Albert Bruno, Pittsburgh barber, convicted of participation in a Toledo killing, today was granted a stay of execution by the Ohio Supreme Court.

Bruno was to have died in the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary Thursday evening for the killing of John McLaughlin, a hotel clerk. Frank Vacchiano, 22, of Dayton, was electrocuted last month for the McLaughlin killing.

The court, in announcing the stay, said it would determine later whether to make the stay indefinite or fix a definite date for its expiration.

Bruno's attorneys yesterday filed a motion for leave to file a petition in error with the Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Representative McFadden, of Canton, declined yesterday to affirm or deny reports that he might be a candidate for United States Senator from Pennsylvania next fall.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Today I have been swamped with congratulations. (If it had been three I'd have been deluged.)

It seems a violinist was asked to appear on a radio program the other night by popular demand. The dulcet tones from his violin enchanted the radio audience. His name is Louis Kaufman.

Now when I say I can't play they'll say that I want to be coaxed.

* * *

A Banksville Globe Trotter is enjoying spring. She knows that the vernal season has arrived because her daffodils, narcissus and lilies have started to shoot through the ground.

The delicate pansy has flowered already. She sent several through the mail.

* * *

"Mummy, how does he know we're listening? He must have peeked."

* * *

Mrs. Evans—No specific amount is prescribed by law. It all depends on the evidence presented to the judge.

* * *

* * *

Bill Brown—A resolution has been passed permitting the Mayor to bring an out-of-town man in to head a department. Other employes on the city payroll must be residents of the city.

'The Devil's Daughter' On 2 Stations

Altoona and Youngstown radio audiences tomorrow hear "The Devil's Daughter," dramatization of a recent sensational news story dealing with the frightful experience of a young Englishwoman who defied religious tradition in India and was held captive by native priests.

Based on a full account of the incident, appearing in next Sunday's American Weekly, big feature magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, "The Devil's Daughter" is heard over WFBG, Altoona, Thursday afternoon at 3; over WKBN, Youngstown, Thursday evening at 8:15.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

LET'S TAKE A LOOK AT YOUR GAS BILL!

Let's look at this gas bill in terms of the service it represents to the average family.

First, it means cooking about 90 meals (and doing all the baking) for a family of four, at a cost of about 1 cent per meal!

It means heating water for washing dishes at least 90 times per month, at a cost that is less than that of the soap used. It means heating water in large volume for at least four wash days—and for baths for the entire family for a whole month. And more than likely it means using a radiant heater or two on chilly mornings and evenings to supplement the central heating plant.

And all this service—which saves time, takes much of the drudgery out of housekeeping, and adds greatly to comfort and convenience in the home—costs less than 10 cents per day for the average family!

Even though your gas bill may be higher than this general average, where else can you buy so much—of comfort, convenience and labor saving—as you get for the dollar you spend for Gas?

Take a look at your gas bill in terms of what gas does for you. Then you'll realize as you never have before that Natural Gas is almost the cheapest thing you buy for your home.

When Kidney Trouble Causes You To Get Up Nights

When Bladder Is Irritated
When Passage Is Difficult
When Backache Bothers
Flush Poisonous Waste and Acid From Kidneys

Through the delicate filters of the kidneys, acid and poisonous waste are drawn from the blood and discharged from the body thru the bladder—sometimes these filters become clogged with poisonous waste and kidneys do not function properly—they need a good cleaning.

One reliable medicine, highly efficient and inexpensive is GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—you can't go wrong on this grand medicine for it has been helping people for 50 years—to correct their aches and pains and to banish uric acid conditions, the aggravation of sciatica, neuritis, neuralgia, lumbago and rheumatism.

So if you have such symptoms of Kidney trouble as backache, nervousness, getting up two or three times during the night—scanty, burning or smarting passage—leg cramps—moist palms or puffy eyes, get a 35-cent package of this grand diuretic at any modern drug store—it starts the first day on its errand of helpfulness.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Back in Pittsburgh after a week-end of wedding festivities are the Allen K. Shenks, of South Negley avenue. They were in Erie to attend the wedding, Saturday, of Sarah Reed Whitley and Malcolm McCallum, which took place in St. Paul's Cathedral. Mr. Shenk was best man. He also gave one of the pre-nuptial parties.

Louise Glover Will Have April Wedding

A betrothal, which will end in an April wedding, has been made known. The Mortimer Glovers, of Thornburg, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Louise Glover, to James E. Swan, Jr., son of the James E. Swans, of Charleston, S. C.

The engagement was revealed at a luncheon given by Mrs. Kenneth White-Spunner, sister of the bride-to-be, in her home in Crafton Saturday afternoon.

Louise is a graduate of Ashley Hall, Charleston, and Mr. Swan, of the Citadel, a military school in Charleston, and of Union College, Schenectady, N. Y. He's a member of the Carolina Yacht Club and the Charleston Bachelors' Cotillion.

Alumnae of Thurston Open Soup Kitchen

Early this morning, Thurston School alumnae were busy—for today they started a soup kitchen. And the members arrived at the school—the Fort Pitt—early this morning, laden with last-minute equipment.

Beginning today, they'll serve hot luncheons to the undernourished children. Mrs. C. B. Cunningham and Miss Myrtle Hargrave head the soup kitchen committee.

They are aided by Valerie Kapp, Mrs. James Crookston, Dorothy and Helen McCune, Mrs. Charles Albertson, Mrs. Marshall J. H. Jones, Mrs. John Booth and Mrs. Charles Berghane.

And they in turn will be aided by the entire association, which will help to keep the soup kitchen committee "in funds" for the needed groceries.

Even though prosperity is returni[illegible] it is still missing a few, and it is a group of these the Thurston Soup Kitchen will aid. Even in boom days, there were soup kitchens in some of the districts.

Junior League Art Show Open to Public

Beginning today and continuing through February 3, another one of those unusual art exhibits is open to the public in the Junior League clubrooms, Clark Building. The Junior League's art and interests committee, headed by Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland, is arranging the entire series of exhibits.

The current exhibit is representative of floral painting from the tenth to the twentieth centuries. It also included precious tapestries, paintings on velvet, and wood-carving.

Winter Sports Begin Here Tomorrow Night

Tomorrow night skating enthusiasts among the fashionables will don gay sports wear, and flock to Duquesne Gardens for the formal opening of winter sports—for winter sports in Pittsburgh on any big scale have to be indoors.

The skaters, called Snow Birds, will open the grown-ups' annual skating season tonight between 7 and 8:30 o'clock.

* * *

There will be another debutante luncheon tomorrow. Mrs. J. Merrill Wright, of Beechwood boulevard, will give the luncheon in the Pittsburgh Golf Club for the debs in honor of Mary Gordon, the Frank B. Gordons' daughter.

And after almost a week of partyless days for this group, the entertainment will be particularly enjoyable.

Miss Regna Studa Stone Betrothed to Ohio Man

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Regna Studa Stone, daughter of Edward L. Stone, of Morrison drive, to Jack Tracy Diebold, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Diebold, of Canton, O.

Miss Stone is a graduate of Southern Seminary, Buena Vista, Va., and her fiance is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, and a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity.

Simple But Pretty Ceremony Distinguishes Marriage Of Miss Mary Burns

A simple but pretty ceremony this morning distinguished the marriage of Miss Mary Conner Burns and Louis V. Walsh, Jr. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Burns, of North Negley avenue, and the bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Walsh, of Crafton.

Miss Eleanor Dunlevy, her cousin's maid of honor, wore a colonial dress of old gold taffeta having ruffles at the hemline, long sleeves, and a hat of brown malline. She carried a muff of old gold lace with red roses. Edward G. Byrnes was the best man.

There was a breakfast in the Hotel Schenley for only the families and later from 2 to 5 o'clock a reception in the Burns home for their friends. Receiving with the bridal party, the bride's mother wore fuschia velvet with a matching hat and corsage of orchids, and the bridegroom's mother chose black and chartreuse chiffon with a matching hat and corsage of gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Walsh, Jr., will be at home here.

Although everyone's fancy is lightly turning to thoughts of spring odds and ends . . . if not entirely new wardrobes . . . still, the news which one shop has regarding a sale of Northern Seal Fur Coats at $49.50, is not to be passed up!

Because, they come in all sizes . . . and a size 44 in a fur coat at this price is worth noting! Full length of course . . . and the sort of sleek, little sophisticates that it's easy to shrug into on a coolish spring day . . . or salt down for next fall's first frost!

* * *

And here is something whose light has been rather hidden under a bushel for some time! Hose Savers—the kind which keep Old Man Runner from starting down from the top of the stocking. They're very simple and comfortable . . . and are good for holding down foundation garments which have a tendency to "climb!" 50c the pair.

DOROTHY RANDALL

By PRUNELLA WOOD

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE to keep one's mind on woolies and galoshes with the thermometer coquettish as a zephyr and temperamental as a diva. The female heart yearns for spring duds every other day at least, when a false promise of spring softens the air between dirty weather—and why not requite this feeling? —designers are saying.

One of the really tried and true styles is back with us again for just this purpose. It is the gown which combines a dark skirt with a lighter top, and sees to it that the line of the model is frippery enough to conceal any utilitarian virtues to the diminishing point.

By having an extravagant flare, or even a slight train on the skirt, and by elaborating the blouse by draping or other devices, such frocks are set apart from the casual parti-colored tailored costumes which look so well at luncheon or tea, ensembled with winter coats.

Pink and black—the blouse heavily ribbed faille, and the romantic skirt velour paysanne—makes this 'tween season formal gown for the North or the South. The black balibuntal hat is trimmed with a tiny halo veil of toyo lace. Note the raised waistline of the skirt.

* * *

EVER SINCE the First Lady of the Land chose to wear light velvet for her inaugural gown, other women have reckoned with this fabric for costumes looking forward to spring, and many of the latest models are made of it, combined with chiffon, taffeta, faille, or other novelty silks. In the South these gowns are worn with big straw hats; up here, small hats that show off most of one's coiffure are more usual.

* * *

IT IS INTERESTING to note that most of these advance spring dresses have not one thread or gadget-trimming of metal on them. That alone, after a season that has glittered gorgeously, is enough to make them novel in the light manner which is so enviable, now. Pink and black, bois de rose and seal brown, and beige with dark violet are some of the lovelier color combinations.

Epworthians Give Play Tomorrow

The Epworthian Players, representing the 16 Methodist Episcopal Churches of the South Hills District, will offer their second major production of the season tomorrow and Friday in the Mt. Lebanon Church on Washington Road. The cast for the play, a three-act comedy-drama entitled "Out of the Past," is Betty Jane Williams, Wilda Morris, Margaret Doescher, June Williams, Ruth Ann Dettling, John J. Davis, David Aitktn, Clarence Kerisko, H. B. Trautman, and Lionel Poulten.

Importance of Keeping Families Intact Cited

Mrs. Alice Liveright, secretary of the State Department of Welfare, addressed the South Hills College Club at a meeting in Dormont New Century Club last night. Mrs. Liveright spoke particularly of child welfare problems and emphasized the fact that her department's chief function is to keep families together, for statistics have proved that the majority of men and boys in penal institutions have been products of broken homes.

The cornerstone of the department's welfare program is prevention, she said. Miss Grace McMillan added piano solos to the program.

Mrs. Haynes to Direct Thursday Club Meeting

Tomorrow's meeting of the Thursday Afternoon Club of Wilkinsburg will be held in the Y. W. C. A. Community House, with Mrs. L. M. Haynes, directing the meeting. Norman M. Jeannero, of the Post-Gazette, is talking on "Accumulation of News" and hostesses are Mrs. R. D. Evans, Mrs. J. H. McCulloch and Mrs. Carl Rogers.

Episcopal Auxiliary Will Meet Tomorrow

The annual meeting of the Diocesan Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Church tomorrow in St. Andrew's Church, will be preceded by a celebration of the Holy Communion. The meeting will be addressed by C. Rankin Barnes, of the Christian social service department of the National Council. A book exchange will also be held and luncheon will be served.

Woman Reports Husband Missing

Search was being made for Albert F. Frame, 39, who disappeared from his home at 1024 Chelton street, Brookline, last night. Mrs. Frame, who reported the disappearance, said she believed her husband had left for California in company of two North Side women.

Boy Runs Against Side of Auto, Hurt

Running into the side of an automobile, according to police, John Hoobrock, 13, of 3727 Frazier street, was in Magee Hospital today suffering a probable fracture of the skull. The automobile was driven by Frank Herer, of 602 North St. Clair street, police said.

Kreisler Returns To America Alone

"What Is a Good Citizen?" "Home and Citizenship" and "Jurisdiction of the Courts in Pennsylvania" are the three topics being brought up for discussion today by the Braddock Woman's Club.

Under Mrs. S. R. McClure's leadership, the papers are being given by Mrs. W. B. Decker, Mrs. Ida Morgan and Mrs. W. J. Aiken. The regular meeting place is the First Methodist Episcopal Church.

Duchess Club to Plan For Benefit Card Party

A meeting of the Duchess Club of Duquesne University will be held in Reymer's Clark Building Tea Room, Monday evening. Plans will be made for the benefit card party to be held at the same place, Saturday afternoon, January 27.

The president, Evelyn M. Tray, has appointed Alice Pfannenschmidt as general chairman of the affair.

Crafton Heights Club Postpones Reception

The Crafton Heights Woman's Club has postponed its president's day reception for a week and will have it Thursday afternoon, January 18, in the Crafton Heights Methodist Episcopal Church. The program will consist of two dramatic sketches by club members and music by the Ingram Club Choral. The executive board will take charge during the tea hour.

Col. G. A. Burrell Will Address Ingram Club

Members of the Woman's Club of Ingram and their husbands will be entertained at the home of Mrs. L. P. Feinberg, Center street, tomorrow evening. Col. George A. Burrell, author, engineer and traveler, will speak on "Russia Today." During the social hour the hostess will be assisted by Mrs. W. W. Benedict.

This afternoon Col. Burrell is addressing the readers' group of the University of Pittsburgh Women's Association at a meeting in the old College Club Building. "The Industrial Plan in Soviet Russia" is his subject. "Recent Happenings in Russia" are being discussed by Mme. Sana Mouromtzeff, who is also presenting a musical program of her own compositions. A Russian tea follows the program, with Mrs. Paul F. Shupp and Mrs. Judson A. Crane pouring.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Lewis Stone, who plays a Swedish statesman in the cast surrounding Greta Garbo in "Queen Christina," coming to the Nixon next Monday night, to open a week that will consist of two performances daily thereafter, will be seen in his seventh picture with the Swedish star. In all of the others except one he has had a confidential role of something of the same nature as the one he plays in "Queen Christina." The exception is "Grand Hotel," in which he was cast as the doctor whose encounter with life had left him disfigured and cynical. Miss Garbo's leading man also is one who has appeared with her in many pictures. In fact, he was co-featured with her in the days she was establishing her reputation as a great emotional artist. That would be John Gilbert.

George Jaffe, who is celebrating his 20 years in the burlesque field, is convinced that things are on the upgrade, and that burlesque is a good barometer of business. He reports that the last months of '33 and the first week of '34 show the best business in years, and that patrons he has not seen in three years are again patronizing his theater. The majority of his customers, he says, are just the common, everyday folks in ordinary occupations, and, with increased occupation, they are again seeking recreation. He estimates that business is 25 per cent better than it was a year ago, hence, figures that must be the index of business in general, especially the show business, of which he considers burlesque the measuring stick.

Miss Del Rio Flying East For Visit

By HARRISON CARROLL

Miss Del Rio

Dolores went bobbed for "Flying Down to Rio" and she is keen about the new coiffure—says it gives her versatility and allows her to play modern, dressed-up roles.

The studio, on the other hand, wants her to return to the old distinctive Del Rio hairdress for "Dance of Desire." They don't ask her to let her bobbed locks grow long. She can wear a wig or they can add length to her own hair.

The matter has been argued back and forth for a week or more and, however it may sound like a publicity story, is an on-the-level argument.

The Mexican star and Cedric Gibbons plan to stay two weeks in New York. They'll see the plays and Dolores will lay in a wardrobe. It's her first trip East in four years, and she admits being excited.

As Norman Taurog tells it, Eddie Lambert, the Jewish comedian, bought a $75 coat and sent it back East to his father for Christmas. The old gentleman doesn't believe in wasting money, so Eddie told him it cost only $20.

On the day before New Years, he received the following wire:

"Send six more coats. Just sold the one you gave me for $30."

Not satisfied with bringing in an oil well, Bing Crosby is going into the real estate business. The crooning star has bought a 10-acre walnut grove near his Toluca Lake home and is subdividing it into lots. He will also branch out as a builder, having made plans to erect four houses for sale.

Maybe Hollywood will take Francis Lederer's hobby of world peace more seriously now. The Czech matinee idol has been invited to deliver a lecture on the subject at Stanford University. . . . Since the heavy rainstorm, both Joan Crawford and Jackie Cooper's mother have had automatic pumps installed in their basements. Joan spent most of New Year's Eve trying to keep her cellar from flooding with water.

Now it comes out why Mrs. Pat Campbell was so anxious to have her famous white Pekingese, Moonbeam, play a part in "Rip Tide."

English quarantine laws are very strict about taking dogs into the country. Mrs. Campbell discovered that the restrictions are off for trained or professional animals.

Even if Moonbeam appears in only one scene, he will qualify, and the actress can take him right in when she makes her next trip to London.

All roads lead to Hollywood. Latest cinema candidate is Mrs. Virginia Lehmann, wife of Edward J. Lehmann, Jr., Chicago department store owner. Under the name of Virginia Pine, she is working as a chorine in Buddy De Sylva's picture, "Bottoms Up." She lives at the fashionable Garden of Allah with her baby and a secretary...Muriel Evans and Monroe Owsley are going places together again...The football helmet Norman McLeod got all the Stanford players to autograph was for a little deaf and dumb boy...There are plenty of squawks about the driving tactics of an eastern producer now making a movie in Hollywood. Several days ago he worked a group of chorus girls from 8 a. m. until 3 p. m., without time off for lunch, or anything...Fay Bainter arrived in Hollywood, and left with only two suit cases... Billie Bakewell is giving competition to Pancho Lucas. He has been showering Jean Parker with gifts.

Herbert Marshall plays the leading role in "I Was a Spy," picture that will be shown in the stage and screen bill in the Pitt, beginning Friday.

Critics Select 'Ten Best'

You, perhaps, have seen lists of "the ten best pictures" of 1933 selected by various individuals. Now come "the 10 best," as selected by the combined vote of all, or nearly all, the movie critics in the United States, including those of all the newspapers of Pittsburgh, in the annual poll conducted by The Film Daily. The list follows:

1—"Cavalcade," 304 votes.
2—"42nd Street," 209 votes.
3—"Private Life of Henry VIII," 187 votes.
4—"Lady For a Day," 173 votes.
5—"State Fair," 169 votes.
6—"Farewell To Arms," 167 votes.
7—"She Done Him Wrong," 158 votes.
8—"I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang," 156 votes.
9—"Maedchen In Uniform," 137 votes.
10—"Rasoutin and The Empress," 128 votes.

The nearest runners-up were "Animal Kingdom," 121 votes; "Tugboat Annie," 102 votes; "When Ladies Meet," 94 votes; "Morning Glory," 86 votes.

Pictures eligible for vote were those released between October 31, 1932, and November 1, 1933.

Two of them, "Henry VIII" and "Maecdchen In Uniform," are pictures made in Europe. Never before have two foreign photoplays received such recognition in one year. In fact, only two films from abroad have been so honored in all previous votes.

Hungry Club to Hear Talk by NRA Leader

'Up Pops the Devil' To Open Tonight

The Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse will present the third show of its winter season, "Up Pops the Devil," comedy, by Hackett and Goodrich, in the Hotel Schenley Theater tonight, the first of three evening performances. It is directed by Alfred E. Smith. Helen Wayne and Reginald Stanborough will play the lead roles, others in the cast being J. Robert Jahn, H. Schofield, Regis Manning, Elaine Boughner, Malcolm McAlpine, Roberta Welch, Hyman Bennett, Clarissa Gailliot, T. Ellen Grieger and Theodore Savage. The sets for "Up Pops the Devil" are designed and executed by Edwin Cooper, scenic director, and M. W. Felder, technical director. "Up Pops the Devil" concerns domestic difficulties of a couple living in a Greenwich Village studio-apartment. An unwritten novel, a siren and paternity are among its elements.

A LOVE THAT LIVES FOREVER—THE STRANGEST AND MOST EXQUISITE ROMANCE EVER WRITTEN—FULFILLING ALL YOUR DREAMS

A man of the present looking backward. A girl of the past looking forward. A love story that spans time to live through eternity.

No other actor could rise to the heights attained by Leslie Howard in the role of Peter Standish. Fear, despair, humor, tenderness, passion, and emotion are alternately registered with rare magnificence. And Heather Angel's sweetness and poetic charm, captivates.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

A Very Dumb Guy

EN ROUTE TO NEW YORK:—In order to rest up on the Hollywood stuff for a day or so, I'll do another type of yarn for today. It's the story of a dumb guy named Joe. And when I say dumb, that's exactly what I mean.

If Joe had ever attended school, he certainly kept it a deep and dark secret. He had a family somewhere, but he had long since forgotten where they lived. He was short, with close set shoe-button eyes, and his black hair dropped down from under the front of his hat in a Napoleonic manner. His best friends called him "Joe the Dope."

There you have it. There's the man, and you could write until doomsday without changing him one bit for better or worse. I have little sympathy for him. He wouldn't have wanted it anyway. He was dumb and blissfully happy and if he only had been born with looks, he could have made the front line of the "Follies." . . .

Annie was the girl's name. Five years ago she walked in on Joe, hung her hat up on the floor, and made herself at home. Where she came from, Joe couldn't tell you. He had seen her once or twice before, and knew that she was a mob moll. But whose, and when, he never heard.

The boys in Joe the Dope's gang had very little respect for his mental proficiency, but the moment that Annie became Mrs. Joe the Dope, they all agreed that the age of miracles had not passed. Annie, you see, was a keen number. She was blonde and roundish and had a baby face like the late Two-Gun Crowley.

They sort of expected that Joe would open up and explain how he came to be so lucky, but he didn't. He just grinned foolishly and did as he was told, and went home. So one night the Big Boss decided to ask.

"Howya, Joe?" he began. "Everything okay?"

"Yeah. I'm doin' all right, Sure."

"Okay. Fine, boss. Fine."

"Well, I gotta home—if that's what they mean."

The boss laughed.

"Isn't there a lady in the case, Joe?"

"Oh, Annie."

"Yes!"

"Oh, her. She's stayin' at my place."

"Well, how come, Joe?"

"Nuts."

"Whassat, boss?"

"Skip it." . . .

They never got any more than that out of Joe the Dope. From time to time they saw her, but the Dope never mentioned her name. At home he seldom spoke to her unless she addressed him. He wanted to talk, but he couldn't think of anything to say.

Last fall the mob wised up to her. They knew that she was beginning to cheat. After four years of taking Joe's money, she was giving him a bad deal. As is true in most cases of that type, everyone in the world knew it but the man who should have.

The boys felt sorry for Joe the Dope. They didn't mind it when a smart-aleck was doubletimed, but it seemed like taking advantage to cheat on a guy like Joe. Two of the fellows wanted to wise him up, but the boss said no. It's better to steer clear of affairs like that.

Month after month went by, and still Annie pleaded that she wanted to do a bit of night shopping, or see a sick friend, or take a ferryboat ride alone. Joe always patted her on the shoulder and said: "Okay, kid. I'll be here when you come back." And he was.

Then came the payoff. Joe the Dope came home one evening and found Annie and two expressmen removing a few trunks from the premises.

"Hey, Annie!" he yelled into the kitchen. "Where we goin'?"

"So you're here," she said. "Well, sit down. I wanna talk to you."

Joe sat down. So did she, on the other side of the room.

"We're not going any place," she said, pointing a finger at the dumb guy. "But I am. Annie doesn't live here any more."

"Oh," he said. "A vacation?"

She shrugged helplessly.

"Yes," she said. "From you. For life."

"Whaddya mean?"

"This. I'm walking out. I'm through. I've been here for four years, and it doesn't seem a day less than forty-four I'm so sick of your ugly face I could scream. I'm walking out of here, Joe the Dope, and you'll never see me again. Not if I can help it, anyway."

"Another man?"

"Say! You're getting positively brilliant. Of course, it's another man. A real man. It might interest you to know that he's a Rumanian Count. A member of a royal family. But I forgot. You wouldn't understand. I might as well save my breath."

"Gee, Annie. Can't I do somethin' to sort of straighten——"

"So long—Annie." . . .

He heard her feet go down the stairs. He heard them grow fainter and fainter. Then the front door slammed. Slumped down in the chair, his hand reached for the phone, and he listlessly called a number.

"'Lo, Belle? . . . Joe. Yeah. Lissen, Baby Doll. It worked. Yeah . . . I got a fren a mine which owns a one-arm beanery to pose as a Rumanian Count and Annie's fell for him hard. She jess left. Yeah . . . Now Joe the Dope will be able to see lots more of you, baby . . . Yeah." . . .

MUSIC

Tuesday Musical Club

Soldiers' Memorial Hall

The Tuesday Musical club offered its artist program yesterday afternoon in Soldiers' Memorial Hall, departing from the usual concert program and instead having Mark H. Haight, lecturer, and his piano accompanist, George Ryall.

Mr. Lissfelt

Haight, by a series of beautiful stereopticon and moving pictures, guided his audience through the life of Richard Wagner, beginning with the birth house in the Leipzig Bruhl, through actual scenes of "Tannhaeuser" and all the other romantic operas to his death in the Palazzo Vandramin in Venice, revealing the conditions under which Wagner labored to produce his first recognized work, the "Faust Overture," and in contrast the surroundings produced for him by King Ludwig II, under whose patronage he produced his most significant work, the Nibelungen Ring.

George Ryall at the piano selected the "Dreams" and also the "Liebestod" from "Tristan and Isolde" as solo pieces during the program, and further played fitting accompaniments to the pictures, with piano arrangements of a section of the "Faust" overture, the Pilgrims' Chorus, and the Venus music from Tannhaeuser.

WIFE WHO PAID FOR GAS SUES

When her husband drove up to the gasoline station to fill the tank, she had to pay for the gas, Viola McCollum, 119 Arlington avenue, testified before Judge Harry H. Rowand in asking a divorce from Ottis R. McCollum.

She complained she had to spend too much out of her own earnings to help keep her husband and protested to him about it. Three years ago they separated. They were married August 30, 1915.

Mrs. McCollum, who had kept a millinery store at Coraopolis, stressed the fact that she had largely supported herself for some time and sold the furniture when they parted.

Judge Rowand was not entirely satisfied with the testimony produced to show desertion and asked counsel to present a brief to substantiate the charge. McCollum had entered an appearance in the case, but did not appear to defend it.

LAUD ENGINEER SAFETY MARK

Forty-seven construction units out of 61 under supervision of the United States District Engineer's office here operated last year without a "lost time accident," according to a report made by Maj. W. D. Styer, in charge, to the National Safety Council.

The total exposure of these men during that time was 1,180,000 man-hours, Maj. Styer pointed out.

In commenting upon this safety record, the safety council report said:

"This excellent record can be more readily appreciated when it is understood that average normal experience for this class of work would result in approximately two fatalities, seven permanent partial disability cases and 151 lost time injuries."

Melchers Pictures Going On Display

BLAST HURTS 50 AT OHIO SHOW

METAMORA, O., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Between 50 and 60 persons of an audience of 300 were hurt when ceiling plaster in the high school auditorium fell last night after an explosion that accompanied a fire in the motion picture projector room.

The explosion occurred when fumes from the burning film filtered into the space between the ceiling of the auditorium and the second floor of the building.

Henry F. Johnson, movie operator, was in the booth alone when the film caught fire. He extinghished it alone, bnt later was nearly overcome by the fumes. A faulty ventilating system in the booth caused the fumes to collect between the ceiling and second floor.

The house manager prevented a stampede when he quietly addressed the audience. About two-thirds of the audience were children.

Changes 13 on Tags Just to Please Family

The number 13 has no terrors for Thomas Hudson, assistant cashier of the First National Bank of Pittsburgh, but other members of the Hudson family are just faintly superstitious.

That's why Hudson had his 1934 automobile license plates changed—to please the folks. Explaining, he said:

"If you're a man with a family, you know how it is. For myself, I'll walk under ladders, look a cross-eyed man smack in the face, or defy any other jinx."

To have his license number changed from 91-K-13 to one not containing the jinx 13 cost Hudson one dollar.

WARNS AGAINST BIRTH DROP

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Dr. O. E. Baker, senior agricultural economist of the United States Department of Agriculture, predicts that "if the present trend of depopulation continues, in 1970 there will be no children at all."

Dr. Baker made his prediction last night while addressing the annual convention of the state's extension service workers at the University of Maryland.

He said only in the rural sections of Northern New England and some rural sections of New York have the birth rate shown an increase recently, adding that there were 600,000 fewer births in the United States last year than in 1921.

Man Charges Wife's Friends Beat Him Up

Attacked by two men whom he said he had seen with his wife in William Penn way early today, according to police, Frank Kattell, 25, of 175 Wabash avenue, was treated for lacerations to his face in Alleghany General Hospital.

Kattell was found bleeding from his injury at William Penn way and Sixth avenue. He told police he had been hunting his wife and found her in an automobile with two men. When he called out the men left the machine, he told police, and attacked him.

BOY, 14, KILLED 'HOPPING' RIDE

Nine-year-old John Burke, Jr., of 1411 Lakewood street, was dead today, a victim of a fall from the side of a truck at Chartiers avenue and Attica street, on which he and several other schoolboys were riding home from school late yesterday.

The boy apparently lost his hold and fell beneath the right rear wheel of a heavy truck driven by Joseph L. Watters, 32, of 5116 Broad street, police said.

John, a fourth-grade pupil at St. James' School, West End, was the eldest of six children.

MRS. PINCHOT SPURNS ROOSEVELT'S FOR IDLE

POLITICS

Copeland Boomed for Governor

By MARK SHIELDS

The boom of Judge Charles D. Copeland, of Westmoreland County, for Democratic nomination as a candidate for Governor has come officially into the open through an indorsement by the Westmoreland County Bar Association.

Mr. Shields

A resolution adopted Monday afternoon at a meeting in Greensburg said the President Judge of the court "has become known throughout the commonwealth as an eminent jurist and is probably more widely known, not only among the legal profession, but among the people in general, than any other Democratic judge in the state."

The resolution continued that members of the Westmoreland County bar, "regardless of politics," are able to certify to the qualifications of Judge Copeland. Thereupon it called upon the judge to announce as a candidate in the 1934 primary, to be held next May, and commended him to the people.

Some Democrats who have been single-minded in their political affiliation noted particularly that the recommendation was made "regardless of politics," explaining that the judge in his home county had as often been embroiled in Republican primaries as in the Democratic squabbles. However, some of those who joined these single-minded patriots in this observation are not themselves without past records of delving into Republican affairs.

The candidacy of Judge Copeland would undoubtedly be a formidable adventure. The judge, as his legal associates said, is well known, especially in the East, where he has sat frequently as a visiting judge. He has some well-wishing friends among regular Republicans, East and West, and should he win the nomination could count on some substantial assistance from these quarters should the Republicans name a candidate in whom they were only mildly interested.

As an illustration, he would have been supported by Republican bolters in 1930 against Gov. Pinchot with more enthusiasm than was Capt. John M. Hemphill.

* * *

Candidacy Not Relished By Guffey, Lawrence

The candidacy of Judge Copeland would not be relished by the gentlemen at present in control of the Democratic state committee. It would be particularly distasteful to Joseph F. Guffey and David L. Lawrence, who for the moment are vocally behind the candidacy of State Chairman Warren Van Dyke.

There are some skeptics who believe that the Van Dyke movement is no more than a mask for later developments. Should matters reach a point where Van Dyke was forced into the race as the Guffey-Lawrence candidate that might be a different story. Perhaps there is no man they would more prefer in the Governor's chair, as he would be a friend responsive to their urgings.

Judge Copeland would not. He would run the game himself, and the primary, should he become a candidate, would be a struggle not only for the nomination, but for control of the party machinery through the contest over state committeemen. Party control would mean a state chairman friendly to the winner, as well as a national committeeman and national committeewoman of the same fealty. The present national committeeman, Sedgwick Kistler, represented the faction Guffey and Lawrence defeated in the last state committee meeting, and the national committeewoman is Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, wife of the recognized Roosevelt leader.

How far the judge will go with the proposition is yet to be ascertained. But his name no longer is a vague whispering, the action of his associates at the bar giving it an official kick-off.

Benedum Leaves With Malone Fate Unsettled

M. L. Benedum has told friends that he is going to Florida Sunday, the day before Council next meets to receive any nominations made by Mayor William N. McNair, and in which its concurrence is required.

That means that Mr. Benedum will depart with the status of James F. Malone, his and Mr. McNair's choice for Safety Director, still unofficially unsettled. Because there are five Councilmen committed against Mr. Malone his name so far has not been submitted. Mr. McNair has not intimated any second choice, and his observations from time to time that he has one function, Council another, indicates that eventually he will bring the Malone matter to a showdown, having him rejected or confirmed.

Mr. Benedum's departure should not be construed as a confession that his efforts on behalf of Mr. Malone have proven fruitless, and that he may as well go where the weather is more salubrious and Councilmen more complaisant. It is not unusual for him to make such trips.

Nevertheless, there will be many to assume that Mr. Benedum has given up the fight over this place. Even should one or more of the five Councilmen who have opposed Mr. Malone wish now to make a change because of a sincere conviction that a mistake has been made, such action would be extremely embarrassing in light of the widespread discussion which has occurred, the disclosure of the source of Mr. Malone's support, and the public interest in the subject.

COLLECT STATE SALES TAX AT LOW COST

Half As Expensive As Imposing Levy On Incomes

The state spent around one cent a tax dollar to collect approximately nine million five hundred thousand dollars in the emergency sales tax effected by the 1932 Legislature, it was learned today at the office of Leon Metzger, secretary of revenue.

This compares with nearly two cents a tax dollar spent by the federal government to collect income taxes.

Records of the state department show that the exact amount of the tax collected was $9,412,674 so far. When the tax was adopted by the Legislature for a six-month period, it was estimated that it would bring in twelve million dollars to the treasury.

LOWEST EBB

Metzger later explained that the tax covered the period of the lowest ebb in the depression, and when the tax was due to be paid to the state, the bank holiday was in force.

There was no extra force engaged to collect the tax from the various merchants and business houses of the state. Metzger estimated, several months ago, that the cost of collection was one cent a dollar, and added that if any drive to collect every cent due had meen made, the cost would not be in excess of three cents.

A field force of 25 men devoted about a third of their time to the sales tax, it was learned, and an equal number handled it in the central office.

SELF-ASSESSING

The Pennsylvania tax was self-assessing. This reduced the collection cost, according to Metzger. Records showed that there were 170,000 persons who voluntarily filed their forms. He explained that the field force interviewed 7,500 others and secured their taxes.

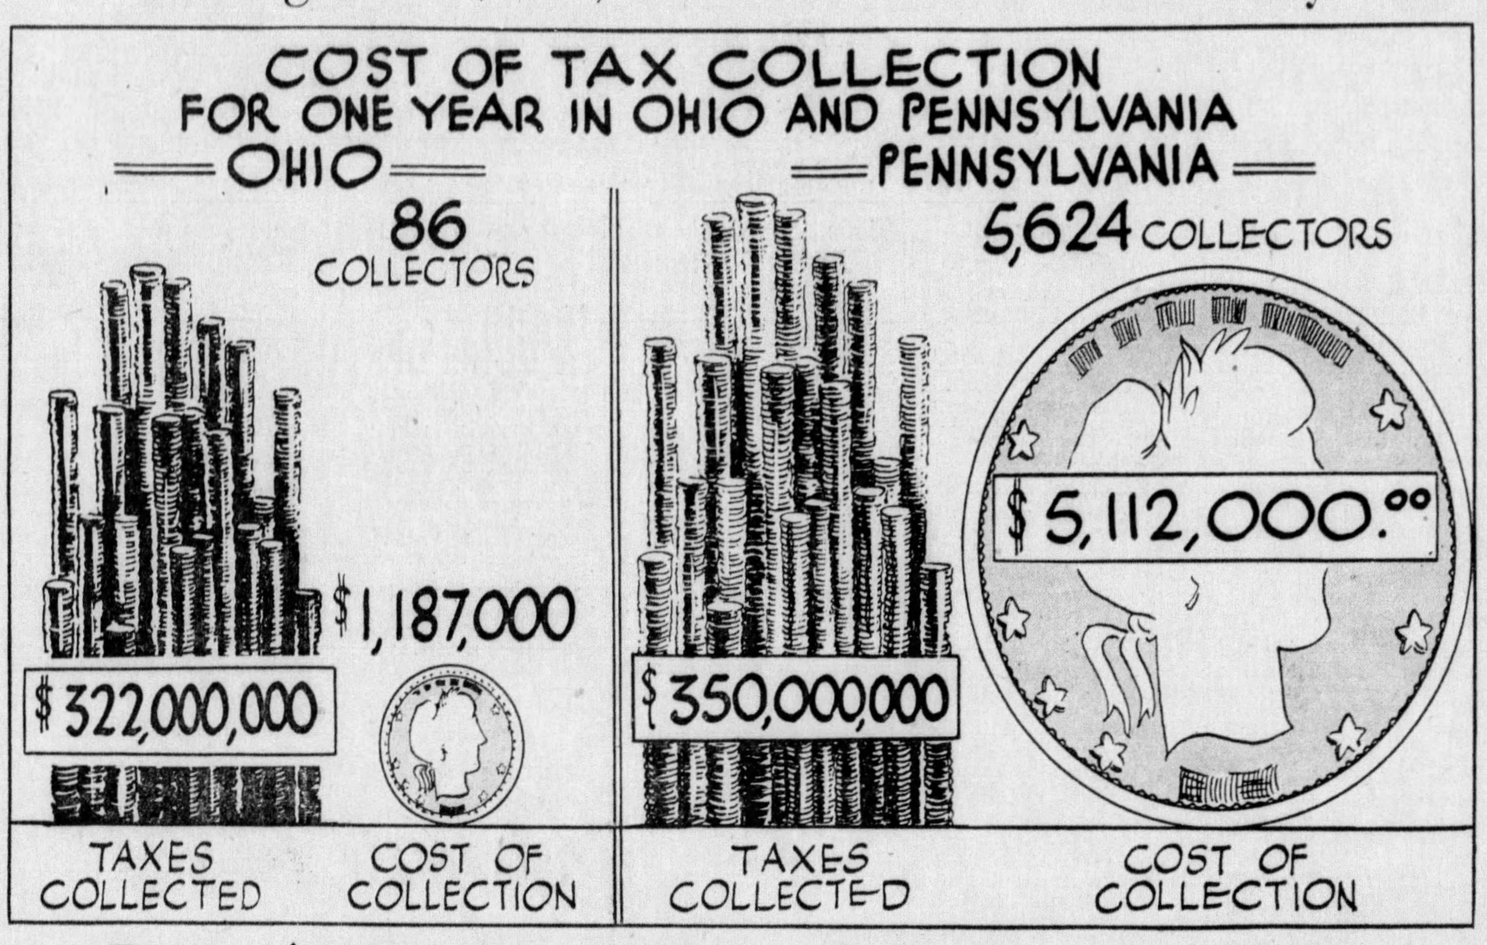
Metzger added that interstate commerce presented no impossible barrier. He did mention that there was some resentment against the tax itself.

The federal government's cost of collecting income tax for the fiscal year of 1933, which terminated last June 30, was $1.85 per $100 of tax money. In the previous years, the cost had been $2.15. But the addition of many new taxes, the majority of them self-assessing, such as beer, gasoline, electrical energy, stamps and manufacturers sales tax, brought about the reduction in the cost of collection per tax dollar.

Brentwood Man Slugged, Robbed

John Lohm, 40, of 2906 Pyramid street, Brentwood, was slugged and robbed of $45 by a robber at Washington street and Yuba way. He was taken to Mercy Hospital.

One Tax Collector for Each County Would Mean Saving of $3,000,000 to Residents of Pennsylvania



5,624 Jobholders Share Vast Sum in Commissions

Elimination of Pennsylvania's army of tax collectors in favor of a central receiver of taxes in each of the 57 counties, would result in a saving of at least three or four million dollars annually to the taxpayers of this commonwealth, opponents of the present system believe.

Pennsylvania at present has 5,624 tax collectors, all getting a portion of the money they collect in county, borough, township and school taxes.

In Allegheny County in 1932, Allegheny County taxpayers had to pay commissioned collectors $232,397.61 for the collection of $23,732,157.61 in city, borough, township, poor and county taxes. This does not include the amount paid out for collection of school taxes, which is almost equal the commission for the other taxes.

The table printed with this article shows the amount of taxes collected for each purpose and from the boroughs, townships and cities; the amounts paid out in commissions and the average cost per one dollar collected.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in 1928, collected three hundred and fifty million dollars in taxes. To bring this amount into the respective treasuries it cost the taxpayers $5,112,000.

SAVINGS POSSIBLE

Pennsylvania could do well to take a lesson from its neighbor, Ohio, where, in 1928, the same year, three hundred and twenty-two million dollars in taxes were collected. But in Ohio it cost only $1,187,000 to collect the taxes. In plain words, Pennsylvania would save nearly four million dollars a year by following the example set by Ohio.

Nearly $800,000 went into the pockets of approximately 150 tax collectors in Allegheny County in 1931. In this year the county delinquent tax collector earned for himself, free of all expenses, $106,000 in return for the collection of about two million dollars in delinquent taxes. This fee was received from the 10 per cent commissions. In 1932 the commission was cut to 5 per cent.

At present the delinquent tax collector has between 30 and 35 deputies working for him in the various boroughs and townships. In addition there are about 119 other collectors scattered throughout the county, all receiving their share of commission for the collection of school, borough or township taxes.

MRS. MILLERS'S VIEW

Commenting on the tax collecting system, Mrs. J. O. Miller of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters, said:

"Due to the depression we are faced with serious conditions in many branches of government. It would now seem that we should press for reform that would be permanent rather than palliative; reform that would save money. In Maryland where I spend my summers, all school, county, state and municipal taxes are collected by the county treasurer at a great saving to the taxpayers. This reform in Pennsylvania would save at least two million dollars annually."

The Western Pennsylvania branch of the National Economy League points out that in at least 21 states, all local taxes are collected through one county officer. In at least two Pennsylvania cities the tax collection cost has been greatly reduced by centralization. Such a system is in vogue in Philadelphia and Scranton.

SAVING IN CITY

In 1931—the same year the delinquent tax collector here earned more than $100,000 for collecting approximately two million dollars, the city of Pittsburgh collected nearly thirty-four million dollars in school and city taxes. And the cost for this service was slightly more than $160,000.

In 1931 the city of Clairton collected $627,000 in city and school taxes, paying commissions amounting to more than $7,000. Duquesne collected more than a half million dollars and had commissions amounting to nearly $7,000. In McKeesport that year school and city collections amounted to $1,489,000 and the commissions were nearly $15,000.

In the boroughs of the county the 1931 school and borough taxes amounted to more than ten and one-half million dollars and it cost the taxpayers nearly $247,000 for collection. Using the above figures it averages approximately $3,800 in commissions for each collector.

The school and township taxes in the 53 townships amounted to more than four and one half million dollars and more than $142,000 was paid out in fees. Each collector received better than $2,500 for his collections, on an average.

However the compensation of the collector ranges from a few hundred dollars in some of the smaller communities to as high as $15,000 in the more thickly populated boroughs and townships.

COST OF TAX COLLECTION FOR 1932

The above table does not show the amount of school taxes collected, nor the amount paid out in commissions for school tax collection. In 1931 more than three hundred thousand dollars was spent in collection of school taxes in the county.

Burden Placed Upon Allegheny Shown By Figures

TALKS TO 2,000 AUDIENCE AT CANONSBURG

Urges Unemployed To Fight for Rights

By MARGARET RUSSELL
Staff Correspondent.

CANONSBURG, Pa., Jan. 10.—Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, First Lady of the state and champion of the working classes, last night intimated to nearly 2,000 enthusiastic Canonsburg townsfolk that she'd rather be with them than dine with a President. She said:

"I was to have had dinner with President and Mrs. Roosevelt tonight, but when I knew you wanted me, I called Mrs. Roosevelt and asked her if I couldn't make it some other time. I wanted to come here."

WINS WILD APPLAUSE

When wild cheering had abated, Mrs. Pinchot commended the Unemployed Council which sponsored the meeting, for their efforts to help themselves, declaring:

"You're doing something enormously valuable. I think you're getting at fundamentals. Too long laws have been made in the interests of a small group instead of for the rank and file of the people. It is time we were changing the complexion of government to protect the working man."

The way to do it is not to elect men like Senators C. W. Parkinson, James J. Coyne and David A. Reed, Mrs. Pinchot continued.

URGES PENSIONS

"Demand old-age pensions. Pennsylvania is rich enough to remove the fear of the poorhouse from the minds of the aged, who through no fault of their own, find themselves destitute. Drive the sweatshops out of Pennsylvania. Pass minimum wage laws. Make it illegal to pay less than a living wage.

"Vote for a graduated income tax to shift the burden of taxation from the shoulders of those least able to bear it, onto the corporations and men with big incomes.

"Agitate for unemployment insurance. In good times they will tell you, what's the use. In bad times, they will say, we are too poor. It will be defeated as long as the men you elect vote against it.

SEES NEW ERA

"We're going to see a new day in Pennsylvania and in America. A new deal has begun in Washigton. I want to see greater support for this new deal and the minimum wages under the NRA adequately enforced."

Mrs. Pinchot today will address the Women's Republican Club in Warren, Pa., and steel workers in Ford City, Pa.

Traffic System Highly Praised— By the Survivors

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Fifth avenue (New York) has a new kind of traffic light for pedestrians.

It's a bright red hand with the palm up. You've got to be a fortune teller to cross the street.

Find Council Members Holding CWA Jobs

Civil Works job applicants were to be received today in the new registration office at 338 Third avenue.

Visiting the agency yesterday, Miss Charlotte Carr, chairman of the state labor board, officially pronounced the methods employed there as satisfactory.

The case of two Coraopolis councilmen reported to be employed on the CWA Stoops-Ferry road project is to be investigated by CWA headquarters. Such officials are barred from Civil works jobs.

The Councilmen are James Ciccone and John Hazel, who are timekeepers on the project, according to the employment bureau's files. Ciccone, who had been unemployed for two years, said he would not quit Council, which pays nothing. CWA timekeepers get $19.50 a week.

George Mills, county relief head, said yesterday that more than 5,000 persons have been removed from relief rolls through CWA intervention.

A hundred more workers are to report for work at the county airport today. The full force of 337 men is expected to be on the job within a week.

Twenty-eight safety sidewalks on county roads are to be constructed when plans already formed by the County Department of Highways are approved by the CWA.

SUSPECT SHOT, SHIELDS ILL MOTHER

Breaking his 24-hour silence, the bandit suspect wounded yesterday in a pistol battle with Policeman Michael Nowicki following the holdup of the New Strand Restaurant, at 524 Wylie avenue, told detectives early today he was "Jack Delpreno." He refused to give them his address, saying he wanted to save his mother, a sufferer of heart disease, from worry.

Two women, whose names were not disclosed by police, visited the wounded man today. One, an elderly woman, said she thought he might be her son. He wasn't.

EUGENIC BABY, MOTHER HURT

AYER, Mass., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Kate Pullman, actress, and her son, Roscoe Ails, 5, who, several years ago, received notice as "the eugenic baby," were in a critical condition at a local hospital today, after suffering injuries in an automobile accident in which John McCluskey, her partner in a vaudeville act, was killed.

The woman and child suffered head injuries and their condition could not be definitely determined at once. The names of both were on the danger list. Miss Pullman is the former wife of Roscoe Ails.

The child was born in Chicago in 1928. At that time Miss Pullman refused to identify the boy's father. She said it had been agreed she was to have his entire custody—"mine to support and mine to train as I saw fit. My great ambition for the boy is to make a great athlete of him, and I'm to train him myself."

CHINESE PERIL MISSIONARIES

FOOCHOW, China, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Grave fears were held today for the safety of six American Methodist Episcopal missionaries, isolated in the fighting zone of rebellious Fukien province, who have not been heard from for 10 days.

All of the missionaries, whose headquarters are in New York, were caught in the Min River Valley fighting area around the town of Kutien.

Since then, communication lines have been severed and all efforts to get in touch with them have been fruitless.

Kutien is about 50 miles northwest of Foochow, capital of Fukien province and center of the anti-Nationalist government revolt movement.

Fierce fighting became centered around that point several days ago when the Nanking regulars, driving their way down the Min River Valley toward Foochow, reportedly met strong opposition.

Ambridge Abolishes City Manager Job

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Jan. 10.—Ambridge Council has abolished its city manager. The job was held by A. W. Johns.

Andrew H. Bires replaces John W. Flocker as chief of police. Assemblyman Eugene Caputo was elected borough solicitor replacing Ralph K. Smith. Burgess P. J. Caul cast the deciding vote in favor of Caputo. A. G. Fisher, former fire chief, was again named to that post.

4 Indicted in Rum License Fee Graft

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—A police lieutenant, two detectives and a former filing clerk in the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board were indicted today in connection with alleged graft in the delivery of liquor licenses.

The defendants named were Lieut. Philip Murray, Detectives Emanuel Blog and Irving Frey, and Eric St. John, the former filing clerk.

Bloomfield Man Hurt When Hit By Auto

John McCarthy, 32, of 4119 Main street, was in St. Francis Hospital today suffering a compound fracture of the right arm and lacerations received when he was struck by an automobile driven, according to police, by Emory C. Marshall, of 1018 Blackadore avenue.

CHICAGO MILK BLOCKADE ENDS

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The Chicago milk blockade was ended today on a truce reached between warring factions in a conference with Mayor Edward J. Kelly.

Arbitrators were named to assist farmers and dealers in agreeing upon a price to producers.

Distributors and producers each will appoint one man to a committee. They, in turn, will select a third man to act as arbitrator and establish a minimum price to be paid farmers.

Don N. Geyer, general manager of the Pure Milk Association and representative of the farmers at the conference, announced the producers would end picketing of highways and begin shipping milk immediately.

E. M. Krahl, publicity director of Pure Milk, denied that milk deliveries would be resumed until a meeting of 350 farmers of the Pure Milk advisory committee had held a meeting.

TAMMANY AIDE ACCUSED

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—A sensation in Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia's investigation of the Tammany regime he toppled from power came today with a disclosure that charges of misconduct had been filed against Fred C. Lemmerman, commissioner of the triborough bridge authority, which is in charge of a $60,000,000 bridge project.

The charges were filed on behalf of the Mayor by his new commissioner of accounts, Paul Blanshard, long a foe of the old city administration, and now conducting an exhaustive inquiry into its acts.

Lemmerman was accused of receiving $930 as a brokerage fee from the owners of a building for consummating a lease for bridge authority offices. The rental for the offices, in the financial district, was fixed at $24,000 a year.

The bridge authority is in charge of a giant span linking Manhattan, the Bronx and Queens, work on which has been started.

Railroad Trainmen Pick New Officers

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—J. A. Farquharson, of Washington, yesterday was elected legislative representative of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen at a meeting of trustees.

Farquharson formerly was assistant to the president. F. R. Harvery, of Cleveland, vice president, was elected to succeed Farquharson.

BURGESS DEFIED AT SEWICKLEY

Roy Barclay, stormy figure of fashionable Sewickley Borough's politics, declared today that he would disregard his second dismissal within a week as head of the police department by Burgess Paul Ingram and take control at the "request of Council."

Barclay was fired by Burgess Ingram when the latter took office the first of the year. He was reinstated by Council and again fired by the Burgess. He said today:

"I am going to resume my duties as police chief this morning on authority of council. Mr. Chaplin (council president) ordered me to report today and I'll be there. You can just say that I'll be on duty at the regular time."

However, Burgess Ingram said that if Barclay did appear for work "the men" would ignore him. He added:

State Liquidating Banks With Speed

CARLISLE, Pa., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Explaining the care that the State Department of Banking must take in liquidating assets of closed banks, Dr. William D. Gordon, secretary, today had told Carlisle Service Clubs and the Chamber of Commerce that the department has charge of 7,500 pieces of real estate, worth 100 million dollars in Philadelphia alnoe.

Pointing out that depositors of closed banks already have received 54 million in dividends ranging from 10 to 75 per cent of the banks' liability, Dr. Gordon declared that the affairs of the institutions are being handled as quickly and as efficiently as possible.

LINKS COWBOY IN OUIJA DEATH

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—While Mrs. Dorothea Irene Turley sought freedom here today by habeas corpus proceedings, County Attorney J. Smith Gibbons announced at St. Johns charges of an unrevealed nature are in preparation against a "handsome cowboy" allegedly involved in the "ouija board" slaying of Ernest J. Turley.

Mattie Turley, 15, before her father's death from gunshot wounds, pleaded guilty to charges of attempted murder. The complaint against her alleged she shot the retired Navy petty officer so her mother and a "handsome cowboy" could be married.

Mrs. Turley, national beauty contest winner of nearly a score of years ago, in a habeas corpus filed in United States District Court here, claimed the shooting was accidental.

The girl, at the time attempted murder charges were filed against her, was quoted as having "followed the advice of an ouija board" in shooting her father.

TROLLEY FARE FOUNDATIONS EXPLAINED

This is the first of a series of unbiased articles explaining conditions underlying the fares charged on the street cars in Pittsburgh.

Without indorsing or opposing this move, it may be interesting to review the transit situation background in this city, to know just why street car fares stand at their present level, just how the street car lines are controlled and what their financial position is.

Before we can go far into this subject we must decide what constitutes a reasonable charge by a street car company or any other public utility. The situation may be summed up as follows:

A utility company is granted a monopoly. This is considered better than competition because it should make it cheaper and more convenient to get transportation, gas, electric or telephone service.

EARNINGS LIMITED

In return, the earnings of a public utility company are limited. The company must not be allowed to take undue advantage of its monopoly. It should not be allowed to earn an unreasonable return on its investment.

On the other hand, if the return is too small, the company will get into financial difficulties. It will have to reduce the quality of its service or it may have to go out of business.

Reasonable street car fares—as is the case with reasonable gas rates or light rates—must be high enough to make it possible for the utilities to supply good service and make a fair profit. They must be low enough so that the utilities do not make a gold mine out of their monopolies.

It is within this range that reasonable charges for street car or any other kind of public utility service are to be found.

Laws governing public utilities provide that they are to be entitled to a fair return on their investment. In this point a difficult problem is encountered.

STREET CARS AND BUSES

The Pittsburgh Railways Company operates the street cars and buses in Pittsburgh. In recent years it has covered its operating expenses and reserves for depreciation.

After meeting these expenses it has had some profit remaining. Out of this money must come the interest on bonds, interest on other money it has borrowed and rents on leased property.

Up to 1930 these charges were met and the company had some profit left over. Since that time earnings have not been sufficient to meet these charges, although there has been a profit left after meeting ordinary expenses of operation such as paying employes and keeping cars and tracks in repair.

Now, if the cars, the tracks, the barns and shops of the street car lines are worth the amount of bonds outstanding, the system has not been making a reasonable return on its investment during the recent depression years. If they are not worth that much the rates charged may be subject to question.

It is not a simple matter to determine the value of a system as great as that of the Pittsburgh Rilways. Prices change, and the prices used to compute this value may vary greatly.

ESTIMATES OF VALUE

During the course of the last street car fare dispute between the city and the company, a group of engineers representing both parties attempted to find the value of the property. They found that the cost of replacing the properties new on the basis of prices in 1918 would have been about 102 million dollars. But they also computed the value on prices prevailing at other times. They found that a few years before the system would have cost only about 74 million dollars. Which prices should be taken?

Of course, the system was not new at the times that they estimated these costs. Some of it went back to horse car days. Some was comparatively new. To find the real value it was necessary to make allowances for the extent to which old equipment was worn out or had become obsolete.

There are many ways of estimating how long a street car or a rail will last or when some new invention will make one of these things worthless. Applying these uncertain estimates of the loss from wearing out equipment to the uncertain estimates of costs we end up with a confusion of widely divergent figures of valuation which are of no practical use.

PROBLEM FACED

Well, in the face of this dilemma, how are we going to find out how much the street car fare should be?

Enough to enable the street car system to provide efficient service, but not so much that it will roll in unnecessary wealth.

From the standpoint of the average person who pays a quarter for three car checks, he doesn't want the car company to gouge him but he must give it enough so that it can run cars often enough to get him to work, and run them safely.

Further aspects of this problem will be discussed tomorrow.

TRACTION BOARD PLEA HEARD

Application of the Pittsburgh Railways Company for extension of its Traction Conference Board agreement in the Borough of Avalon was heard today without opposition before Commissioner Samuel Walker.

Recently, the agreement with the city of Pittsburgh was extended for three months to give the new administration time to study the plan by which the Traction Board is composed of a representative of the city, one for the company and one for the municipalities outside the city. At the end of the three-month period, the city application will be reopened for hearing.

Two other applications for abandonment of track in Market street, between Third and Fourth avenues, also were heard by Commissioner Walker. Attorney Phillip A. Fleger, for the Railways Company, explained the track had not been used since the Ferry street loop has been in operation.

U. S.-VATICAN PACT HINTED

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Taking cognizance of recent comments that the United States and the Vatican would resume diplomatic relations, the Osservatore Romano declared yesterday it would be "pure fantasy" to consider such an event as "new or curious."

Diplomats here said they had no knowledge of such a move at this time, but the official church organ devoted two columns to an article by its director, Guiseppe Della Torre, in which it was said that relations between the Vatican and America have been so close that a bridging over of the technical separation would hardly alter the situation.

Even after the departure of the last American minister, Rufus King, in 1867, Della Torre said, relations "could not possibly have continued more cordial and fruitful than they have."

Woodrow Wilson's reply to the peace message in 1917 of Benedict XV and his visit to the Pope in 1919 were described by Della Torre as "significant parentheses" in the diplomatic situation.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to study hard and do errands willingly.
Date of Birth ..... Address .....
School .....

Address this pledge to the JUNIOR Patrol, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Upon its receipt you will be registered as a member of the JUNIOR PATROL and will be forwarded a membership card and an official emblem.

Snowy weather came again yesterday, fellows!

We have to see snow to remind us that old man winter is still with us. And by the way, how is everybody? We wonder how many Junior Patrol members have colds?

If you catch a cold, all you can do is to cuddle it so as not to catch more cold, or other sickness. Keep warm and stay out of draughts. But best of all, you should build up your "resistance" until you don't catch cold. Exercise and eat the right food and get plenty of sleep and drink plenty of water. Those are just simple rules that every child should observe to keep from catching colds.

Now here is a letter from Florence Archer, of 610 Montooth street, Pittsburgh. She writes:

"I am sending this pledge to you as I want to be a 100 per cent child to my parents and to start a club and have decided to name it The Junior Patrol Club of Safety First, and we will try our best to teach other children safety first. And we will be very thankful and obliged if you will send me an emblem and a membership card."

Of course, we will, Florence, and now we will be waiting for your other pledges, at least 10, so that we can send the captain of your club an armband. Teaching others safety first is a wonderful way to help others.

And here's a lovely letter from Miss Ora Rousseau, of La Grange School, Pricedale, Pa. She writes:

"Enclosed is a number of applications for the Junior Patrol from my classroom. I think the Junior Patrol is a good thing for boys and girls. Please see that the badges are sent to them."

And she encloses 31 pledges! Boy, that's a dandy Junior Patrol club, and we hope that the members in Miss Rousseau's room will organize their club just as soon as they get their badges. Be sure to elect a captain and lieutenants. Write and and let us know what you do, and if you have any parties.

A new captain today is James Hoover, of 228 Forty-fifth street, Pittsburgh. He sends 10 pledges and has been elected captain.

CWA AIDS CHILD SURVEY

An effort, organized with Civil Works Administration Workers, to protect children under school age from diphtheria and small pox has been announced by Dr. Raymond P. Moyer, director of the City Department of Health.

Thirty canvassers, CWA employes, will make a survey of children under six years of age who have been innoculated against these diseases. Parents will be urged to protect their children through proper treatment.

The workers will wear the badge of the Department of Public Health. It is estimated that there are about 50,000 children under school age, and that the survey will require seven weeks. Every child over six months should receive the treatment, according to Dr. Moyer.

The treatment for diphtheria consists of two or three injections of a special material called "toxoid."

Robbers Shatter Grocery Window

Thieves shattered a show window of a Kroger grocery store at 562 Larimer avenue and took cigarets and tobacco valued at $75, the manager, Nicholas Nigro, reported to East End police today. Nigro discovered the robbery when he opened the store this morning.

Nieces and nephews were named the principal beneficiaries of a $35,000 estate bequeathed in the will of Alice E. Mathews, a widow, filed for probate today.

The Board of Home Missions and Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church will receive the remainder of the estate after the relatives have received their shares. Mrs. Margaret Graham was bequeathed $5,000; Frank and Leila D. Foote, $10,000; Thomas and Maude Graham, $1,000 each, and Corrine F. Martin, Alice F. Lane, Catherine Ewing, Claude Ewing, John S. Ewing and Annie Beane $2,500 each. Attorney Frank H. Kennedy was named executor.

William A. Ross, 1900 Carson street, bequeathed an $8,000 estate to his wife, Maggie, and named her and a son, Harry W. Ross, executors.

GIRLS' SCHOOL TO CONTINUE

With the threat of future abandonment still hanging over it, and on an appropriation cut to nearly half the requested amount, the Gumbert School for Girls will continue to function in 1934.

Commissioners C. C. McGovern and W. D. Mansfield yesterday voted to slash a requested budget of $43,691 to $27,581.

Commissioner C. M. Barr recently opposed continuing the school on the grounds that the county lacked money to support its regular schools, and because the girls could be kept at $407 per capita less at Morganza. He also cited advantages of putting the property back in the tax column.

Per capita cost of a girl at the school was estimated by Barr at over $800 a year. Counting the present quota of 57 inmates against the new appropriation, the per capita cost would be $484.

Baldwin Township Council Deadlocked

The Baldwin Township Taxpayers' League and the Baldwin Real Estate Owners' Association revealed today that they will ask Quarter Sessions Court to settle the deadlock of the township's commissioners if the board does not organize by tomorrow night.

Approximately 150 of the township's citizens waited in vain with the four new commissioners for the arrival of the old commissioners last night. No meeting could be held as the four did not constitute a quorum. Peter Kuenzig, one of the new faction, said that a letter had been received by his group from the old faction suggesting that a private meeting be held at noon tomorrow.

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Pitt Hardest for Corbus. Neusel Rises Too Late. Vines in Debut as Pro.

How quickly the strongest baseball clubs dwindle away to the point of becoming mere memories! Consider the vanishing Yankees and Pirates of 1927, the last year in which Pittsburgh won a pennant. Though it was only six years ago last fall that the mighty Yankee machine crushed the Buccaneers in four straight World Series games with a display of power that indicated it might go on unimpaired for many seasons, the famous outfit has crumbled until only a suggestion of it remains. The release of two more members in Pitchers Herb Pennock and Wilcy Moore draws attention to the swift passing of that great New York club. Of all the men who played against the Rovers in the 1927 derby, or who were carried on the roster during the year, the only survivors are Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Earl Combs and Tony Lazzeri.

Babe Ruth

And even less remains of the Pirate crew. Only Pie Traynor and the Waner brothers continue to wear Picaroon flannels. Just seven players, all told, are left on the two clubs after the intervening six seasons—just seven out of a total of more than 50—though some others are still in the majors, including Waite Hoyt, now a Corsair. Each club has seen two managerial changes in the same short span. Of the series pilots, Miller Huggins is dead, while Donie Bush has managed four different clubs in the meantime and has been in and out of the big leagues twice. Life is short for the best of teams.

LOCAL GAME HARDEST PLAYED BY CORBUS

Though Columbia got a great deal more glory out of beating Stanford in the Rose Bowl than fell to Pitt for turning the same trick by the same score at the Stadium here in 1932, you can take it from Bill Corbus, two-time all-America guard of the Cardinals, that the Panthers gave him a more uncomfortable afternoon than did the Lions. To the spectators at the Pitt-Stanford contest, Corbus appeared to be giving a very good account of himself, even though his team wasn't very hot offensively against the Sutherland defense, but Bill admits that the Panther game was the hardest in which he played during all his three years of varsity football at Stanford.

Corbus was asked to name the hardest three games in which he participated during his college career, and he put the Pitt tussle at the top of the list. The others were the California and Southern California struggles of 1933. In addition to his consistently great work in the line, Bill also stood out last season at kicking field goals from placement. However, he makes light of that specialty, and says the man holding the ball is a more important factor than the kicker. Making the goals is not difficult. All you have to do then, Bill says, is to keep your head down and look at the ball.

COCHRANE TO RETAIN SCREEN IN DETROIT

Mickey Cochrane

The new manager of the Tigers surveyed his own forces before making the decision. He found that Hank Greenberg is Detroit's only long left-field driver, and that most of the Tiger batting strength is in the other direction, all the more so now that Goose Goslin has been added. So the screen will stay, and Cochrane is convinced it will help the Tigers more than it will hurt them, as an added check on batters like Foxx and Al Simmons.

SCHMELING'S PAY DWARFS THAT OF NEUSEL

Walter Neusel has grounds for a complaint that the fistic fates brought him along too late, when he compares his early ring earnings in this country with those of another German heavyweight, Max Schmeling. For knocking out Les Kennedy, Neusel was paid $501. For flattening Stanley Poreda, he drew $727. And for outpointing Ray Impellittiere last week, his share after paying the Imp a $5,000 guarantee was exactly $3.19, which, by the way, he flipped back at the Garden powers with the request that they give it to charity.

For his first three fights here, therefore, Neusel has collected only $1,228. Schmeling, in his first three American bouts, got $1,000 for stopping Joe Monte, $6,800 for outpointing Joe Sekyra, and $2,000 for the soft job of whipping Pietro Corri in two minutes, or a total of $9,800. And then came the big stuff for Maxie. Risko fight, $15,000; Paulino, $74,000; Sharkey, more than $200,000; Stribling, $126,000; Sharkey again, more than $200,000; Walker, $65,000; Baer, $78,000. Almost $700,000 for nine fights, not counting what he picked up on exhibition tours. Neusel can't hope for any such returns. That kind of money isn't around any more.

VINES MAKES HIS BOW AS TENNIS PRO

A match that tennis followers dreamed about a year ago as the greatest event possible in the net sport becomes a reality tonight at Madison Square Garden in New York—a duel between Bill Tilden and Ellsworth Vines. However, it won't be the tilt between professional and amateur kings that had been pictured as the high spot of the proposed open tourney that fell through. It will be an out-and-out professional tussle, for Vines decided to turn pro after losing his amateur crown last summer and this will be his debut in the field of commercialized tennis.

Ellsworth Vines

Tilden and Vines will go on a five-week tour later, starting Friday at Philadelphia and visiting 16 cities from coast to coast and return. But interest centers chiefly in tonight's match, as the first test of Vines in the pro division. He'll have to be good to stand a chance against Tilden, for in spite of his age, 42 next month, Big Bill is no tottering has-been. Tilden, one of the most glamorous court figures of all time, demonstrated only recently that he still is pretty close to the top of his game by beating Vincent Richards for the world indoor pro title. Vines will have to come on a long way from his slump of last summer to approach holding his own with the famous veteran. Ellsworth himself, of course, has no doubt of his ability. He never had. He says that if he can play as well as he has been playing in practice against Stoefen, Mako and that sort of competition he'll beat Tilden. We'll see.

CHILLYSAUCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Honus Wagner sat in the Sun-Tele office yesterday and looked over the National League records for the season . . . Among other things he detected that the Heydler circuit had but or boy who could swipe more than 20 bases for the year . . . Pepper Martin led the league in larceny with 26 thefts . . . Honus didn't say much, but his manner indicated he could go out there on roller skates, at 60, and grab off at least 20 sacks.

Lefty Gomez, Yankee southpaw, spending the week in the city with his actress wife, June O'Dea, has no ambition to court Babe Ruth's swat mantle when it falls from the broad shoulders of the Bambino . . . Babe also started out in the game as a southpaw pitcher, but he will wind up with a bat in his hands . . . Ruth made a side bet with Gomez last summer to the effect that Lefty would not make more than 10 hits all season . . . Gomez called Babe's hand and came through with safeties, but Babe is asking for a recount on the eleventh hit . . . He fears there was collusion. Maybe the official scorer was trying to give the tall Castillian a break.

Bill Benswanger is right in the middle of the winter Chatauqua season . . . Bill is dated up for practically every day of next week with doubleheaders scheduled for Thursday and Friday—he has four speeches listed for the two days . . . One of Benswanger's phillipics will be delivered at Steubenville, where Honus Wagner made his start in the professional game, so what could be more fitting than for Bill to take Honus Wagner along . . . Wagner's baseball monologues add a spicy flavor to any assemblage.

Maybe you did not know that Louie Kaufmann, obliging and efficient globetrotter of the Sun-Telegraph, was on the boxing team at Penn State . . . At the outset of his ring career, he had the misfortune to tangle with a cockeyed lefthander who almost knocked Louie into the middle of the semester . . . Louis could hold his own with the righthanders, but the "lefties" cramped his style.

Speaking of baserunning, as we were a couple of sentences back, the Buccos and their backers are likely to miss the winged heels of the two Polish Fliers this year . . . Comorosky and Pietruszka could carry the mail under any conditions . . . However, if Red Lucas, the Nashville Narcissus, can come through with 20-odd victories the balance may hang in favor of the Gibson Clan.

So Sam Rice, who caught Earl Smith's "homer" in the 1925 world series, gets his unconditional release . . . Oil of the Ozarks also has passed along, and so has Red Oldham, whose ninth-inning pitching in the last contest was a piece of fast drama that has seldom been matched on any sportive field.

Rice, by the way, played a prominent part in the tabloid thrill flashed just before the tumult broke in the stands and on the field . . . So did Goose Goslin and also Manager Bucky Harris . . . Do you remember? Cuyler's cleanup double in the lashing rain put the Bucs out in front in the eighth . . . The breathless ninth found the Pirates without a pitcher. . . . Country Boy Red begged to get a crack at the Senators. He knew them from his American League days. . . . Red dusted off Sam Rice and then fanned him. . . . Harris lined to Moore, and Goose the Goslin saw a fast curve break in Johnny Gooch's glove for the clinching spike. . . . Two hours later, a gent from West Virginia was raffling off home plate at Forbes and Atwood.

TEMPLE NOSES OUT TECH

Carnegie Tech's varsity basketball team, which opened its season last Saturday night by knocking off West Virginia in an Eastern Intercollegiate Conference game, missed a chance to tie Pitt for the Conference lead last night by 3 points.

The Tartans, playing fine ball, bowed to Temple University's Owls, 23 to 21, after having held a 13-to-6 lead at the half. Chuck Frieberg, smart Temple guard, who does little scoring but plenty of feeding in the Temple system, popped his one and only field goal from outside the foul line late in the struggle to give the Temple five the lead and the game.

Tech took the play away from the too confident Owls, who had given Pitt a merry battle of it Saturday night, and had the Owls on the run during the first half.

The departure of Capt. Red Silverman from the game on personal fouls paved the way for Temple's comeback in the second half. Led by Lou Fox and Jimmy Brown, the Philadelphians hacked away at the Tartan advantage, and finally went ahead at 21 to 19, with only two minutes left to play. Gibson, stellar Tech sophomore forward, sank one from the side to knot the count, but Frieberg dumped his goal just before the final gun.

Brown and Fix were the high point men of the game, the former getting nine markers and the latter seven.

In a preliminary, the Tech freshmen passers defeated Johnstown Catholic High School, 40 to 20. The lineups:

RISKO WHIPS MALONEY

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 10.—Jim Maloney, Boston heavyweight, was completely subdued by Johnny Risko, of Cleveland, in their 10-round bout here last night. One of the judges voted every round for Risko, while the other conceded one to Maloney.

VINES, TILDEN PRIMED FOR NET DUEL

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Big Bill Tilden had more worries today as a promoter than anything concerned with his role of the "old tennis master," in which he will oppose lanky Ellsworth Vines tonight at Madison Square Garden in the young Californian's professional debut. He said:

"Why I can't even buy good seats for friends who are demanding them, let alone take care of all those who think they should have Annie Oakleys for this show.

MAY DRAW CAPACITY

Tilden has been using up plenty of energy on the "build-up," his biggest professional venture so far, the veteran's backers still feel he is a 2-to-1 favorite to beat the 22-year-old Vines in their first match. Big Bill himself was highly pleased with his latest form in practice, but admitted his doubts as to how successfully he can handle the Californian's speed. Vines has been increasingly impressive in his workouts.

MATCH OPENS TOUR

The match, best three of five sets, inaugurates a rapid transcontinental tour for Vines and Tilden, as well as their professional teammates, Vincent Richards and Bruce Barnes. Their schedule follows: January 12, Philadelphia; 13, Washington; 15, Boston; 16, Providence; 18, Cleveland; 20, Chicago; 23-26, San Francisco; 27, Oakland; 29, Los Angeles; 30, Pasadena.

They will return East in time to prepare for an international series with the French pair, Henri Cochet and Martin Plaa early in February.

Helen Jacobs In Indoor Tennis

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Helen Jacobs, America's tennis queen, will play in the women's national indoor championships next month.

Mrs. Clara Wightman said today Miss Jacobs would surely compete in the doubles and perhaps in the singles.

Names in the News

Maurice (Clipper) Smith, coach at Santa Clara College, is reported interested in an offer to coach at Alabama Poly. He returned to San Francisco from Honolulu where his Santa Clara team played two games during the holidays.

MRS. GERTRUDE McEVOY, New York women's billiard champion, started the defense of her championship at Chicago yesterday when she defeated Mrs. Irene Hummel, also of New York, 35-15, in 17 innings.

The New York Yankees have released two players to the Newark Club, of the International League. They are DON BRENNAN, pitcher, and JESSE HILL, outfielder.

DR. JOHN B. (JOCK) SUTHERLAND, football coach at the University of Pittsburgh, will be the principal speaker at the banquet to be given the Williamsport High School gridders at Williamsport tonight.

PERRY WERDEN, aged 63 years, who established an unofficial record of 45 home runs in 1895 with Minneapolis in the old Western League, died yesterday in Minneapolis.

W.-J. QUINTET TOPS BETHANY

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Led by Headley and Lieber, only experienced players, Washington and Jefferson basketball team last night defeated Bethany College, 26-19. It was the first game for both teams.

The Presidents led at half time, 15-11, and staged a rally late in the game that rapidly carried them away from a threatening spurt that at one time moved to within two points of W. & J.'s lead. Headley accounted for 12 points and Lieber for six for W. & J. The lineup:

St. Vincent Set To Open Season

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 10.—The St. Vincent College basketball team will open its 1934 season Saturday at Latrobe, when it opposes the Youngstown College quintet.

Due to short time since floor practice was started, Coach Gene Edwards is scrimmaging the squad at a lively rate this week.

COAST LEAGUERS OPEN EARLIER

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—Ruling of Pacific Coast League baseball magnates to open the 1935 season March 26, a week earlier than usual, today was believed to have sounded the death knell of spring exhibition baseball games in California with major league clubs.

Baseball experts held that the Chicago Cubs, Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago White Sox and other big league teams could not afford to come West to train when they could have only two weeks' competition from Coast League teams.

GIBSON NOT WORRIED

Belief that major league ball clubs training in California would have to rearrange their schedules somewhat in 1935 due to the earlier opening planned by the Pacific Coast League was expressed by George Gibson, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates today. Gibson said:

"It will only mean rearranging our schedules slightly if the coast teams open a week earlier than this year. Inasmuch as the majors probably will open their season a weak earlier next year also, it shouldn't result in any great difference."

WESTMINSTER'S LATE RALLY FALLS SHORT

By JESS CARVER

An uneasy Chick Davies!

And an equally uneasy 2,000 or more Duquesne University basketball followers, who sat in on the Dukes' tussle with Westminster's astonishing basketball team in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion last night.

The Dukes won the game, 35 to 31. They always were ahead and, with less than 19 minutes left to play, believe it or not, they were out in front by 16 points. Sixteen, count 'em . . . a lot of points in any man's ball game. Ordinarily, and against the ordinary run of competition, a 16-point lead for Chick Davies' clever performers is like money from home. It's the pay-off. It's the old McCoy.

TITANS DANGEROUS

But not against the Westminster outfit. When the Titans start tossing 'em from their hips, and when they begin to drop—look out. There is nothing any team can do, save to see to it that they retain possession of the ball and keep the United Presbyterians from shooting. Otherwise, it will be too bad.

Well, the Dukes stepped out last night and engineered an 18-to-11 lead at the half, thanks mainly to some splendid field goal popping by Art Feldman, who, from this point of view, is the most underrated college basketball player in the district. Feldman threw four field goals in the first half and picked up an additional point with a foul for a total of nine points.

So tight was Duquesne's defense that the Titans were forced to wait until almost seven minutes of action had passed into history before they scored. That was bad. It put them off to a bad start, and to tell the truth, despite their game and thrilling rally in the second half, they never recovered.

To make matters worse, they were slow, terribly slow, in getting started in the second period, and derned if the Dukes didn't count nine points before they broke into the scoring during the second 20 minutes of action. In fact, 12 minutes had elapsed before a Blue and White (Westminster to you) point was recorded.

Bingo—biff went this chap Bennet, star center of the Titans, on a scoring spree. All he did was to click with three field goals and a foul for seven points, and, aided and abetted, particularly abetted by young Sweeney, sub guard, put the Titans very much in the ball game.

WESTMINSTER RALLIES

The New Wilmington lads pulled up to within two points of the Dukes at 31 to 29, then to 33 to 31, before their scoring splurge was checked. It was checked when it ran afoul of the superclever ball handling of the Dukes and over-anxious passing and handling by the Titans.

Westminster needed a man in there all evening to fight for the ball, a player such as Sweeney and if Coach John Lawther had it to do over again, the chances are that he'd keep the Irishman in the action throughout. As it

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE TALL TOMBSTONE—Burt Kramer, of Granville, N. Y., once said that the only reason people erected monuments was vanity, and when he died he did not want people going all the way out to the cemetery to see his tombstone. So before his death he had his own monument erected. He made it tall enough for people to see from all over the countryside and placed it high on a hillside on his own property. His short epitaph reads: "Burt Kramer, Gambler, born in Granville, Lived in Granville, Died in Granville."

TOMORROW—THE PAID COUNTERFEITER.

ELI OFFICIALS PREPARED TO MAKE OFFER

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Harry Kipke may not be considering any offer to become Yale's coach, but the fact remained today that he and several of his assistants at Michigan may be asked to take over the football helm at New Haven.

To reports from New York and New Haven that he was listed as an outstanding candidate to succeed Reggie Root as pilot of old Eli's fotoball fortunes, Kipke declared at South Bend, Ind., that he had not been approached by Yale authorities and was not considering any shift from Ann Arbor.

He left a loop-hole, however, when he said the only thing that would take him to Yale would be "so much money he couldn't turn it down."

Those who would have Kipke favor a complete break in the tradition that Yale men should coach Yale football teams. They believe only a non-graduate coach can lift the blue out of the gridiron doldrums. They point to the success of H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, Princeton's first non-graduate coach.

Farmer, however, and at least one other member of the committee of eight, have been reported as strongly in favor of the appointment of a Yale man, preferably Jones. The university president, James Rowland Angell, and some of the most influential and wealthy alumni, including Edward S. Harkness, who has contributed about $15,000,000 to the school, also are said to hold that view.

The committee has no power to act. It simply can make recommendations.

CAPPON DENIES RUMOR

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Franklin C. Cappon, assistant director of athletics at University of Michigan, today spiked reports that he might join the Yale University athletic staff. He said:

"I am not interested in any proposition that involves a change in scenery. I shall stay at Michigan as long as my services are deemed valuable to Mr. Yost and other Michigan athletic authorities."

Famous Howard's Gymnasium Closes Doors

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The key in the lock turned and Kid Howard's gymnasium, for 25 years a famous training establishment for heroes of the prize ring, closed its doors today.

Lack of public interest in professional boxing was responsible. Howard, who has seen champions come and go, believes that professional boxing is dying and that it will be supplanted by the amateurs.

CARNERA SAILS FOR BOUT

GENOA, Italy, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Primo Carnera, world heavyweight champion, today sailed for the United States to begin training for his title defense against Tommy Loughran at Miami, February 22.

He was accompanied by his brother, Severino, his trainer and sparring partners. His co-manager, Louis Soresi, was indisposed and unable to accompany the party. He plans to sail on the Rex, January 24.

FIGHT RESULTS

While Coach Suds Sutherland was steaming toward Pittsburgh with two excellent lacrosse players in tow, his Yellow Jackets were dropping their first home decision of the North American Professional Lacrosse Association season at Motor Square Garden last night.

Suds is in town today, and his stalwarts are in possession of an 11-6 setback, administered by the Milwaukee Brewers. The fray originally was scheduled to be played in Milwaukee, and was brought here because of the fact that six-day bicycle racers are using the Brewers' home court. The Jackets have yet to win a game away from home and the fact that the tilt at one time had an "away" booking may have influenced their play.

Ty Silk and Bucko MacDonald are the new Jackets who were to have made their debut before local fans last night. While en route here from Brampton, Ont., with Coach Sutherland, they became tangled up with the immigration officials at Fort Erie, Ont., and were delayed until too late to reach here in time for last night's game. Jim Loughran and J. C. Norris, local lads who gained their lacrosse knowledge at the University of Maryland, and who played last night, will be replaced by the belated travelers when the Jackets meet the Buffalo Indians here Friday. Percy Langevin, defense star and captain, served as coach against the Brewers.

Although the Jackets fought gamely, they appeared to lack their customary dash and fire, which was not surprising in view of the fact that the game was their fifth in seven days, whereas the Brewers had been here doing nothing except prepare for the struggle for more than a week.

The visitors led by Davidson and DeGray carved out a 5-1 lead in the first period, and although the locals rallied to tie the score at 6-6 early in the third period, they had nothing left for a "finishing punch," and the Brewers pulled away to win almost as they pleased.

Buddy Clarke and Pittsburgh Al McLean staged the only fist fight of the night, in the second period, and Milwaukee's Harry Campbell, the only Jewish player in professional lacrosse, suffered the only severe injury. He was slashed with a Yellow Jacket stick in the fourth period, and a doctor had to be called in to patch up his badly cut eye. The lineup:

SPORT VIGNETTES

Ellsworth Vines expects to net about $25,000 out of his world tour with Bill Tilden, which opens in New York tonight . . . Pittsburgh may be one of the stopping-off places . . . Explaining his amazingly poor season last year, at the time he signed a contract to turn professional, Vines blamed his slump in form on too much pressure, caused by endless advice from Davis Cup and other tennis authorities . . . He believes he will regain his old winning stride as a professional.

Carl Olsen, the Pitt track coach, and a good one, too, if anyone should ask you, is working on a program to stimulate interest in track and field around here, and to this end is concentrating on plans for a district meet to be held in the Pitt track house, January 25-26, and the Allegheny Mountain Association A. A. U. senior meet in the same place on February 21-22. . . . In each meet the preliminaries will be staged the first night and the finals the second night.

Gene Tunney, who first was quoted as saying he thought Tommy Loughran had a good chance of beating Primo Carnera in their bout in Miami next month, now says Carnera should win because he has too much reach. . . . The next guess is that it ought to be a jolly good draw . . . Howard Harpster, the Carnegie Tech coach, sells motors during the off-season, but he merely carries pictures of his product as samples, proving that he still is a smart quarterback.

Irving Brenner, of the Dukes, has worn No. 7 on his jersey throughout his high school and college basketball career, and hopes to toss a lot of lucky sevens against Pitt at the Stadium Friday night . . . Bet all of those folks who shuddered at the very idea of letting Columbia go West to play Stanford in that Tournament of Roses game were very much surprised to see Lou Little's boys get back home safely without being scalped by the Indians . . . Especially those New Yorkers who think the West begins at Joisey City.

A lot of long shots and good hunch parlays are going over at the race tracks these days, with all of the local bookies closed, which, of course, doesn't cause the betting gents to emit three loud cheers for Bill McNair . . . The mystery to them is where all of this good luck was when the bookies were running and they were betting on the wrong plugs. —HARRY KECK.

POLO SERIES PLANNED

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—A Texas-California polo series, featuring the stars who won for the West against the East at Chicago last summer, will be held here beginning February 4, Bob Honeyman, chairman of the Midwick Country Club Polo Committee, announced today.

PIRATES, NATS CANCEL FRAY

Cancellation of the Pirate-Senator exhibition game scheduled for Washington on Sunday, April 15, was announced today by Vice President Sam Watters, of the local club.

The Pittsburgh clash of the Buccos and the American League champions will be staged at Forbes Field, as per schedule, on the preceding Saturday, Watters declared.

The cancellation of the game slated for Washington grew out of the fact that the Senators will open the season on their home lot on Monday, April 16, which date precedes by one day the regular opening of the major league campaigns.

President Clark Griffith, of the Senators, tried to persuade the Buccos' officials to stage a Sunday contest at Forbes Field on the date which has just been crossed out. The Pirate bosses refused to grant this request on the grounds that such a contest would not be a fitting event with which to inaugurate Sunday baseball in Pittsburgh. They insisted this observance should be reserved for the Pirates and a National League foe.

Griffith eventually consented to have the game played on the above mentioned date at the home of the Senators, but in the last few days he decided that the game would take an edge off his openers, which will attract President Roosevelt and other high ranking government officials. So the Pittsburgh bosses agreed to his plan to cancel the game.

Watters stated he had closed a deal with the Louisville A. A. officials whereby the Buccos would play the Colonels at Louisville on the Sunday named. On the succeeding Tuesday the Pirates will open the regular season in St. Louis.

Rangers and Preps To Meet on Sunday

The Rox Rangers meet the St. Rosalia Preps at Ranger Field Sunday afternoon, in what appears to be the last independent football game of the season.

Since the Preps won the title of Section II and the Rangers galloped away with the Section I title, their followers have been clamoring for a game between these old rivals.

On Tuesday night the winners of the various sections of the Lightweight Conference will be banqueted and the trophies will be presented to the victorious clubs.

Paced by Schenley and South in the City League, favorites came through with triumphs yesterday as the scholastic fives put in their second program of championship campaigning along the City League and W. P. I. A. L. fronts.

A hefty schedule of non-league contests also was run off.

Schenley, defeated in the opening game of the season last week, turned about with a vengeance and defeated the crack and highly-touted Taylor Allderdice outfit, 47 to 33. Fountain, Schenley center, established a new individual scoring record for one game in the league by accounting for 27 points.

Connelly and Langley remained out in front in their respective sections, with two victories and no defeats apiece. Connelley defeated Fifth Avenue, 39 to 16, while Langley was taking over Allegheny Vocational, 25 to 17.

In other games, South beat Peabody, 41 to 13; Carrick took over Allegheny, 23 to 21 and South Hills won from Oliver, 24 to 20.

The favorites came through in the majority of W. P. I. A. L. battles, Scott downed Swissvale, 23 to 17; Rankin walloped Wilkinsburg, 49 to 20; Dormont trimmed McKees Rocks, 37 to 17; Aliquippa socked Freedom, 32 to 11; Midland won from Beaver, 38 to 20; Leetsdale took Bellevue in a great tussle, 21 to 20; Charleroi nosed out Monongahela, 23 to 20 and New Kensington downed Springdale, 47 to 20.

In important non-league affairs, Shady Side defeated Arnold, 25 to 23; Braddock defeated Washington, 34 to 30; Greensburg beat Scottdale, 26 to 20, New Castle beat Warren, O., 29-18; Ambridge topped Beaver Falls, 45-17, and Brentwood downed the W. P. I. D. five, 43 to 23. The City League games lineups:

Softball Rules To Be Standardized

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—A universally - recognized standard code of rules was promised today for the game of softball, heretofore played under almost as many different sets of rules as there are teams.

Representatives of 36 states will gather here January 20 for a two-day meeting called to formulate the uniform code of rules. Phil G. Rossier, head of the National Softball Association, is sponsoring the meeting.

Phases of the game to be discussed include the size of diamonds, size and type of ball, pitching, batting and base running regulations, equipment, bats and number of players.

Arcade No. 1 Pin Team Sets Record

The league-leading Arcade No. 1 team established a new Central Pittsburgh Duckpin League record when it toppled 2,950 pins against the Arcade No. 2 team at the Arcade alleys, Wilkinsburg, last night. The record score surpassed the old mark, held by the Elba team, by 188 pins.

Paliti	183	160	167—510
Weimer	189	224	214—627

DUKES DOWN WESTMINSTER

Bennett, truly a good ball player, led the scoring for both fives with 14 points. Feldman counted 10 points. The Dukes made good on 10 out of 15 fouls, a mighty good record, while Westminster blew 9 out of 16. Bennett was forced to perform under the most severe of mental handicaps. His father is seriously ill. At that, he was plenty poison to the Dukes.

The victory was the twentieth in a row over a period of two seasons for the Dukes. The lineup:

Dukes.	G.	F.	Pt.	Titans.	G.	F.	Pt.

FRESHMEN WIN

In a preliminary tussle that was a tussle, and no mistake, as hectic as was the varsity engagement, the Duquesne freshmen passers nosed out Johnny Coleman's well-drilled East Pittsburgh outfit, 31 to 28. The lineup:

Favorites Advance In Squash Play

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Favorites continued their sweep through the national women's squash racquets championship yesterday, winning their way into the third round with only two of the eight seeded players being carried into extra games.

Mrs. George W. Wightman, of Boston, came the closest of any seeded star to defeat. Eileen Beresford, of Short Hills, N. J., took two of the first three games, but her veteran rival came back to win, 11-15, 15-9, 7-15, 15-8, 15-7.

219-2 Shot Wins 'Caliente Race

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Victor, a 5-year-old gelding, paid the record price of $219.50 in the sixth race here yesterday. The horse, owned and trained by G. Adams, ridden by Jockey Rosengarten, is a mudder, and his win was a considerable upset.

Soccer Club to Hold Benefit Tomorrow

LOCAL FIGHTER BEATEN

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 10.—Walter Cichel, Pittsburgh middleweight, lost a six-round decision to Eddie Dunsway, local fighter, here last night. In the main bout, George Salvatore, of Boston, knocked out Jimmy Reed, of Erie, Pa., in the seventh round.

WINISKI JOINS CURRY TEAM

By TOM BIRKS

When the Curry soccer club steps on Greenlee Field Saturday afternoon for the important national open cup game with Morgan, Alex Wineski, a Curry boy who had to go to Cleveland to win his spurs in soccer football, will be in the lineup as a partner of Buff Donnelli.

Wineski left Curry a few years ago after playing junior soccer, and apparently did not get any recognition in the ranks of the seniors. His playing in the Forest City became the talk of the soccer fans in Ohio, and as soccer appeared to get in the doldroms in the Lake Erie city, Wineski wanted to return to his native town to play.

He personally dickered with Manager Johnny Bruce, and the Curry manager, realizing that he had to do something to strengthen his front line, told Wineski to get his release from the Ohio State Football Association and come home.

Last Sunday Wineski went into the Curry lineup for the first time, playing inside, and he played a wonderful game. Referee Mike Boylan, who handled the game, said that Curry looked 100 per cent better with Wineski in the lineup than they did before his return.

Curry needed forwards, Buff Donnelli has been playing a lone hand, and this has given the opposing defenses a chance to concentrate upon his goal getting ability. Just what the appearance of Wineski will mean against Morgan remains to be seen.

Former College Grid Stars Grapple Here

Former college football stars grace the wrestling card at the Arena, on the North Side, Friday night, with Stanley Sokolis, former Penn captain and tackle, meeting Len Macaluso, of Colgate, in one of the feature events. Macaluso recently wrestled Vic Christie, of California, to a draw in the same ring.

STOCKS SHOW MODERATELY FIRM TONE

News of an especially inspiring nature was lacking and the public showed little or no speculative enthusiasm. Professionals accounted for the majority of the meager transactions in the early hours. Grains and some other commodities firmed a bit and cotton was rather steady. The dollar followed a narrow groove in foreign exchange dealings. With the exception of United States government securities, which were again in supply, bonds did fairly well.

Shares of American Telephone Allied Chemical, United States Steel preferred, United States Industrial Alcohol and American Commercial Alcohol got up about 2 points each. Gainers of fractions to around a point included Western Union, United States Steel, Case, Chrysler, National Distillers, Du Pont, American Can, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, Johns Manville, New York Central, Santa Fe, Union Carbide and Westinghouse. The tobaccos rested after their spurt of yesterday and were only slightly higher. The metals were virtually unchanged.

Wall street continued to watch hopefully for a cue from Washington as to the next major market move. With stock volume down around a million shares or less a day for the past several sessions, most commission houses were hesitant to make any predictions for the near-term. It was emphasized, however, that the more prominent operators have for some time been "on the fence" and even those traders who have gone to Florida for the winter seemingly are not even trying to make expense money.

Reports from the capital that President Roosevelt was decidedly in favor of sinking funds for the retirement of railroad bonds, with the belief that rates should be provided by regulatory bodies sufficient to take care of sinking fund payments, were of much interest to the financial district which has recently been encouraged by the relative firmness of both carrier shares and bonds.

While a number of sizeable railway maturities must be taken care of this year, the opinion was expressed that aid would be given by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation where necessary. The financial district showed no surprise at word from the White House that most of the major transportation systems in the country would have been forced into receivership had conditions continued as they were last March. The plight of the carriers was pointed out, there is considerable optimism for the future of most of the roads.

Recent short covering in American Telephone was attributed partly to news ticker estimates that the company will report net income in excess of $136,000,000 for 1933, or between $7.30 and $7.40 a share. The 1932 net amounted to $145,906,909, or $7.82 a share on the capital stock. The earnings of the company, it was said, have shown a modest but consistent improvement since the low point in the first quarter.

WHEAT MAKES FRESH GAINS

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Fresh upturns in grain values took place early today, prompted partly by suggestions that government figures on domestic farm reserves of wheat would prove bullish. Absence of moisture relief southwest, together with indications of improved milling demand, were also a factor. Opening ½ to 1 cent higher, wheat afterward rose further. Corn started ⅜ to ⅝ up, and subsequently held near the initial range.

Speculative trade in wheat gave evidence of more life and broader volume than has recently been the rule. Little pressure to sell was apparent, and attention focused largely on bullish advices, such as European reports of likelihood that a second cold wave would catch crops with a minimum of snow protection.

Corn and oats developed independent firmness, influenced by announcement of a new process for production of corn sugar.

BRITISH SHOW DICTATORSHIP NOT NEEDED

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The course of the business curve in England in the last year is a forceful argument against the need for dictators.

Mr. Rukeyser

While still practicing democracy, England continues to move forward in trade volume even in the last third of the year when reactionary currents were discernible in other countries.

Likewise, in Canada, South Africa, and Australia, business gains were recorded. Even India reported favorable crop prospects.

In interpreting the British gains, the London Economist remarks:

"The impression gained from a survey of developments in the past year is one of gradual but steady expansion in nearly all branches of economic activity. As was to be expected, recovery has been most pronounced in the capital equipment trades . . . further evidence of the improvement recorded in the past year is given by a revival of the capital market stimulated by cheap money. The necessity for drastic cuts in wages and the consequent friction between workers and employers has been obviated by the suspension of the gold standard in 1931. Further, the improvement in the national finances has undoubtedly contributed to the restoration of confidence necessary to provide the basis for increased productive activity."

BALANCED HOME ECONOMY

Although the British still reverence foreign trade, the improvement was greatly stimulated by the turning from traditional free trade doctrines to the conception of a balanced home economy. With tariffs, the British have encouraged the cultivation of foodstuffs at home, and have thus succeeded in radically reducing the adverse foreign trade balances.

While numerous continental countries have turned to dictatorships, England, still loyal to democratic principles, has been leading the way toward recovery. This fact suggests that it is not necessary to pay the price of dictatorship in order to get economic improvement, particularly since some of the less democratic countries have in fact lagged behind Great Britain.

Moreover, since recovery is our own principal national need, it would pay our leadership to examine closely the bases for British economic recuperation.

FREE TRADE FORSAKEN

An index of the extent to which Great Britain has forsaken the free trade doctrine appears in the London Times Trade and Engineering Supplement, which points out:

"We gather from our correspondence that in some branches of trade at any rate manufacturers feel that it is more important to protect them in the home market than to endeavor to facilitate British exports by concessions on the tariff to foreign competitors. It will of course be recalled that long ago this paper insisted that in the general struggle for markets there was a grave danger that our statesmen might overlook the vast extent of the field for the sale of British goods in the United Kingdom.

"It seemed to us that the basis of national prosperity lay in producing as large a part as possible of the requirements of the people in British fields, factories and workshops.

RECIPROCAL ARRANGEMENTS

"But since it is clearly impossible to produce here all the food and materials needed it seemed to us that the next step should be to make reciprocal arrangements with the Empire.

"That done, this country might endeavor to obtain access to foreign markets on more equitable terms than it enjoyed under so-called free trade."

International trade, of course, has always been of greater relative importance to England than to the United States. In the years 1927-1929, it is estimated that 20 per cent of the national income in the United Kingdom came from exports, whereas in the United States exports constituted only 6 per cent of the national income.

Brokers Postpone Home Bond Offers

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Field, Glore & Co. manager of the national distributing group for the 4 per cent bonds of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, announced that "uncertainty surrounding possible congressional action guaranteeing principle as well as interest" on the bonds made it advisable to postpone further offering of the securities "pending clarification of the outlook."

The bonds, traded on the New York Real Estate Exchange, have advanced sharply in price since late last week when the possibility of principle guarantee by the Treasury became known.

Bureau's Retail Food Index Off

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Retail food prices continued to recede during the two weeks' period ending December 19, the decline amounting to 1½ per cent, the Labor Department announced today.

Farm prices dropped two points between December 13 and 20, the Department of Agriculture reported. Commodities bought by farmers remained level, it was pointed out, so that farm purchasing power was down.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

CHAPTER VI.

The police were doing all they could. Every city passes through a wave of this nature at some period in its growth.

But the tangible results were pretty slim and the newspapers and the public were becoming impatient. Editorials questioning the efficiency of the department were appearing all too frequently. No wonder Anderson had said: "We're having trouble enough as it is! Don't stir up anything else, for goodness sake!"

It was with this very sympathetic understanding of his position, therefore, that I approached the Inspector's secretary and asked him if I might have a few words alone with Anderson.

"I doubt that you can see him now," answered the secretary. "There's just been another big holdup and the Inspector's on his way up there right away."

"Ask him to give me just a minute," I said. "And tell him it's darn important, too."

A moment later I was in Anderson's new office. Even at the first glance I was aware of some excitement. Anderson was seated before his desk and a half-dozen officers, some in uniform, some in plain clothes, were gathered around him. Anderson was talking in quick rapid tones and issuing orders. At last he dismissed them all with a wave of the hand and turned to me with rather a rueful smile.

"Central Savings Bank has just been held up," he explained. "They got away this trip with $40,000 and shot the old watchman who tried to stop them. I've got to get over there right away and talk to some of the witnesses before they scatter."

Anderson Annoyed

"This is strictly a business call," I assured him. "Two minutes is all I want and it may mean heading off some more trouble. That young fellow Carroll came into my office a little while ago with some yarn about demanding that the Paige case be reopened and an investigation held. Says he saw a strange man in the Paige lane at about the time of her death. You know very well that the Herald will print the story if we don't. Is there anything to it?"

Anderson frowned with annoyance. "The young fool!" he said violently. "Now, Kay, this is one time that the Baltimore department isn't involved or interested. This suicide—or murder—or whatever it is—took place in Baltimore County. It is strictly in the hands of the county officials, and unless somebody, either the Towson police or a member of the Paige family, ask us to investigate it is completely out of our jurisdiction. I understand that there has been an examination by the family doctor, by the Coroner, and by the Towson police. As far as I know, they are all perfectly satisfied that Mrs. Paige's death is a clear case of suicide. Under these circumstances, there is nothing that I can do, even if I wanted to—which I assure you I do not. Print Carroll's demands if you like and you are also at liberty to run the explanation which I have just given you. It is not a case in which this office is concerned in any way."

Studies Knot

"Just one minute more, Andy," I begged as he started to rise. "What do you think about it yourself? I mean about the-man-in-the-lane part of it? Do you think that there is any real chance that she was murdered?"

Anderson became thoughtful. "Without having made a personal investigation, I could not possibly say," he answered finally. "From all that I have heard or read in the papers, I certainly should not imagine so. As for the man in the lane, I have no doubt but that some servant was entertaining a beau who overstayed his time. That accounts for the automobile being parked on the main road instead of at someone's house."

"Will you glance at this for a second," I said, taking out the photograph which showed the chandelier and the rope. "This is an official picture and it will take you only a moment. Carroll says that this knot is most unusual and that Mrs. Paige could hardly have tied it herself. What do you think?"

Then he arose and walked to his filing-cabinet in one corner of the room. He rummaged there and finally took out another photograph. He compared the two, but without offering to show me the second one.

"I think the knot is very significant," he said quietly. "I cannot tell you what kind of a knot it is, or whether Mrs. Paige could have known it. I have encountered it several times in criminal cases. The picture at which I was looking is that of the woman who was murdered in the Cihlar case. Her body was found wrapped in canvas out in Dugan's woods and it was trussed up in ropes tied with that very knot. I think it is a knot generally used by criminals—but I am not certain of it. It interests me—that's all."

"Then you think——"

"Has Sergt. Williams had his attention called to this point?"

"I think not."

"Well, I can say this much. If I were conducting this investigation, I should want to look further into that knot, I'll be glad to say that to Williams if he phones me. But I shall say it to him and to no one else. I'm not talking now for publication, you understand, Kay?"

I nodded.

"Now I must be off," he added. "I've talked to you too long as it is."

My next call, a half hour later, was upon Dr. Henry Warner in Towson. I was lucky enough to catch him home, and although I had expected to find him anything but affable (for I knew he had been pestered to death by reporters already) I was pleasantly surprised.

The doctor was a gentleman of the old school, with twinkling blue eyes and a thatch of curly white hair.

After I had stated my mission and apologized for my intrusion, he shook hands with me and invited me in.

"Why, of course, I'm interested," he told me. "I'm more than glad to help in any way I can, and I don't mind talking to you a bit. I'm devoted to the Paiges. Personally, I should prefer to think that little Sunny had been murdered instead of taking her own life. But what makes you think that she didn't kill herself?"

I told Dr. Warner all about young Carroll and of the mysterious man he had seen in the lane, but I could see by his expression that I was making little impression. Then I showed him the picture and called his attention to the knot.

"You're beyond me there," he said. "Knots aren't in my line."

"Doctor," I said bluntly, "are you certain that Mrs. Paige died by hanging?"

"Could you be mistaken?"

"Positively not. Of course, she——" he stopped short.

"What?" I prompted.

"Oh, nothing. I started to say that she might have been strangled before she was hung up to that electric fixture."

Calls on Coroner

"How would you feel if an autopsy were held?"

"I think it would be the best thing in the world. If there is any doubt whatsoever, I think it should be held. You may certainly say that much for me."

I thanked him, shook hands again, and took my departure, feeling that I was beginning to make some headway.

My next call was not so successful.

I located Coroner Mason in his office at Towson and explained my errand. He was a middle-aged man, inclined to stoutness, with a curt and almost rude manner. I knew before I began that I was not to meet with any co-operation here, and I was not disappointed.

I tried to explain my call as best I could, showed him my picture, and asked him if he believed there could be any chance that Mrs. Paige had met with foul play.

"I most certainly do not, sir," he said coldly. "The newspapers are always trying to create scandal and excitement. The Paige case is quite tragic enough as it is."

"Is it possible that you could be induced to hold an autopsy?" I asked.

"I have no intention of doing any such thing unless much stronger reason than what you have given me is forthcoming. I have already given my verdict and I refuse to reopen the case unless there is some real evidence that I have made a mistake. I wish you good day, sir."

My only hope now lay in Sergt. Williams.

That official sat at his desk in the police station. His feet were cocked up on a desk, and he was smoking a cigar and reading the morning paper. However busy the Baltimore police might be, there was plenty of time here. He was a young fellow with a smart bright face.

Synopsis

When Officer Dickey Carroll saw a stranger emerging from the Paige estate, in Baltimore's exclusive residential section, at 2 o'clock in the morning, he failed to make an arrest. Carroll did not know then that stark tragedy had invaded the home which Randolph (Ranny) Paige shared with his popular young wife, Sonia. Returning from business in Washington, Ranny found his wife hanging by her silk dress cord from the chandelier in her boudoir. The coroner returns a verdict of suicide. Carroll, disputing the verdict, reports to Chief Inspector Anderson and Sergt. Williams, about the man he saw leaving the Paige property. They attach little importance to this so Carroll, in anger, gives his story to a newspaper. A reporter named Kay is assigned to the case. Carroll shows him photos of the death scene and calls his attention to the cord's intricate knot. Kay, a friend of Anderson, hopes to induce Anderson to make a more formal investigation.

Martin Van Buren, a favorite with President Jackson, succeeded him (1837-1841). He inherited the depression which spread over his whole term—a period that closed the Jacksonian era. As his chief project, an independent treasury system was established to handle public money separate from private (1840) called "Divorce Bill." An opponent of slavery extension, he made enemies by discouraging the movement for annexing Texas. His moderation averted trouble with Great Britain in 1837 when the American ship Carolina was burned by the English fighting the Canadian rebellion.

JENGHIS KHAN—HIS GRANDSON KUBLAI KHAN—MARCO POLO Courtesy of Carnegie Library

While strong nations like France, Spain, England, etc., arose in Western Europe toward the end of the Middle Ages, the Eastern Colossus, Russia, was hampered in its civilization by Mongol (Tartar) invasions, under Jenghis Khan (1155?-1227); Tartars also devastated Central, Southeastern Europe. His enormous empire gradually disintegrated after his death.

Venetian Marco Polo, with his father and uncle, reached the court of the Great Khan Kublai, whose rule constituted the second "Golden Age" of the Tartars (the first being that of Jenghis Khan.) To Marco Polo were entrusted high offices. Returning in 1295 with great wealth, the Venetian wrote his "Travels," inspiring further exploration of the Orient.

STEAM TURBINES

A jet of steam impinges upon, thereby turning a bladed wheel. The speed of steam being high, the wheel turns very fast, necessitating use of reduction gears in driving machines. By utilizing steam in several stages on as many bucket wheels, lower speeds are obtained; such turbines may be coupled directly to electric generators, pumps, etc. Above: Turbine with 6 stages.

Steam turbines in greater units are more economical than reciprocating steam engines, being simpler, giving rotating motion and requiring no lubrication in steam space. (Trspt.)

BRAHE AND KEPLER, DISCUSSING UNIVERSE

Tycho Brahe (1546-1601) Danish astronomer, inaugurated the era of precise measurements in astronomy, contributing much to the success of his assistant in Prague, Johann Kepler, a German.

Kepler published (1609) findings known as his first and second laws: 1, Orbit of every planet is an ellipse (right) with the sun at one focus; 2, Radius vector of planet sweeps over equal areas in equal times; hence velocity of planets varies: maximum at perihelion, minimum at aphelion. Kepler's third law (1619): Cubes of main distances of planets from sun are proportional to square of their sidereal periods (time needed to complete orbit around sun with reference to the stars). AMMONIA GAS REFRIGERATOR

Ammonia (NH3) can be liquefied easily (at 10°C, 6.5 atm.) and has a high heat of evaporation (330 cal. pr. gram.); thus it is a suitable refrigerant, though most of the electrical household refrigerators use SO2 which is less poisonous.

Above: A household gas refrigerator. Gas flame evaporates strong solution of ammonia which liquefies in water-cooled condenser, then evaporates into the evaporator containing hydrogen, taking heat off surroundings thus cooling the refrigerator. Ammonia gas then passes by gravity into a water-cooled absorber, is absorbed in weak—condensed into strong—solution to start the cycle anew. (Chemistry)

How to Break a Resolution

Like the little girl with the curl it seems that New Year resolutions are very good so long as they are good.

But there comes a time in the course of eventful humans when resolutions become irky. The man who gave up cigars, tobacco and snuff in any form is feeling the stress and strain of retail reform.

He starts today by figuring that chewing on the breech block of a Havana siege gun will do no harm. He has been 10 days without a cigar and is jumpier than fleas on a blazing dog.

So he buys himself a chunk of domestic wrapper with imported filler. He rolls it in his hands. Then he rubs it across his nose like a violin bow. Then he puts it in his mug and rolls it around like a log in a waterfall.

It takes him 15 minutes to find a lower and an upper tooth that mesh. When he locates the two grinding gears he bites the end of the cigar off.

The bitten end of the cigar is small. But it's 24 karat. Shame to waste that. So he swallows it. It catches in his throat and he coughs it up. Then he starts to chew the rest of the cigar.

After a little chewing the cigar gets splayfooted and messy. He snips a half-inch off with a pair of pruning scissors. The chewing starts again. Followed by another trimming of the tobacco hedge.

Finally, there is only one inch of the cigar left. He lights a match, blows it out and lights another. That goes on hours and hours. If he lighted that cigar he would be breaking a resolution.

Finally, he gets a bright idea. He buys a Pullman ticket and gets on a train with no baggage but his little butt of a cigar. He ain't going anywhere special. He goes into the smoker and reads a paper. He doesn't light the cigar.

But a porter comes along. The porter sees a man with no light on his cigar. So he strikes a match and holds it to the short stub and the man reads his paper and inhales. The dirty work is done and the cigar is lighted.

Oxcart Government Is the Racket of a Horde of Political Parasites

EVERY STATE LEGISLATURE which meets during the year, in regular or special session, owes it to the people to reorganize county and local government without any more dilly-dallying.

Under the system of county and local government with which almost all the states of the Union are afflicted today, education and other vital governmental services are being starved to subsidize thousands of county and local officials no longer needed.

These county and local officials are eating up the taxes which OUGHT TO GO FOR THE SUPPORT OF MORE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

* * *

THESE COUNTY and local officials are eating up the taxes which ought to go for the support of state constabularies, trained and armed and equipped to enforce the law and round up and turn over to the courts the lawless for punishment.

Other vital governmental services—the safeguarding of the public health, the construction and maintenance of highways, the administration of justice—are being sacrificed IN ORDER TO FEED AT THE PUBLIC TROUGH A HORDE OF POLITICAL PARASITES.

Meantime the people are being taxed to the breaking point to support an obsolete system of county and local government, which President Roosevelt has truly said "was built up in the days of the oxcart" and is utterly unsuited to meet the needs of the people in the days of the automobile.

* * *

UNTIL THIS OBSOLETE system is abolished and the several states repossess themselves of authority commensurate with their responsibility, there can be no effective co-operation between the Federal government and the governments of the several states in the promotion of public education, in the safeguarding of the public health, in the administration of justice, in the war on crime, or in highway construction.

By reorganizing county and local government, the several states can raise the standard of administration and reduce its cost to the taxpayer.

This way lies the road to national recovery. And until the Legislatures of the several states enter upon this road, their petitions for further aid from the Federal government in the financing of states services should be rejected.

* * *

THE NEW YEAR offers the Governor of every state in the Union a golden opportunity to lead his people in the reorganization of county and local governments to meet the challenge of modern times.

The new year offers to the Governor of every state in the Union a golden opportunity to lead his people in a new emancipation that will rid them of an oxcart system of county and local government.

This obsolete system of government is bankrupting the taxpayers, threatening public education with destruction polluting the processes of justice, and jeopardizing other vital governmental services to pay the salaries and expenses of a horde of political parasites, WHO ARE MAKING OF GOVERNMENT A POLITICAL RACKET.

Sales Tax Needed

The Federal Credit, Cornerstone of the Recovery Program, Demands This Sound Principle

President Roosevelt's budget message brings into high relief the paramount necessity for preserving and strengthening the credit of the federal government.

In this situation, it is no longer fitting to debate whether we need to put our taxation system on a more scientific basis.

With huge borrowing needed to meet tremendous cash deficits, it behooves Congress to develop the impulse on the part of investors to buy federal securities by improving the fiscal policies of the government.

This entails an obligation to turn from emotional, punitive, ill-considered and evilly considered taxes to tested imposts, which are known to be productive of large revenues with a minimum of discouragement to creative business enterprise.

The financing of the huge cost of the "New Deal" brings to a focus the need for A GENERAL MANUFACTURERS' SALES TAX OF AT LEAST 5 PER CENT.

The sales tax has not only delivered the goods as a revenue producer, but also has come to be known as the PAINLESS TAX.

"A general manufacturers' sales tax is the most equitable form of taxation that could be devised in the revenue emergency confronting the country.

"Instead of loading heavier tax burdens on business and individuals, Congress ought to adopt a general manufacturers' sales tax. Experience with such a levy in Canada and other countries has proved it is the most painless form of tax, equitable and easy to collect."

Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, was correct in saying that, if President Roosevelt would give his support to a sales tax, it would go through Congress speedily.

The President, once an opponent of a state sales tax, which is an entirely different matter, has already moved partly in the direction of a national manufacturers' sales tax.

At the emergency session, he let it be known that, if Congress adopted such a sales tax, he would not veto it.

The time has come for the President to go further, and AFFIRMATIVELY RECOMMEND THIS SOUND PRINCIPLE OF TAXATION.

The psychological moment is now at hand for such a decision at the White House, since, as the President has said, the federal credit has become THE CORNERSTONE OF THE WHOLE RECOVERY PROGRAM.

Sidewalks for Highways

An Important Improvement for the Protection of Pedestrians Is at Last in Sight

The welcome news is out that plans have been prepared by the County Road Department for the construction of 60,000 linear feet of sidewalks alongside highways in the vicinity of schoolhouses.

Twenty-eight distinct projects are involved. The sidewalks are to be four feet wide, are to be made of slag, and in some cases are to extend for about 1,000 feet in each direction from the school.

We understand that the sidewalks are to lie directly against the pavement of the highways. We are loath to criticize so desirable an improvement, but this seems a mistake. In our opinion there should be a gap—a broad line of demarcation—between the highway and the sidewalk, since otherwise it seems certain that careless motorists will drive on the sidewalk.

The program, as yet not officially approved in all its details, calls for the furnishing of the materials by the county and of the labor by the Civil Works Administration.

The laying of sidewalks should help to prevent automobile accidents, and may even result in the saving of lives. For pedestrians take a big risk in walking on automobile roads, particularly on rainy nights such as we have had lately. Unless the pedestrians carry flashlights or lanterns, motorists may fail to see them until they are only a few yards away.

If there is any kind of footpath, people should not walk on the highways. If it is unavoidable, they should walk facing the traffic.

Housing Progress

The Coming of Mr. Kohn to Pittsburgh Will Promote the Slum Replacement Movement

Pittsburgh is fortunate in being afforded an opportunity to entertain Robert D. Kohn, director of housing in the Public Works Administration. His coming should go far to promote the movement for the replacement of the city's slums.

Mr. Kohn will attend a dinner Friday, to be given by the Pittsburgh Housing Association, the City Planning Commission, and the Allied Architects of Pittsburgh, and is expected to confer with Mayor McNair and a committee of Council.

These conferences no doubt will let us know just how far we can depend on federal aid in plans for erecting low-rent houses for people now forced to live in slums.

If Mr. Kohn's coming arouses as much interest in slum replacement as we hope and expect, prompt action will follow.

Plague of Locusts!

By Nelson Harding

Descends the swarm of parasites
They constitute the worst of blights.

The plague takes all within its path.
It's small wonder that we see

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Among intellectual flowerings following repeal is the mental urge for knowledge about wines. Owen Wister and Julian Street, both novelists, are reputed best informed on their proper usages. But they belong to a somewhat older generation. The wine drinking era of Depew, Morgan and Berry Wall.

The oncoming generation is totally ignorant as to the significance of such names as Bourgueil, Chateau-Chaton, Montbazillac or Haut-Brion. And whether they are red or white, sweet or dry, still or sparkling. Wines had two classifications to them—"Dago red" and spiked cider dubbed champagne.

Sudden establishment of wine bins in homes where they had been abandoned has offered a new hobby for wealthy folk. They are having fun in the new diversion of racking shelves with rehoboams, jeroboams, magnums, quarts and imperial pints in geometrical array.

Every swank hotel has re-established the wine steward with the chained key circling his neck. Many have been brought from London and Paris and others off the liners. The most notable understander of wine in hotels is Oscar. He knows 200 vintages by smell.

Hollywood's newest and shyest celebrity is blushing Max Miller, the "I Cover the Water Front" author. He has become an intimate of Charlie Chaplin, with whom he attends rounds of parties. And Colins Clement says Chaplin always stands on the author's foot to keep him from crawling under rugs and things.

Horror note: Paducah, Ky., which has a cigar, hat, laundry, big hotel, office building and river excursion steamer named for Irvin Cobb, now has a beauty salon called "Irvin Cobb Beauty Service," for goodness sake!

There is a blustery swagger about those wide-shouldered, belted camel hair overcoats with incredibly large pockets. I see Gene Buck, Ben Ali Haggin, Floyd Gibbons, and William Gaxton swirling along in them.

Today I barged from a Madison avenue toggery with the loosest I could find, double breasted, hugely pearl buttoned and jauntily pleated in the back. I've been side-glancing slyly in the mirror at intervals since. But I don't make the grade. Nothing will give me the savoir-faire of the tweedy voyageur. The nearest I get to tweediness is a sort of tweedle-de-dee!

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

The Love-Depression

Nothing depresses an attractive man so much as to discover that he has reached the age when all girls under 25 are beginning to regard him as a confidante and to use him as a "spare."

The best thing about most foolish marriages—and most of the present-day foolish styles—is the beautiful thought that they won't last long.

* * *

Every new bridegroom has to master the domestic sign manual during the first year of marriage; otherwise he may drive his wife to first-degree murder by his "What-have-I-done-now?" look every time she kicks him under the table.

* * *

Emotional appeal is something that every woman fancies she possesses until she tries to use it to persuade her husband to stay away from a prize fight and take her to a bridge party.

* * *

When we say "He's human!" we mean either that a man has done something splendid and generous—or that he has done something foolish and selfish. To be "human," after all, means to be almost anything from a demigod to an animal.

* * *

* * *

Manners and modesty may again be coming into vogue, with the Gay Nineties styles; but most of us will have to take lessons. We've forgotten just what we ought to blush at.

If a man only knew when he had enough money or enough women in his life and a woman only knew when she'd had enough admiration and romance, most of the heartbreaks and suicides in this world could be avoided.

* * *

Lots of people think that they are "marrying for love," when the dalliance they feel is lighter than a toe-dancer's feet and less substantial than a soda-fountain lunch.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

To Sing Anew

Song must come welling
From out the heart,
There's no compelling
Glad notes to start.

Lyrics must bubble
Like limpid streams,
No sigh to trouble
Their shining dreams.

No carols cover
A spirit's moan,
Quick ears discover
Pain's undertone.

So you, when bringing
Gladness again,
Set my lips singing
Their old refrain.

Yes, you have taught me
To sing anew,
Dear, since you brought me
Joys deep and true!

Many Great Killers Have Been Routed—But Others Still Menace—The Nature of Life

By Edwin C. Hill

MEDICAL MEN in their recent conventions have brought out some amazing facts about human life and the great killers that lie in wait to destroy. Medicine has learned so much in the past twenty-five years—as much probably as it knew for 500 years preceding — that the one-time terrible epidemics have virtually been eliminated. Yellow fever no longer sweeps helpless thousands into the hereafter. Bubonic plague is now halted at the ocean gateways. Even the White Plague, consumption, has been beaten back by devoted effort.

But as medicine learns new things and takes new strides forward, new problems arise to challenge its skill. The rapidity of the times, the terrific nervous hurly-burly in which we live, have given new energy to old killers. As Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, remarked the other day, heart disease is now the most destructive, relentless enemy of Americans. That is largely true because few people resort in time to medical advisers.

The Heart
A Marvelous Machine

THE HUMAN heart is the most marvelous machine that imagination could conceive of. When it is turning over smoothly one isn't aware that he has a heart in his breast. Only when it develops a knock does concern arise. Your heart has been beating 70 odd times a minute, and every hour of the day, for it never sleeps, it pumps 50 gallons of blood through a marvelous system of pipes and through the tireless little engine. The only rest the heart ever gets is between beats. That is why set periods of rest for men and women are so essential to its well-being.

Heart disease is the greatest of modern killers, but it doesn't kill suddenly, even though death may come with apparent suddenness. The medical men tell us that there is always plenty of warning for those who will pause and listen. There may come a sense of fatigue or shortness of breath or some palpitation. Those are the little danger signals, the warnings given by the wonderful little engine that it needs rest, tranquility. And yet even these little warnings may have fatal significance. The point is that only a trained medical mind can tell what is dangerous and what is misleading.

Procrastination — the fear of learning the truth—kills more people than anything else. Seventy per cent of patients suffering from cancer do not present themselves for examination until the disease has reached a fatal stage. Seventy-two per cent could have been cured if they had been examined in the first stages.

Much the same thing is true of heart disease. The human heart is a marvelous little motor. It is not indestructible and the time comes when it needs easement and rest.

"The fretful stir unprofitable, and the fever of the world, have hung upon the beatings of my heart."

Riddle of Life Near Solution

WHAT IS life? The riddle eternal—the query which has baffled the greatest minds—the despair of the ages. And yet today, by strange coincidence, we get the testimony of five famous scientists that the missing pieces are being fitted into the puzzle. Only a few remain to be found before the puzzle is complete.

Dr. George W. Crile, eminent surgeon, Crile, of Cleveland, tells us that the bio-chemist has constructed many of the compounds of which the body is made. Science will reveal the nature of life and the physical nature of mind and personality.

Dr. Frank Guttmacher, of Johns Hopkins University, writes a book called "Life in the Making" and makes this arresting assertion:

"All is light," says Soiland, "traveling in waves of different intensity. We will know some day how to shoot electrons into the human body. In five years life may be explained in chemical terms."

Dr. C. B. Davenport, of the Carnegie Institution, discussing that infinitesimal part of the living cell which is called the gene, makes this further contribution: "When we understand the structure of the gene, we shall know the essential difference between living and non-living matter."

They say a lot of disparaging things about this materialistic, machine age of ours—many of them fully deserved. But history may look back on this ugly age and call it the golden age of science and invention. Wells and Huxley in "The Science of Life," tell us that living matter is potentially immortal, and that our cells do not die. We know this from the weird experiment Dr. Carrel has made at the Rockefeller Institute with the heart of a chicken. For years Dr. Carrel has kept alive a slice of the heart, and at regular intervals it must be pared down and sliced away or it would grow so enormously that its tissue would cover the earth and the seven seas.

It is the tissues, not the cells, that fail us. Some one tissue lets the others down, a vital organ collapses, and then—the sleep that knows no waking.

Withal, the hope is held out that the Biblical three-score and ten is much too short a span, and should be extended.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

A Prayer

GIVE ME THE COURAGE TO LIVE!
Really live—not merely exist.
Live DANGEROUSLY—
Scorning the risk!
Live HONESTLY—
Daring the truth—
Particularly the truth of myself!
Live RESILIENTLY—
Ever changing, ever growing, ever adapting.
Enduring the pain of change,
As though 'twere the travail of birth.
GIVE ME THE COURAGE TO LIVE—
Give me the strength to be free—
And endure the burdens of freedom.
And the loneliness of those without chains.
Let me not be trapped by success—
GIVE ME THE COURAGE TO GO ON!
Facing all that waits on the trail—
Going eagerly, joyously on—
And paying my way as I go.
Without anger or fear or regret—
Taking whatever life gives—
Spending myself to the full—
Head high, spirit winged, like a god—
On . . . on—till the shadows draw close—
Then, even when darkness shuts down,
And I go out alone, as I came—
Naked and blind, as I came . . .
Even then, Unknown God, hear my prayer:
GIVE ME THE COURAGE TO LIVE!

ISN'T IT SO?

The wide, wide world might be even more crowded if there were not so many narrow people in it.

There was a time when a young man asked the girl's father for her hand, but now all he asks is that he foot the bills.

Some people lay aside money to pay for their future needs, but most of us just make bills to be paid with our future money.
